BOAT RIDE IN KENTFIELD — Kentfield firemen were kept busy this morning giving boat rides to persons living in Granton Park. Rains and high tide brought flood waters as high as eight feet in some sections of Granton Park. 85-MPH Winds Strike During Huge Downpour

Up To Three Inches Of Rainfall Measured

Marin County was buffeted by gale winds reaching 85 miles an hour last night at Mount Tamalpais as the third storm of the week dumped almost three inches of water on parts of the county.

Falling trees caused power and telephone blackouts. Torrential rains flooded streets, washed out sections of roads and backed up sewers into the streets. Several boats were beached by the high winds.

At noon today in San Rafael, 2.86 inches of rain was reported since noon yesterday, bringing the season total to 19.31 inches. At this time last year, rainfall totaled 16.81 inches.

Winds and rain would slack off by tonight, the weatherman said. For the next five days, rain is "probable" in the northern and central parts of the state, said the official forecast.

Sausalito was the hardest hit. Waves 25 feet high broke across Bridgeway, flooding apartments and homes facing the bay. City Manager Charles A. Brown and Asst. Fire Chief John C. Terris both scooped up herring with their hands in the flooded street and on the Ondine Restaurant pier.

BOATS TORN LOOSE

Winds reaching 75 miles an hour tore loose at least five boats from their moorings at Kappas Yacht Harbor. Four of them drifted across the bay to Strawberry. One houseboat came to rest on De Silva Island.

Sausalito Police Chief Howard Goerndt said "we're keeping our fingers crossed" until the next high tide, due at 3:30 p.m. "If the winds keep up, we're in trouble," Goerndt said.

FLARES PUT OUT

Flares and barricades were set up at 3:30 a.m. and traffic was directed around Bridgeway over the hill after several cars stalled. The boardwalk between Richardson Street and the Valhalla Inn was badly battered, police said. A slide was reported at the Sausalito pumping station on Second Street near the bay.

On the bright side of the storm picture, millions of gallons of much-needed water was poured into Marin reservoirs. Rain and runoff funnelled 81,700,000 gallons of water into Stafford Lake in Novato, bringing the level of the lake from 166.8 feet to 169.1 feet. Nicasio reservoir rose 2.7 feet; Kent Lake, 2 feet; Alpine Lake, 3.1 feet; Bon Temple Lake, 1.2 feet. Both Lagunitas and Phoenix Lakes overflowed.

POWER OUT

Electric power was knocked out in some hillside areas of Mill Valley and remained out at 1 p.m. today, with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. crews hunting the source of the trouble.

Supt. Leonard Robertson of PG&E's electric department said power went out at Inverness and the Point Reyes peninsula and would probably remain out until noon.

Power was also blacked out in the San Rafael Deer Park area from 5:10 to 7:55 a.m.; in the Northbridge subdivision in Santa Venetia from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m.; in the Fairfax Deer Park area from 5:10 to 7:50 a.m., and on the County Farm.

SNOW PILES UP AT THE WINTER SPORTS AREAS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Heavy snow has piled up overnight in the winter sports areas of California and Northern Nevada.

Mt. Shasta reported four feet of fresh snow and a total depth of 113 inches. Skiing was reported good there and at Nevada points, but only fair to poor at most other areas.

Highways were open, under winter driving conditions and tire chains were required at nearly all places.

MARIN DISPOSAL OF SEWAGE HIT

Pollution Board Attack Is Read; Supervisors Vote Investigation

Marin County shortcomings in sewage disposal were attacked in a letter from the Bay Area Water Pollution Control Board read today before Marin Supervisors.

There was prompt rebuttal by several spokesmen, who held:

1. The complexity of jurisdictions forbids any simple overall plan such as the control board wants.

2. Much more progress has been made toward remedying Las Gallinas Valley deficiencies and the problem of Sausalito area arks and barges than the control board admits.

3. West Marin has low assessed values and in many areas no need for sewage treatment plants.

Nevertheless the board unanimously passed a motion for investigation by Public Works Director Marvin W. Brigham as to where treatment plants might be beneficial in the Bolinas-Stinson Beach area of West Marin.

The control board's letter recited its effort over seven years to bring remedial actions in various places. At a Jan. 18 meeting its members noted "considerable deviations" from good water pollution standards in Marin County, the letter went on.

"We ask your assistance and invite your leadership," said the control group, in improving a situation of a number of small inefficient sewage treatment plants in the Las Gallinas Valley watershed" together with lack of plants in the Bolinas-Stinson Beach area and the problem of sewage discharge into Richardson Bay by arks and barges.

The board scored Marin's "absence of long range planning on sewage disposal."

Asst. Auditor Michael Mitchell pointed out that while all this was "directed to the county exclusively" there are 26 entities dealing with such matters, including 13 sanitary districts and 10 cities, "with only three sewer maintenance districts a problem."

"I think we are making progress," Mitchell summarized. In one West Marin area, he said, a $1 tax rate per $100 valuation produced only $535.

Asst. County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said there have been cooperative efforts by the county and Sausalito toward a uniform ordinance for control arks and barges.

Christmas Isle Tests Draw Fire

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's agreement to permit U.S. nuclear tests on a British Pacific island stirred a storm of criticism here today. Opposition Labor Party chief Hugh Gaitskell said he would take his objections directly to President John F. Kennedy in Washington.

In Paris, the French government announced the United States and Britain had asked France to join them and Russia in nuclear test ban talks. It was the first time France had been invited to such talks. But a spokesman said France would accept only if the talks were "well prepared and showed a chance of achieving serious results."

British Liberal Party leader Joe Grimond and some leading British newspapers also criticized the agreement under which Britain would stage an underground test in Nevada and the United States use Christmas Island for atmospheric testing.

Paris Strike Is Called In Aftermath Of Riots

PARIS (AP) — A one-hour strike, in protest at the police methods in a wild riot in which eight persons were killed and hundreds injured, stalled much of Paris business and industry today.

Workers were called out by Communist, Socialist and Roman Catholic unions after last night's bloody clashes in which demonstrators were killed and injured in protesting government failure to suppress terrorism by the right-wing Secret Army Organization. Communists accused police of "unbelievable savagery" in the three hours of street fighting.

Today's strike was the first of a series of strikes and demonstrations that are expected.

Actress Brigitte Bardot, her former husband, movie director Roger Vadim, and many students joined in the strike. Miss Bardot met with movie technicians at a studio near Paris and heard union leaders speak against the secret army.

City and suburban buses halted, and the Paris subway and suburban train service was affected.

Interior Minister Roger Frey charged that the Communists provoked the bloodshed and declared: "These people wanted trouble. Rarely have such well-organized bands of rioters attacked the security forces."

The Communists, backed by other left-wing parties and non-Communist trade unions, retaliated with a threat to call a general strike during the funerals of last night's victims.

The non-Communist Socialist splinter party led by former Premier Pierre Mendes-France demanded the resignation of Paris police Chief Maurice Papon and the dismissal of Frey. The party claimed many of its members were among the injured.

While the mobs of leftists surged through the streets battling police, terrorists of the anti-de Gaulle Secret Army Organization set off a dozen or more plastic bombs in scattered sections of the capital. As usual the bombers got away.

One bomb badly damaged the Paris office of the Soviet news agency Tass in a building owned by the Soviet Embassy.

ICC To Resume Hearings On NWP Petition

The Interstate Commerce Commission will resume its hearing on Northwestern Pacific Railroad's petition for abandonment of main line San Rafael service on March 22.

The ICC today announced the hearing will be resumed at 9:30 a.m. on that date in the New Mint Building at 133 Herman Street, San Francisco, with F. Roy Linn as examiner—the same hearing place and same examiner as at the initial hearing which was recessed after only a few hours on Jan. 25.

Since the Jan. 25 recess, the ICC's committee on railroad abandonments has rejected NWP's request to abandon service on its San Rafael-Sausalito line.

Meanwhile, Boris H. Lakusta, special counsel for the City of San Rafael in its fight against abandonment of the mail line service, reported an impasse with NWP on the city's request that a drift be run into the collapsed Puerto Suello tunnel so it can be inspected from the inside.

Engineer J. P. Hawke, who with his associate, J. Donovan Jacobs, was hired to prepare an engineering report on the tunnel for the city, sought to have a drift run from just in front of the Chula Vista Apartments, behind a portion of the tunnel that collapsed during a fire last July 20. He and the city took the position this was a responsibility of the railroad. But the railroad refused flatly to pay the cost.

Meantime, estimates of the cost of restoring the tunnel submitted by the railroad have varied from $824,000 to $1,242,000.

Drive Opened For Shelters By McNamara

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara opened a drive in Congress today for the administration's program to build fallout shelters for 20 million people in schools, hospitals and other public buildings. It would cost between 400 and 500 million dollars.

Warning that public shelters would not provide protection for everyone, he also appealed for private construction of family shelters in basements and yards and for locally financed group shelters in factories, apartment buildings and similar construction.

Under the program, the government would underwrite about 62.5 per cent of the construction costs. The money would come from a 695-million-dollar appropriation previously sought by President John F. Kennedy for the total civil defense program.

In a letter to Congress, McNamara said there seemed to be no practical way of avoiding loss of life during a nuclear attack. But he added that the government-backed shelters would save enough people to "create the base for recovery after attack."

Board Decides Against Another Hughes Trial

Marin County supervisors decided today against "another five-day trial" of Stella Hughes' appeal against her dismissal from the job of assistant county personnel director.

Instead they finally voted to have a full transcript of the recent personnel commission hearing prepared, read it, and allow counsel for both parties to file written briefs.

Following this, the board will take the matter under submission, and finally render a verdict either confirming or rejecting the personnel commission finding recommending her reinstatement.

Brief discussion of the matter earlier had left Supervisor William D. Fusselman with the impression that the board could glance over the partial transcript thus far available and make up its mind with aid of the attorneys. Chairman Walter R. Castro and Supervisor William Gnoss seemed to think the board able to act as it wished.

Not so, said Supervisor Peter H. Behr, an attorney: the board is required either to hold another complete trial, or to read a transcript of the first one.

"I'm qualified as the ultimate expert and we are in an appellate court position," Behr assured his surprised colleagues.

Asst. County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, representing Administrator Alan Bruce who dismissed Miss Hughes, said a transcript might be completed within about two weeks.

Hemingway Widow Goes Over Cache Of Old Mementos

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Mary Hemingway, widow of author Ernest Hemingway, has been examining a storeroom of mementos he cached with a fishing crony in a barroom nearly 30 years ago.

So far, Mrs. Hemingway has turned up parts of manuscripts, including "To Have and Have Not", which he wrote in Key West, photographs of fishing trips in the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea, letters, telegrams, and printers' proofs of stories.

The items were stored in the rear of Sloppy Joe's Bar. The bar was owned by the late Joe Russell, Hemingway's fishing crony.

Mrs. Hemingway and the estate attorney will decide what to do with the papers and other items.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Vigil At Mine

SAARBRUECKEN (UPI)—Relatives and co-workers kept a silent all-night vigil outside the main gate of the Luisenthal coal mine with the faint hope there would be a few more survivors of a gas explosion that killed nearly 300 miners.

The Saarland mines commission said yesterday at least 283 miners died when the explosion devastated the giant mine near here Wednesday.

Offers For Troupe

DETROIT (UPI) — The leader of the tragedy-stricken Wallenda aerial troupe said today "booking offers" have been coming in at two or three times the rate before two of its members were killed and another critically injured in a 36-foot fall.

Karl Wallenda said in addition to the increase in the number of offers, the torupe, now reduced from its original seven to three members, was being offered two to three times as much money to perform as before.

The accident occurred Jan. 30 when the lead man in the human pyramid lost his footing and two fell and died.

Nuclear Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. scientists have fired another nuclear device underground at the Nevada test site.

The test was the 12th announced since the United States resumed underground testing. The Atomic Energy Commission said the test was of low yield.

Rock Slides On 50

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Snow and rock slides blocked sections of U.S. Highway 50 over the Sierra last night, forcing traffic to be rerouted, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A snowslide near Echo Summit blocked the Sacramento-to-Carson City, Nev., route for about three hours. One-lane traffic was finally restored but officers were directing trucks to U.S. 40.

Budget Probers

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Pledging to look for "extravagance and frills" in Gov. Edmund G. Brown's budget, a Republican legislative task force today prepared to study the Democratic administration's 1962-63 spending program.

The 11-man task force, appointed yesterday, is headed by freshman Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy.

He said the group wouldn't make "an irresponsible attack" on the budget but "we are determined to examine line for line every expenditure."

Argentina Alert

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Police reinforcements moved into the heart of Buenos Aires last night to counter pro-Castro outbursts against Argentina's diplomatic break with Cuba but the Argentine public appeared undisturbed.

President Arturo Frondizi took security precautions after bowing to his staunchly anti-Communist military chiefs and cutting ties with Havana, increasing the hemispheric isolation of that Communist dictatorship.

Jayne Resting

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Actress Jayne Mansfield rested up in a hospital today after being marooned on wave-splashed rocks overnight in a bathing suit that gave mosquitoes and chilly winds a helpless target.

The shapely blonde, 28, her husband, Mickey Hargitay, 32, and a friend, Jack Drury, 35, were taken by boat from desolate Rose Island yesterday.

Hargitay, who like Drury, hotel publicist of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., suffered exposure and coral rock scrapes, wept when newsmen bluntly asked if the trio's disappearance was a publicity stunt.

"Anyone who thinks this is a publicity stunt has got a mixed up mind," he snapped.

'Somebody Goofed,' State's Reservists Say At Ft. Lewis

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — A group of California civilian soldiers charged today that "somebody gpofed" in calling their reserve units to active duty here.

The men, members of the 861st and 977th Transportation Terminal Services Companies from Oakland and San Diego, said there are no facilities here to train them for their mission —loading and unloading transport ships.

As a result, they said they have been idle much of the time since they reported here Oct. 26, resulting in a waste of their time and the taxpayers' money.

A spokesman for the group said they put in only six days at their assigned task during the last three months. That was when they loaded equipment for the 4th Division airlift to NATO maneuvers in Europe.

Meantime, the men have been taking basic combat infantry training which many said they had had during previous service in the Army.

Lt. Col. Cornelius A. Barents, Fresno, commander of the 818th Transportation Group of which the two companies are a part, said the basic infantry training was essential to prepare the men to defend themselves in combat.

He said training in their specialty as stevedoring companies will begin shortly at an Oregon Army base that is being reactivated.

The men told reporters they had no complaints concerning the food, barracks, clothing or officers but felt there was no reason for their being called up.

"I think it has been a waste of time," said Pfc. Lyndel J. Tiner, 20, Oakland. "I've worked just six days at our specialty since I've been here."

Counterfeit Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Secret Service agents and city detectives have seized a hoard of two million dollars in counterfeit $10 bills in the basement of a Brooklyn apartment house.

But they haven't gotten their hands on the plates used to print the bogus bills—the big prize in any counterfeit raid.

Five different plates apparently were used, because five different Federal Reserve District markings were on the bills.

ANDREI SOLOVYEV

Yanks Reject Soviet Boss At Crossing

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet commandant in Berlin attempted to enter the American sector today in defiance of a United States ban. He turned back when U.S. Military Police asked him to identify himself.

The commandant, Col. Andrei I. Solovyev, was on his way to the British sector to keep an appointment and could have entered the British sector directly — and was urged to do so by the British — but chose to test the American ban.

He appeared at the Friedrichstrasse crossing point in the U.S. sector, designated by the East Germans as the only crossing point through Berlin's wall for foreigners.

Had he crossed at any other point he would have been showing disrespect for the decrees of the East German regime—which the Soviets claim is a sovereign state.

Solovyev has been banned from the American sector since Dec. 23.

At that time the U.S. commandant, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II turned back from an effort to enter the Soviet zone because East German guards insisted for the first time that his civilian advisers in civilian clothes identify themselves.

A British spokesman said Solovyev was coming to British headquarters for an appointment he requested, presumably to deliver the Soviet reply to an Allied proposal to end the impasse between him and Watson.

The British spokesman said Solovyev was told to come direct to the British sector without going through the American zone. But Solovyev sent word back he was coming through the Friedrichstrasse Crossing point into the American sector.

FEAR, HATRED

Teen Legislature Told Of Bombing

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Hushed teen-agers attending a YMCA Model Legislature last night heard a 17-year-old boy tell about the night his family's home was bombed.

The speaker was John S. Simmons of North Hollywood. The bombing occurred nine days ago while his father, the Rev. John G. Simmons, a Lutheran minister, was at a synagogue participating in a panel discussion on the far right.

Young Simmons referred to the attack in making an impassioned plea against a bill barring known Communist Party members from holding public office. It was defeated by voice vote.

"I think this is going to lead to more mud slinging," said Simmons, student body president of North Hollywood High School. "I think it will lead to a doctrine of fear and hatred by right wing extremists."

"Last week, as I sat in my home, it was bombed, a tactic used by fascist governments or communist governments.

"I felt that I had never felt fear or hatred until I looked in my living room and saw holes in the walls and the drapes.

"I cry every time I think how close it came to killing my mother as she sat four feet from where it landed."

Simmons said the bill would only contribute to the wave of hate and fear that, in his case, resulted in the bombing of his home.

The measure was introduced by the South Pasadena-San Marino YMCA. A supporter, 16-year-old Roger Woodbury, defended it as a way of fighting what he called the Communist attempt to "steal your rights, liberties and property."

Some 350 teen-agers from throughout California are participating in the annual Model Legislature, which lasts through tomorrow.

The Rebel Yell, a cry adapted from the Civil War battlefield to the Southern football stadium, was once called a "fiendish yell" that "froze the blood."

San Rafael Senior Is Semi-Finalist

A 17-year-old San Rafael High School senior has been chosen one of 10 California semi-finalists in the 1962 Betty Crocker "American Homemaker Of Tomorrow" contest.

Kristin Evju, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Evju, 5 Morgan Lane, San Rafael, was selected on the basis of a written test given to California High School seniors in December, according to Wilma Cunningham, San Rafael Home Economics Department head.

As a semi-finalist, Kristin becomes eligible for one of two scholarships awarded annually by General Mills, Inc., to California students.

Run In With Boss Could Mean Wreck

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An employee who has been bawled out by his boss is likely to get involved in an accident, a psychiatrist told delegates to the Governor's Industrial Safety Conference yesterday.

"Supervisors must learn that what they say may have an impact out of proportion on the emotions of the worker," Dr. John Alden explained.

He said anger leads to accidents and a worker is likely to get angry if his boss calls him down, because the boss is a father figure.

Alden said it would be a good idea for a worker who has had a run-in with his employer to get a friend to drive him home from work. Bosses should also be aware of emotional factors to avoid on-the-job accidents, if possible, he added.

'Divine Guidance' Asked By Romney In Decision

DETROIT (AP)—George Romney, American Motors Corp. president, fasted and prayed today as he pondered whether to seek the Republican nomination for governor of Michigan.

Romney plans to announce his decision tomorrow morning.

Intimate friends disclosed late yesterday that Romney had begun a 24-hour fast. They said he made a practice of fasting before making any important decision in personal and business affairs.

Contacted in Lansing where he was attending the constitutional convention as a delegate, Romney confirmed he was fasting. He said he would return to his Bloomfield Hills home outside Detroit later "to seek guidance beyond that of man."

Rodney is president of the Detroit Stake diocese of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. His title is equivalent to bishop.

The auto executive said he likely would make a definite decision today on whether to seek the GOP nomination for governor, but would not announce it until tomorrow morning.

Romney has indicated he would resign as president and board chairman of AMC if he decided to run, but would keep his 102,000 shares of stock in the corporation.

Romney, 54, has been active politically the last two years or so as head of his nonpartisan Citizens for Michigan.

SOUTHLAND HOMES FLOODED — Rainwater brought by Southern California's heaviest storm in years surrounded these homes and cars in the Los Angeles suburb of Gardena yesterday. In some places the water was eight feet deep. More than a dozen schools were closed. (AP Wirephoto)

Driverless Car Plows Into School Bus

A skidding car sideswiped a van and a sedan, threw out its driver, and then plowed driverless into a school bus with 60 children aboard just outside the Hamilton Air Force Base main gate late yesterday.

Nobody aboard the bus was hurt. Hugo Ewald Clever, 69, of 781 Atherton Avenue, Novato, who was thrown from the skidding car, was in Novato Hospital today with numerous cuts and bruises. His condition was reported as good.

Mrs. Lois Mae Catteyson of 1340 Cambridge Street, Novato, was returning sixth grade pupils from the San Jose District's Lynwood School to the Capehart Housing area of the air base. She stopped the bus for a traffic light before turning left into the base at 3:25 p.m.

On the other side of the intersection, a northbound sedan driven by Walter Reinhold Beckman of 1620 Grant Avenue, Novato, and a van driven by Alfred Vernon Reiley of Petaluma were stopped for the light.

Clever's car skidded as he attempted to brake to a stop, he told the California Highway patrol. It hit both van and sedan, spun, threw him out, then ran diagonally across to slam into the bus.

The crash broke the bus's gasoline tank, spewing fuel on the highway.

Mrs. Catteyson got the children off the bus quietly and led them through the air base gate as the Novato Fire Department sped up to wash off the gasoline and the highway patrol arrived to investigate the accident. The highway patrol report commended her for her handling of the situation.

Clever was the only person injured.

More Rain Threatens Los Angeles Area

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hardship and sorrow, the negative by-products of Southern California's biggest downpour in years, threatened to mount today in the face of still more rain.

As the stubborn storm lingered for a third day, the Weather Bureau forecast another one or two inches for the Los Angeles Basin which already has received nearly three inches since the rains started Wednesday.

Some districts have been pelted even harder. In Topanga Canyon, rainfall reached 6.66 inches last night. Azusa had recorded 5.83 inches.

Although the heavy moisture was pronounced ideal for practically all crops, it caused numerous personal tragedies in urban areas: Two storm-related deaths; families forced to evacuate their flooded homes, mud and rock slides throughout the basin.

Slick pavements and the frequent landslides made automobile travel a nightmare.

Flooding ranged from wading depth to torrents that washed over the tops of cars. Artesia Boulevard in Gardena was turned into a huge lake at one point west of the Harbor Freeway yesterday.

Police closed a 30-block section of suburban Culver City due to flooding last night.

Dozens of families left their homes in the low-lying beach communities of the South Bay District as rising water made islands of some individual dwellings. Twenty-four persons were evacuated from flooded homes at Port Hueneme in Ventura County, where rainfall passed five inches.

Landslides were a constant menace. Especially hard hit were streets winding through the fire-denuded hills of the Bel-Air and Brentwood districts.

Youths Hit Ambulance With Auto—Three Die

NEWTON GROVE, N.C. (AP)—Six high school seniors piled into a car during their lunch hour and drove from the school parking lot in a hurry—right into the path of an ambulance.

Three were killed and the other three injured.

An elderly woman patient in the ambulance, which was taking her home from a hospital, was sent back to the hospital with critical injuries. Two other persons in the ambulance were injured.

The crash occurred outside the Hobbton High School yesterday.

Those killed were Charles Ray Godwin, O. J. Bradshaw and Kent Sutton, all 18.

Injured students were Harold Ray Jackson, Noble Jernigan and David Cox. Jackson was in critical condition.

June Warren, the ambulance patient, suffered internal injuries.

A friend of Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Gilbert Vann, was hospitalized in serious condition. Another ambulance passenger, Carey Robinson of Clinton, suffered minor injuries. Driver Tony Mason Lockerman was not hurt.

Hub Girl Hurt In 2-Car Crash In San Rafael

An 18-year-old San Anselmo girl was taken to San Rafael General Hospital yesterday afternoon after a two-car accident at Fourth Street and East Crescent Drive in San Rafael.

Genevra Louise Branhan of 36 Ash Street, was reported in good condition today after treatment for a possible whiplash neck injury.

Miss Branhan was a passenger in a car driven by Douglas Allen Isaac of Olema, who was cited for speeding after crashing into a car driven by William George Ahern of 76 East Crescent Drive, San Rafael. San Rafael police said Ahern was southbound on Crescent Drive and was hit by Isaac's car when he entered the intersection.

Marin Visitors Bureau Begins Tourist Survey

The steering committee of the Marin Visitors Bureau, recently organized successor to the former visitors bureau of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, has launched a survey of western tourist organizations before adopting formal by-laws or articles of incorporation.

The survey was started" to avoid pitfalls experienced in other communities by similar groups," said chairman Esther M. Dearth.

Rome Paper Says Luciano Was Poisoned

ROME (AP) — A Rome paper said today deported vice lord Charles (Lucky) Luciano was poisoned—either by his own hand or by an underworld executioner.

Telesera, an afternoon daily, said an autopsy has shown that Luciano swallowed potassium cyanide.

Luciano died Jan. 26 while he was at the Naples' airport to meet a visitor. Italian narcotics detectives said he was then being shadowed by agents investigating a 150-million-dollar drug ring.

The 64-year-old underworld figure met his visitor. Then they sipped glasses of fruit juice at a bar. Minutes later, while walking to Luciano's car, the vice lord dropped dead.

An autopsy was performed Jan. 28. Afterward medical authorities said a preliminary check showed Luciano had died of a heart attack. Authorities, however, said they would not make a final report until completion of laboratory tests on certain organs.

Today Telesera reported traces of potassium cyanide had been found in the viscera. The newspaper said the final autopsy report meant Luciano had not died of a heart attack, but had been killed or committed suicide.

5-Year-Old Girl Chokes To Death

OAKLAND (AP) — Tracy Scott, 5, choked to death yesterday on a two-inch long rubber toy rabbit that stuck in her throat, police reported.

The girl's mother, Mrs. A. R. Scott, found her unconscious. She died before doctors could remove the toy.

Chile Joins In Support Against Cuba

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Chile today denounced Cuba's "aggression" charges against the United States and supported action against Fidel Castro's government voted by the Organization of American States.

Chile was one of the "soft six" which abstained in the vote at Punt Del Este on the U.S. demand to expel Castro's regime from the hemispheric organization.

Chilean Ambassador Daniel Schweitzer told the General Assembly's main political committee Castro's charge that the United States is planning and carrying out aggression against Cuba was without evidence to support it.

"We must avoid the risk of sliding into the easy path of propaganda and the risks of the cold war which upset every tranquilizing effort in the Caribbean," he said.

Schweitzer added that Chile "has not lost hope that Cuba will come back into the inter-American system with full enjoyment of all its rights and observance of all its obligations."

Chile was the second Punta Del Este abstainer to speak on the U.S.-Cuban quarrel here. Its position paralleled that of Brazil, which yesterday declared Cuba had excluded itself from the OAS by declaring the Communist character of its government.

MOTHER DOG SEPARATED FROM PUPS

Somewhere in Tiburon are orphans of the storm that the Marin County Humane Society would like to restore to their mother.

The Humane Society at 5 p.m. yesterday picked up a mixed Labrador female dog, black and brown, with short hair and long tail, on a call from a market on Tiburon Boulevard.

The dog obviously has pups, said Mel L. Morse, Humane Society general manager. The pups obviously are hungry by now.

Mama dog is at the society's shelter at Third and Mary streets, San Rafael.

Mental Illness Awareness Urged In Marin Talk

Public awareness of mental illness and early treatment of mental problems are two of the most urgent concerns of a community today, members of the Marin Assn. for Mental Health were told Wednesday.

Warrington Stokes, executive director of the Alameda County Mental Health Assn., addressed about 150 members of the Marin group at its annual meeting at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

New officers, are: Mrs. Wilson Partridge of San Anselmo, president; Dr. Frances Sink of San Rafael, vice president; Mrs. Harry Glaze of San Anselmo, secretary, and George Henderson of Novato, treasurer.

More French is spoken by Washington, D. C. restaurant workers than any other foreign language. German is second, then Greek and Italian.

Disarmament Is Near —'By Peace Or Bomb'

"We are going to have to disarm in the near future — either by thermonuclear war or by saner methods," Dr. Robert Schutz, Lobbyist for Peace for Northern California, told a public meeting sponsored by People for Peace in Terra Linda last night.

"It is up to us to make sure we achieve it by saner methods," he continued in his address as one of three panelists speaking on the topic, "Peace, Our Only Shelter," in the multi-use room of Bernard Hoffman School. About 60 persons attended.

Schutz said he was "more encouraged about the possibilities for peace this year than last year," because of the existence of the United States Disarmament Agency created last fall and the Women's Strike for Peace.

Benjamin Seaver, peace education secretary for the American Friends Service Committee, likened mankind today to a "man who has hold of a power mower that has gone out of control." Half a trillion dollars has been spent on arms by the world since the end of World War II, he said.

He said the effect of a 10-megaton bomb would be as disastrous as that of a thousand-plane raid every night for 14 years. Three days of such raids on Hamburg created such firestorms that streets melted and people suffocated in their shelters, he said.

Dr. Robert Mishell, member of the Stanford University Scientists Committee on Radiation Information, said nuclear bomb fallout accelerates the aging process, the rate of cancer and the rate of mutation of future generations. He said this and other facts should cause serious doubt over the benefit of shelters in event of nuclear war.

The meeting was chaired by Norman Gurin of Terra Linda. People for Peace next will meet at 8 p.m. Feb. 14 at the home of Charlotte de Vry at 654 Woodbine Lane, Terra Linda.

Goldstein Pulls Out Of Running

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., San Anselmo attorney, today announced his withdrawal from the race for Democratic nomination for State Assembly.

Goldstein said he had become convinced he could not wage an effective campaign throughout the Marin-Sonoma district while continuing full-time practice of law in San Francisco.

"Professional commitments prevent me from conducting the fulltime campaign which is required," Goldstein said. He will, however, be active in the campaign for re-election of Gov. Edmund G. Brown, he added.

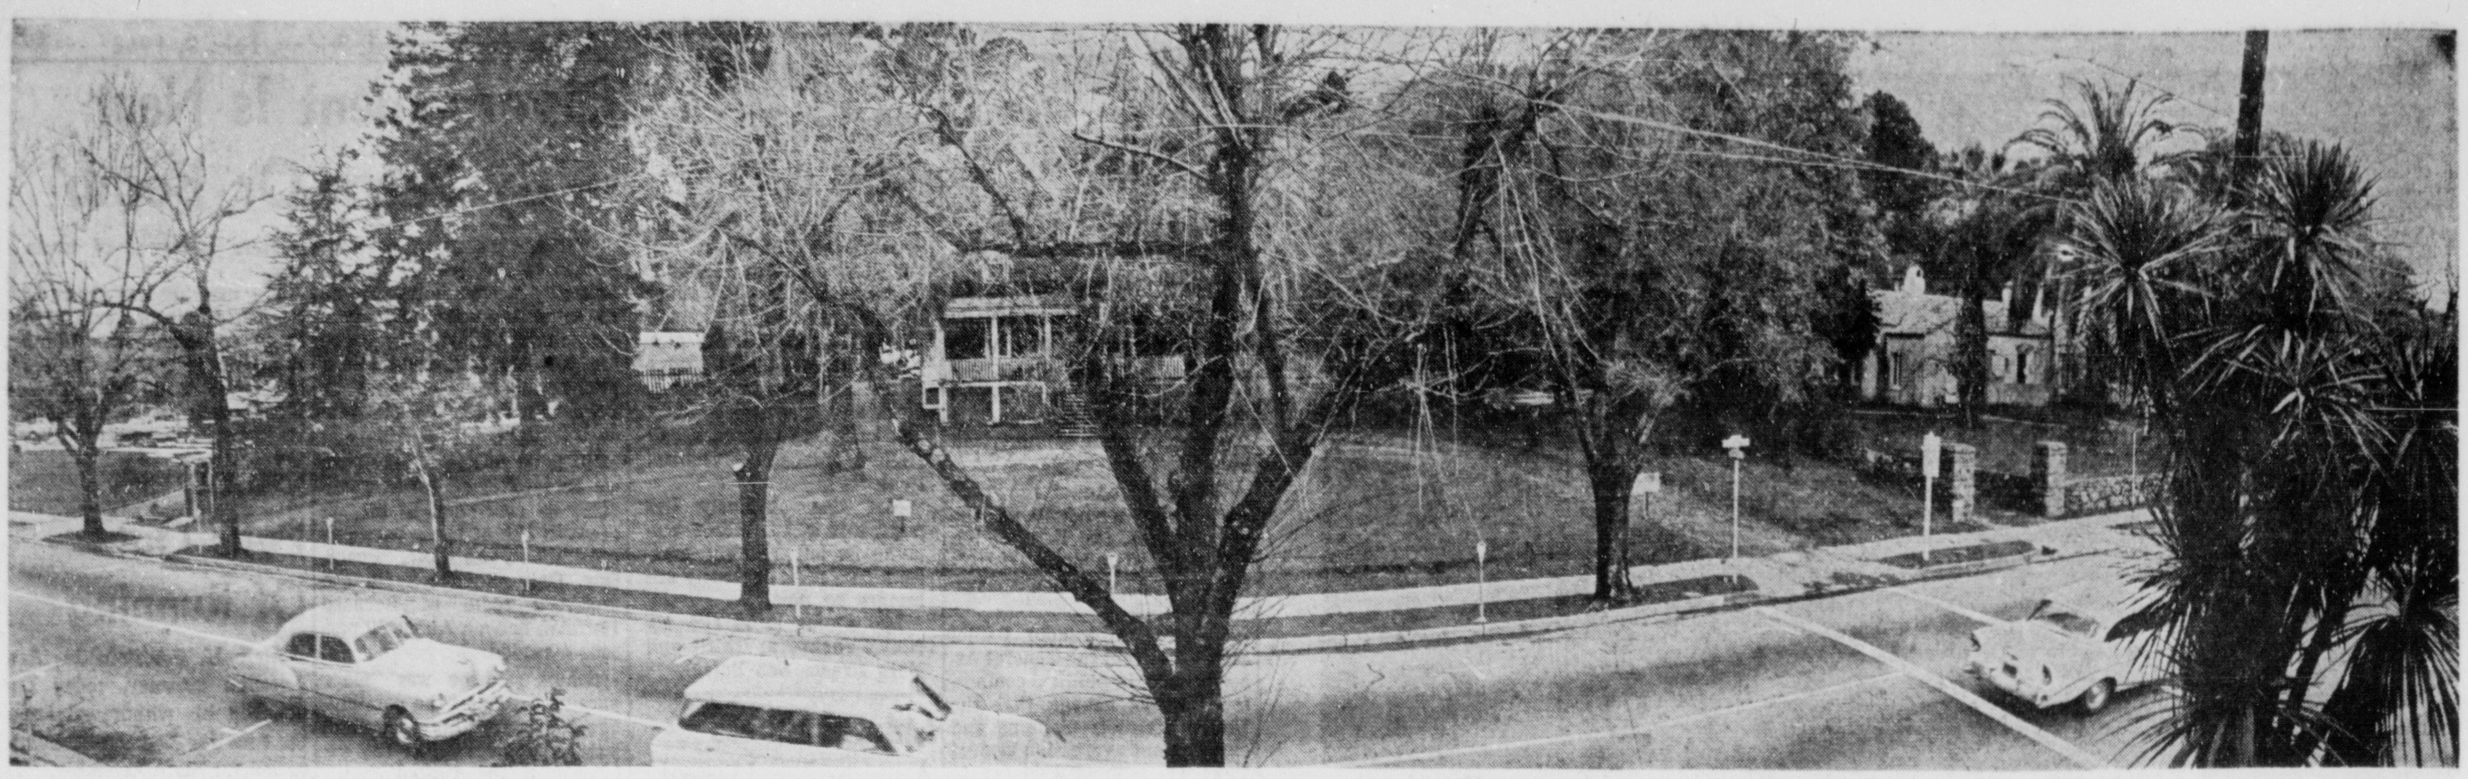

Goldstein's withdrawal leaves attorney Robert Carrow of Novato as the only avowed candidate for the Democratic nomination to oppose Republican incumbent William T. Bagley of San Rafael.

There were reports today, however, that some Democrats are trying to interest Dr. Paul O'Rourke, former Novato physician now living in Sonoma County, in making the race.

In withdrawing, Goldstein expressed appreciation to his supporters.

FUTURE MUNICIPAL CIVIC CENTER?

YMCA Model Legislature In Session

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO—Marin delegates met yesterday at the 14th annual California Young Men's Christian Assn. Model Legislature in Sacramento and heard Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson tell them that youth must take an active interest in government affairs. (See also story, page 2.)

Anderson urged the delegates to join the youth group of the political party of their choice.

A bill requiring mandatory redistricting of supervisorial districts after each federal census was introduced in the assembly by the Marin delegation after long discussion in committee. Mike Leone of San Rafael was author of the bill.

Buddy Weckel, from the Marin group, was elected assembly speaker pro-tem. Linda Brigham is Marin's representative in the model senate. Cathy Cazassa of San Rafael is assemblyman.

San Francisco Planners Call 2nd Span 'Sin'

Tiburon objections to the proposed second bridge from San Francisco were reinforced by outcries of "murder!" from the San Francisco Planning Commission yesterday.

Insisting that the project in present form "commits every sin in the book," Commissioner George Rockrise got support from another commissioner and the planning director in an attempt to censure highway engineer Norman Raab.

But after heated discussion the commission voted 4-2 to study the preliminary report for another week before taking any action.

Just as Marin residents have said a Tiburon landing would mar scenic beauty and create an impossible traffic situation, Rockrise said that from the San Francisco viewpoint the scheme comprised "absolute murder of open space, of the hills and the waterfront."

Bermuda includes more than 150 islands, only 20 of which are inhabited.

Quentin Prison Dope Trial Recessed—Woman Juror Sick

The San Quentin Prison dope-smuggling trial in Marin Superior Court was recessed today because a woman juror is ill.

Judge N. Charles Brusatori ordered the trial continued until Tuesday, when Capt. Carl G. Hocker of San Quentin Prison is scheduled to continue on the witness stand at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Beaudine J. Dallara of 28 Latham Street, San Rafael, a member of the seven-woman, five-man jury, had not been feeling well yesterday and was unable to attend this morning.

Prosecutor Bruce B. Bales has several more witnesses including state narcotics agents to testify against four persons accused of conspiring to smuggle heroin, marijuana and peyote into the prison.

Accused are Mrs. Pauline Herrera, 31, Los Angeles housewife suspected as being the heroin source; Mrs. Marie Frances Hall, 47, of Hayward, whose convict son, Thomas Devers, was slain after he had admitted his part in the narcotics traffic; and two convict inmates. The two inmates are Banjamin Gonzales, 28, Mrs. Herrera's brother; and Richard Rodriquez, 34.

Three others, originally indicted on similar charges, have confessed their guilt and have been sentenced or are awaiting sentence. They include Mrs. Anna Maria Kellam, 25, of Oakland; and convicts Clark McKeown, 29, and Robert T. Ballentine, 34.

Mrs. Kellam and Ballentine are the chief prosecution witnesses. McKeown refused to testify in court.

Case Against Sally Stanford Is Dismissed

Light cast on a lighting fixture problem by Sausalito restaurant owner Sally Stanford (Marsha Owen) brought dismissal in San Francisco Municipal Court yesterday of a suit against her for $98.

The California Collection Agency dropped its claim after she told Judge Bernard B. Glickfield she bought an old three-foot candle fixture for $20 in 1957 and it was badly damaged after she paid the Phoenix Electric Co. to polish, wire and install it in her Pacific Avenue home in San Francisco.

She asserted the company first installed it too high, then took it back to its shop and "threw it in the back of the truck and broke it all to hell." She said when the firm billed her for $98 she refused to pay. Edward Jackson, attorney for the collection agency, told the judge his firm wished to drop the suit.

Four Hurt As Driver Loses Control In Rain

Four men were injured early today when the driver lost control of his car during a heavy downpour on Highway 37 near Black Point.

A/2c Ray G. Stradley of the 78th Supply Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base was driving west when the car skidded, hit several traffic signs, overturned, and slid into the bank on the south side of the highway, according to California Highway patrol.

Stradley was treated at Hamilton Base Hospital for scalp cuts. A/3c Monty McCortney, 78th Supply Squadron, was treated for a cut ear. A/2c Parker D. Milgrim of the 78th Fighter Wing, was hospitalized with a bruised back.

William Albright, 25, of 509 Canyon Road, Novato, a civilian employee at the base, was treated at Marin General Hospital for forehead cuts.

Sheriff Probing Beating At Tam

Sheriff's inspectors today investigated a reported beating on the Tamalpais High School grounds Wednesday.

Mrs. Grace E. Silva of 17 Rose Court, Sausalito, complained that her 18-year-old son, Walt Joseph Silva Jr., was attacked and beaten and had to go to the doctor for treatment.

Sheriff's Deputy Dennis Shine said he got this account of the incident: Young Silva and a friend drove to the high school about 5 p.m. to pick up a girl friend. While they waited in the car for the girl, a youth about 17 walked up to the driver's side, mumbled something unintelligible, and punched Silva on the face.

Valentine's Day Party Tomorrow

The emphasis will be on dancing at the Valentine's Day party of the Corte Madera Lions Club to be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Entitled "Sweetheart Dance" the event will feature a presentation of the latest dance routines by the staff of the Arthur Murray Studio of San Rafael.

Council Told Ross Needs New Fireman

The town of Ross needs a new fireman and probably must get a new fire engine soon, the town council was informed last night.

Mayor Harry Scott said the town urgently needs a fireman to replace Asst. Chief Carl Olson, who will retire May 1 as having reached the mandatory retirement age of 65.

The council authorized Councilmen Frederick S. Allen and Russell Smith to investigate costs of a new fire engine and report to the council meeting of March 8.

"We have two engines but one is so antique that no one knows how old it is and underwriters look at it with skepticism," said town clerk Carroll A. Snyker.

Olson is half the paid fire fighting force. The other half is Chief A. T. Henrich. Volunteers make up the remainder of the department.

The council voted to call for bids to be opened at the March 8 meeting for reconstructing sidewalks along a section of Poplar Avenue. Recent rebuilding of the street left curbs higher than sidewalks in some areas, bringing complaints from the residents.

Requests by Edmund A. Tindell of Pomeroy Road and James A. Lill of 35 Laurel Place for setback variances on planned construction were put over to March 8.

Tomales High Girl Is Best Homemaker

Nancy C. Badger, a student at Tomales High School, was adjudged winner from her school in the 1962 Betty Crocker search for "American Homemaker of Tomorrow."

Her paper prepared in a knowledge and attitude test will be entered in competition with those of winners from other California high schools in a contest offering 102 scholarships totaling $110,000.

Marin Court To Call Mail Order Book Dealer In 'Tropic' Contempt

A San Francisco mail order book dealer will be called into Marin Municipal Court for possible contempt for allegedly mailing literature to the jurors in the "Tropic of Cancer" book trial last December while the trial was still in progress.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas yesterday ordered Harrison Mercer Kleinschmidt, alias J. D. Mercer, to appear in court at 10 a.m. Feb. 27 to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

Literature mailed to the jurors contained brochures advertising "adult books" and "physique photos," as well as advertisement on the "Tropic of Cancer."

The judge wants to know if Kleinschmidt tended to "substantially disrupt the due course of a criminal trial by your willfull and unlawful communication with jurors, whom you knew to be jurors" while the trial was in progress. Such communication would be an unlawful interference with the proceedings in a court of law, the judge declared.

Ten jurors have filed affidavits saying they got letters from Cosmo Book Sales on Dec. 11 while the trial was going on. Kleinschmit operates Cosmo Book Sales.

Donald E. Midyett, chief criminal investigator for the district attorney, said Kleinschmidt acknowledged that he had mailed out "Tropic of Cancer" advertising to many people including jurors, and that he had also left advertising cards in the courthouse corridors during the trial.

MARIN FILM FARE

An Adult Ghost Tale Due On Hub Screen

By LES DARD

There's much to be seen this weekend:

TAMALPAIS THEATER

A rarity comes to the Hub screen Sunday with "The Innocents." Here is an adult ghost story that will tantalize even the most blase among you.

It's based on Henry James' novel, "The Turn of the Screw." It tells of an English governess who takes on the care of two orphaned children housed by their uncle in a large and eerie mansion. She soon senses her wards are possessed of evil spirits.

I'll tell you no more, except to say that the climactic struggle between the governess and the "ghosts" will leave you doing the twist—in your seat.

Deborah Kerr plays the governess. The children are played by Pamela Franklin and Martin Stephens. Michael Redgrave is the uncle.

RAFAEL THEATER

An equal triumph is Billy Wilder's brilliant new cold war comedy, "One, Two, Three," opening Sunday at the Rafael.

James Cagney plays an ambitious Coca Cola executive in West Berline who thinks Iron Curtain countries are entitled to a pause that refreshes, too.

Before he can sign up the Russians, a feather-brained Coca Cola heiress (Pamela Tiffin) comes roaring into town and promptly elopes with a card-carrying East German (Horst Buchholz). When Cagney learns the girl's daddy—his boss—is on the way, he uses fancy footwork to straighten out the mess.

NOVATO THEATER

Happily held in our area—in Novato come Sunday — is "Flower Drum Song."

By now you're familiar with the story about the Chinese picture bride smuggled into San Francisco consigned to a young night club entrepreneur who just as quickly tries to get rid of her because he's chasing his singing-dancing star.

Starred in the all-Oriental cast are Nancy Kwan, Miyoshi Umeki, James Shigeta and Jack Soo.

MOTOR MOVIES

Audie Murphy re-enacts his own World War II heroism in "To Hell and Back," now showing at the Motor Movie.

The picture takes us to the shores of Salerno, the fierce fighting at the Volturno River, blood-spattered Anzio, and on into Germany itself.

SEQUOIA THEATER

"Pocketful of Miracles," a beguiling comedy starring Bette Davis, arrives Sunday.

Based on a Damon Runyan story, the picture tells how Apple Annie—Miss Davis—was transformed from a derelict beggar to a lady-for-a-day by a bunch of Times Square types.

Glenn Ford, Hope Lange, Thomas Mitchell and Edward Everett Horton also star.

LARK THEATER

Peter Sellers makes a shambles of British prison reform in "Two Way Stretch," now showing at the Lark.

He plays one of a trio of cynical convicts in a prison ruled by a governor who believes in gardening, basket-weaving and embroidery as a means of curing bad habits.

The three sneak out for a robbery one night, returning in time for roll call—the perfect alibi.

TIBURON PLAYHOUSE

"Pollyanna," starring Hayley Mills, is now at the Tiburon Playhouse along with "Three Worlds of Gulliver."

"Pollyanna" tells of a town filled with ornery citizens—until the poor little orphan girl arrives to teach them to play "the glad game," finding something to be happy about in everything.

Agnes Moorehead, Jane Wyman, Adolph Menjou and Richard Egan are also in the cast.

FAIRFAX THEATER

The "Secrets of Women," in its third week at the Fairfax, is a whimsical story concerning sisters-in-law waiting for their husbands to arrive at a summer home. They confide secrets of their marriages, each telling a moment of crisis.

Jazz Being Featured At Palate Restaurant

Jazz is being featured each Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. at the Palate at 163 Throckmorton in Mill Valley, with Bryce Rhode, formerly with the Australian Jazz Quartet, heading the musicians.

Also being featured at the eating spot is jazz art in latex, oils and watercolors by Farwell Taylor. The show will continue through March 1.

Out-Of-Towners Increasing At Spinnaker In Sausalito

Co-owner Bill McDonnell of the Spinnaker tells me his share of out-of-town customers has been increasing steadily since the first of the year—and it's not just because he was made foreman of the San Francisco Grand Jury.

Anyone who comes to Marin looking for scenery while lunching has a choice box seat in this Sausalito dinery for what goes on at the mouth of Richardson Bay. Nighttime likewise—but if you think that's a houseboat you see tied up at Belvedere Island it's only a window reflection of Sausalito's waterfront.

A CARAVAN of home lighting ideas will be on display at Sabella's Monday, Feb. 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The show will be in a highway coach and trailer divided into 10 typical rooms with new ideas on decorating with light—a production of Superior Electric Co. of Bristol, Conn.

Sabella's monthly Designer's Showcase luncheon will take place the same day.

NOW OPEN is the new Rico's Restaurant at Bridgeway and Turney in Sausalito, under the direction of Dick and Winnie Blacow.

Rico's goes in for American-style food—lunches and dinners—everyday except Tuesday. Dinner prices, says Dick, run from $1.75 to $4 a la carte with a daily menu change. Food end is being serviced by German chef Richard Rolwes, formerly of the Silverado and Houston country clubs. He's set to go to the Oakland Metropolitan Airport in July.

THE DOCK in Tiburon has Johnnie True playing in its cocktail lounge recently named the Clipper Room. He'll perform Wednesday through Saturday nights weekly.

A CHANGE at the helm of Rickey's Rancho Rafael, Ignacio, has placed Ray Lyon formerly of the Claremont Hotel, Berkeley, in charge. New here, too, is German chef Joachim (Fritz) Hillebrand from San Francisco to handle the kitchen.

I KNOW the menu at the Woodlands in Kentfield goes a long way toward satisfying that hungry feeling, but one that went even farther was mailed to G. W. Sauthoff, formerly of Kentfield and trailed him clear to Sweden, then to Mallorca before catching up—just a little reminder that there's no food like at home.

DELICIOUS new addition to the fare at Inverness Lodge is "ptachky a la Moravia," a rolled sirloin of beef stuffed with pork sausage, anchovies and dill pickle. Served to members of the Los Altos Hunt Club after their recent fox hunt it won as much acclaim as the chase.

POTPOURRI. La Petite Auberge will close after this weekend for kitchen remodeling—open again Feb. 27 . . . Eugene's has completed its dining room remodeling and is now open . . . Casa Madrona Hotel is remodeling its lodging quarters on the second floor—ready by March.

CAPTIVE OF STORM—Harry Craft, Independent-Journal business writer and restaurant columnist, found himself trapped by the storm in his home at 291 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, this morning. Sometime during the night, a 30-foot acacia tree had fallen across the driveway. Craft turned woodsman, and didn't spare that tree, to cut his way out.

in Lucas Valley from 8:15 to 9:30 a.m.

The Lucas Valley blackout silenced the outside bell at the Marinwood firehouse, making it necessary to hook up the line with the county communications center.

Some flooding was reported in Terra Linda streets.

Sir Francis Drake Boulevard flooded in Ross, the result of Corte Madera Creek overflowing. Two minor slides were reported on Scenic Drive and Florabelle Avenue.

In San Rafael there were a few broken store windows, one measuring 6 by 10 feet at Payless Drug Store at 866 Fourth Street. City Engineer Dominic Selmi said sewers backed up in a few spots but that eucalyptus trees "littering the streets" caused the biggest headache. The Bret Harte area, Selmi said, flooded normally."

In Larkspur, a tree clogged Corte Madera creek under Bon Air Bridge, flooding Bon Air Road with debris. A trailer parked at the site of the new firehouse in Greenbrae was blown over.

Granton Park in Kentfield began flooding about 3 a.m., Kentfield Fire Chief John McCleran reported. The water reached a depth of eight feet in spots.

Corte Madera's fire alarm system was shorted out early today by limbs rubbing against alarm boxes, Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson said.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. District Manager Douglas Horton reported "no appreciable outages" of service. A small number of phones on the Point Reyes Peninsula were knocked out of service and isolated instances of interruptions were reported, Horton said.

Western California Telephone Co. manager Lee Wise said there were no downed wires or interruptions in the Novato area.

Minor floods were reported at the triangle of Diablo Street, Novato and South Novato Boulevards and at Pine and Alice Streets in Novato. Minor damage from flooding was reported at Brice Brothers Market in Nave Shopping Center.

Traffic was halted on Highway 101 near Terra Linda when the highway there flooded, California Highway Patrol reported. A loaded lumber truck overturned near the Novato airport and the highway was temporarily blocked by a mud slide early today north of Novato. All CHP crews were called out at 5:35 a.m. today, but the situation was reported under control by 6:45 a.m.

Rainfall for the 24 hours up to 8 a.m. today in other parts of Marin was reported as: San Anselmo, 2.90 inches; Woodacre, 2.63 inches; Chevy Chase, Larkspur, 2.24; Fairfax, 2.12; Larkspur (downtown and Novato, 2.05; Point Reyes Station, 1.70.

Highway 50 to Nevada was closed temporarily by a snowslide east of Echo Summit. Later, autos and buses were able to get through but trucks were being rerouted over U.S. 40. Chains were required on Highway 50 between Twin Bridges and Meyers, and on Highway 40 between Cisco and Donner Lake. It was snowing this morning on both routes.

Arrested For Safe Burglary

Alfred Milton Coleman, 232 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, yesterday was arrested by Novato police and charged with the Oct. 14, theft of $115 and the Jan. 12 burglary of the safe both at the Marin Golf Club.

Police Chief Roy McLeran said Coleman admitted taking $250 that he had collected in a pool from club members, but denied taking $115 from the cash register.

Coleman, a former bartender at the club, was suspected of the safe burglary, McLaren said, because the thief looked under the clock radio for the key to the cash drawer and made himself a martini during the burglary. The martini is Coleman's favorite drink.

Dramatics Classes For 8-to-12 Group

There are openings for boys and girls from 8 to 12 years old in dramatics classes conducted by the San Rafael Recreation Department from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the E Street School, director Joseph D. Rodota announced today.

Tiburon Club Increasing Fee To $100

Directors of the Tiburon Peninsula Club last night voted to increase the initiation fee from the present $65 to $100 as of March 1.

Applications for membership which are received before March 1 will be accepted at the present rate.

The board voted to remodel the bathrooms and locker rooms before the pool reopens for the summer. A drinking fountain will be installed on the tennis courts and a floodlight will be placed on the grounds.

A monthly news letter will be inaugurated, the board decided.

'Pushed Wife Around,' Husband Due In Court

Barnett Clyde Bostic, 30, of 508 Cane Street, Larkspur, is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. to answer to a charge of disturbing the peace after his wife signed a citizens complaint today in the district attorney's office.

Bostic was arrested yesterday at 5 p.m. by Larkspur police at request of Mrs. Betty Arlene Bostic who claimed her husband came home yesterday and "pushed her around." Bostic was freed in lieu of $131 bail.

CAUGHT 'EM IN STREET—Sausalito City Manager Charles A. Brown displays string of herring he picked up on Bridgeway Boulevard while it was flooded early today by 25-foot waves that not only swept across the street but into first floors of houses. Brown took the fish home, cleaned them and put them in the refrigerator. (Independent-Journal photos)

Muir Beach Well Site Mixed Up

There's a well site mixup at Muir Beach.

For four years the Muir Beach Community Services District thought it owned its well site at Highway 1 near Pacific Way. Recently, president Allison E. Schofield, checking the deed, discovered there was no easement or right to the site.

Schofield said both the Muir Beach Co., which turned the water system operation over to the district in 1958, and Dr. Gordon Havstad of Tiburon, who owns adjoining property, thought the deed contained the easement.

Complicating the matter is the fact that the well site is being appraised with Havstad's land to make a property settlement in the divorce suit brought by Havstad's wife, Paula. The suit goes to trial Feb. 26.

Deputy County Counsel Robert A. Smallman, attorney for the district, said that when the deed to Havstad was executed, the site was under public utilities commission control and therefore the Muir Beach Co. had no right to sell.

$65,000 Trust Is Set Up For Marin Woman

A $65,000 trust fund for Miss Edythe Foster of San Rafael was provided in the will of her cousin, Mrs. Philip Van Horne Lansdale, who died at the age of 92 in her San Francisco home Feb. 1.

The will, on file for probate in San Francisco, provides that principal and income from the trust are to go to the grandchildren of the late Mrs. George B. Pillsbury of Ross, Mrs. Lansdale's sister.

Mrs. Lansdale was a former summer resident of San Rafael. For a number of years she lived part of each year in a home built on Irwin Street by her father, Sidney Mason Smith, an early-day president of California Packing Corp. The home, long a showplace, is still standing.

Firemen Appoint Two Committees

Two committees were appointed by the Tiburon Volunteer Firemen Wednesday, according to Joseph J. Murphy, president.

Victor Avilla, chairman, Allen A. Olson and Charles W. Pruett will investigate costs to paint the fire truck at Station No. 2.

A plaque honoring retired volunteer firemen will be planned by Chief Frank J. Busher and fire commissioner Fred C. Hannahs.

Jones and his family reside at 20 Olive Avenue.

The seats of Councilmen Frederick S. Allen and John Witter expire in April. Allen earlier this week announced he would run for re-election. Witter, who recently left the hospital after an operation, said he would not run.

Howard W. Schoof, 40, of 2033 Shady Lane, Novato, yesterday filed for one of the two positions open on the Novato City Council. He was the fourth person to file.

He and his wife, Betty, have two daughters, Ann, 10, and Gayle, 4.

JOHN F. HARRIS
Ross Police Officer

New Officer Hired For Ross Police

The Ross police force was increased to three men last night as the town council hired former Deputy Sheriff John Franklin Harris for the department.

Actually, working strength will be only two as Officer L. E. Flowers, who is due to retire in May, has been ill for several months and may not return to his duties before retirement. Chief Joseph A. Regoni has been carrying the police work of the Town of Ross alone.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., Harris, 31, settled in Marin County in 1946, after his discharge from the Navy. He served in the South Pacific during World War II.

He became a deputy sheriff seven years ago, resigning Feb. 1.

Couple Files Suit For $311,540

A Kentfield couple has filed a $311,540 suit in Federal District Court in San Francisco to collect insurance on heirloom Russian jewelry which they say was stolen from their hotel room in Acapulco, Mexico.

Joseph M. Wilner, a San Francisco insurance broker, and his wife, Margaret, of 310 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield, reported the jewels stolen while they were on vacation in Mexico last year.

Royal Insurance Co., Ltd., a British firm which insured the jewels, has refused payment because it questions "evidence of the theft and existence or value of the jewels."

Lagunitas School Work Finished

Work on the addition to Lagunitas School is finished except for a few details such as completion of grading, delayed by the rainy weather, the Lagunitas School District board was told last night.

One roof drain also needs attention, Supt. Clifford L. Fry said. The five new classrooms have been occupied since October and the administration building has been in use since the first of the year.

Because the next meeting normally would fall on Washington's birthday, the board will meet Feb. 21, Fry announced.

OBITUARIES

Flo Mae Christian Succumbs

Funeral services will be held Monday for Flo Mae Boyles Christian, longtime resident of Tamalpais Valley, who died yesterday after a short illness at her home at 726 Cabin Drive.

Mrs. Christian, 51, was a native of Arkansas. She lived in California 30 years and 25 years in Tamalpais Valley. She was a member of the Auxiliary to Muir Woods Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and of Amaranths of San Rafael.

Her husband, Edward J. Christian, is shop foreman for Northwestern Pacific Railroad at Willets. Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Orrell G. Boyles; a sister, Ruby A. Deckwa of Modesto, and a brother, Irving E. Boyles of Atwater, Merced County.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. at the Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno.

Marin City To Honor Quiett, Barron

A special meeting will be held by the Marin City Tenants Council to honor two Marin City men, James Quiett and Theo Barron, public affairs chairman Hardy Westmore said today.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the tenants council Wednesday. Westmore said Quiett is to be honored as being the first Negro in Marin City to have been named to the Marin County Housing Authority board. Barron will be honored for having been named as a member of the county grand jury.

The tenants council decided that it will meet Feb. 19 and make nominations from the floor to fill five vacancies of the board. The new members are to serve six months, after time there is to be an election, Westmore said.

Westmore and Dan Hayden, president, submitted their resignations as board members last night, to become effective after new members are chosen to replace them.

$1,500 Home Loot In Mill Valley

A burglar broke into the John S. Oberg home at 5 Kent Way in Mill Valley yesterday, carting off $1,500 worth of personal property, including a mink coat and a hi-fi set.

Sheriff's deputies said a kitchen window had been broken for entry.

Oberg told officers he returned from San Francisco about 6:50 last night and found his home ransacked.

Let Us Have The Truth About The Bond Program

There is much criticism and praise at present for Gov. Edmund G. Brown's two billion 885 million dollar state budget presented to the Legislature Monday.

It has many facets. Criticism and praise in general so far has had political overtones. We have much to study yet before we decide whether it is a good budget.

But there was one part of it about which we would like to protest vociferously. That is the portion dealing with a switch in emphasis in the use of bond issues and the implication in the governor's message that actually this switch isn't going to cost the taxpayers more money.

Brown in his message proposed a "drastic new approach" to the financing of state park land acquisition—bonds; 100 million dollars worth to replace tidelands oil revenue which he took away from the parks and put into the general fund.

Then he wants another 270 million dollar bond issue for construction of college, junior college and other public buildings.

Perhaps bonds are the best way to get this money; we'd have to study them further to decide. What we don't like is the governor's insistence that this really won't be an added bond burden, that this "increased use of bonds . . . is met by decreasing use in two other areas."

What he means is that because of the "declining volume of new bond sales" for the state veterans farm and home loan program, we'll need to approve only 250 million dollars this year instead of 400 million dollars worth. The governor figures we "save" 150 million dollars. Then too, the need for local school construction funds is decreasing rapidly and he's asking only 200 million, instead of 300 million here.

Thus he has "saved" a total of 250 million dollars in bonds right there.

This is like the wife who goes shopping and finds a full length fur coat for $5,000 and a shortie for $3,000. She decides on the shortie and so, having saved $2,000 for her husband, goes out and buys a complete outfit to go with the coat.

There is one other vital misimpression in the governor's bond requests.

The veterans farm and home bonds are now, and always have been, self-retiring. The taxpayers have never had to pay a cent to support these bonds. The local schools bonds are, to a great extent, self-retiring, although here, of course, the taxes are paid at the local, rather than the state level.

But neither of the two bond issues the governor substitutes has any element of paying for themselves directly. Both of them will be direct drains on the taxpayer's purse.

It may well be that we will support passage of one or both of the governor's proposed bond issues, we don't know. But if we do, it will be on the basis of their value and not some weasle-worded half truth to try to make them palatable.

Publishers Honor John Long

Newspaper publishing is a two-sided activity; both a business and a profession. The successful publisher tries to keep abreast of new developments in both fields. So, publishers of 500 newspapers—some the largest in the state—are in Coronado for the 74th annual convention of the California Newspaper Publishers Association.

Marin County's representation will include three Independent-Journal executives; Past Presidents Justus F. Craemer and Roy A. Brown, and Jack Craemer, CNPA treasurer. This is the farewell meeting for John B. Long as general manager, a position he assumed 34 years ago, when CNPA had 30 small newspapers as members. And for his energetic leadership, his California publishers will extend deserved honors.

Sing Along With Mitch— All The Way To The Bank

NEW YORK (AP)—The most famous beard in America belongs to a man of whom fellow musicians say, "He may not be the world's best oboe player—but he's the richest."

Mitchell William Miller met an oboe for the first time when he was 12 and had been invited to play in the high school band. The bigger boys had grabbed all the trombones and trumpets. Little Mitchell took the only instrument left—an oboe.

He went on to become one of the nation's best-known oboists, and some of his solo recordings now sell for $25.

But Mitch Miller hit the road to fame, fortune—and a dozen six-bit cigars a day—when he switched from Bach and Mozart to popular music.

As a record firm executive, his inventive genius helped guide to success such singers as Rosemary Clooney, Frankie Laine, Johnny Ray.

But for two years Mitch ran into nothing but a series of blank walls when he tried to sell his biggest idea — a television program featuring nostalgic old popular songs.

"I never got a form refusal," he recalled. "I got first-hand refusals from all the top guys. They said, 'It'll never work on TV.'"

But when Mitch finally got his chance on a fill-in spot, it turned out his kind of nostalgic singing was just what the public wanted.

Today his "Sing Along With Mitch" show is one of the top 10 TV programs. Thirteen of his group's 15 record albums are among the 100 current top-sellers.

IN LESS THAN four years their recordings have grossed 45 million dollars — which Miller believes is a record for so short a time.

Mitch is grateful now to the executives who once turned him down.

"MAYBE THEY did me a favor," he said. "Timing is everything in this business. If you have a great idea and don't expose it at the right time, it dies a-borning.

"I went through two frustrating years, but if I had got a trial at the start, my idea might have been a colossal flop."

THE CYNIC'S CORNER By Interlandi

Mansfield Lewis told Marin supervisors that the county's new two-way radio system was working with surprisingly clear reception "from one end of the county to the other."

A sum of $45,000 was set aside by the state Division of Highways for planting of alfalfa, shrubs and flowers on the new highway from San Quentin Wye and the Puerto Suello Hill north of San Rafael.

'Dining, Wining' Spurs Business

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

We were so pleased with your food and wine guide and the resultitng business therefrom. We feel it our duty to write and tell you.

The articles, the ads and the general layout showed a great amount of careful, well considered work and time. We feel it stands out in comparison with similar sections in San Francisco dailies. Our customers were highly appreciative and praised the format of this section, saying they found it very informative and easy to read.

In the three days following the publication, we experienced the largest volume in our history. This increased business level is continuing unabated. Heretofore, there has been no form of advertising or publicity that has anywhere near compared with this effort in results.

We sincerely hope this will be a permanent feature in the I-J. We look forward to participating in your next Dining and Wining Guide.

Hearty congratulations.

Keeney Closing Council Service

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

My term as a member of the Sausalito City Council expires in April. With its conclusion I will have served for more than 16 years as a councilman, including a short term as mayor.

The city has undergone considerable physical change since I first was elected to the council, yet the distinctive character and flavor of our community has remained essentially untouched. If we are to continue along this path—to progress and grow, yet preserve our unique and colorful traditions—the City Council must continue to exert the constant vigilance and strong leadership which has marked its course during most of my years in office.

Events of recent months strongly emphasize this point. The new councilmen whom the residents will elect in April must be prepared to face many problems . . . They must carefully consider and regulate the future growth of Sausalito in keeping with our geographic location and our hilly contours. They must maintain taxes within reasonable limits, yet not attempt to hold them at a popularly low level which might threaten our city's safety, health and welfare . . .

In addition to my council responsibilities over the years I have had time for other civic and community pursuits. I proudly number among these my association for 13 years with the Marin Council of the Boy Scouts, serving as a past exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, two terms as a member of the Marin County Grand Jury . . . participation in the San Francisco Business and Property Owners Association, of which I am a director and past president.

Unfortunately, of late it is increasingly difficult to participate in activities of this nature due to the pressing demands of council membership. For this reason, as well as pressures of business and other personal considerations, I feel that the time has arrived for me to step down as city councilman at the end of my term . . .

It is my hope that, by making this declaration some two months before the April election, other residents may be encouraged to state their candidacy with the knowledge that they will have ample time to express their views and position. Correspondingly, Sausalito voters would thus have greater opportunity for more careful scrutiny of these candidates.

As a resident and homeowner in Sausalito for over 20 years, I definitely intend to continue my active interest in the city's future. If it is deemed helpful, I will stand ready at any time to offer constructive advice and counself on civic affairs to any who might solicit it.

To prove what a smart gal Mike picked for his bride, there's the day they went to be married but didn't have a cent to pay the clergyman. "Sorry," said the latter, "but the fee in advance is necessary."

"Might you," suggested Mike's girl, "be givin' me leave to go git the money?" Permission granted, she sped off and soon returned with the cash. After the ceremony, she asked, "No matter what you do now, this marriage is legal, isn't it?" "It certainly is," the clergyman assured her.

"Then bless yer heart," said Mike's bride. "Here's the ticket for yer hat. I picked it up in the vestry and pawned it."

"I hate babies," announced Clare. "Now you stop saying that," commanded Mrs. Sisson. "Remember you were a baby yourself not too long ago."

"I know," admitted Clare, "but I didn't want the scissors then."

S.F. Debut Of Inez Storer Show Looked Like Arty Day In Marin

THE CASUAL art lover, walking into the Triangle Art Gallery in San Francisco last week, was hard-pressed to tell who was who.

Without a program, one couldn't distinguish between the artists, art critics and lawyers. As a matter of fact, the hall of culture had the look of the anteroom of the district attorney's office in the Marin County Courthouse.

The occasion for the convivial gathering (and that it was, what with rare old sherry flowing freely) was the formal opening of an exhibit of 40 paintings by Inez Storer of Point Reyes Station, one of the loveliest artist I can recall seeing since my smock-clad youth.

What's more, she can paint.

I COULD ONLY assume the lawyers were present for one of two reasons, or both: (1) Marin County attorneys are cultured, and (2) Inez is the wife of Tom Storer, deputy district attorney under Roger Garety.

In addition to husband Tom, seen mingling with the guests were Garety, his assistant, Bruce Bales, and deputies Haddon Roth and Roy Vallarino, all of whom could be overheard discussing umbers, perspective, dynamic symmetry, torts and writs of mandamus.

Having, as a one-time art student, consumed untold gallons of red wine in ateliers from Chicago to the sun-drenched shores (while solving the problems of the arts, sciences and universe), I feel qualified to step in as an art critic. I don't know much about art, but I know what I like, as the saying goes.

Using oil, gouache, collage, straight watercolor, casein, ink and oil crayon, she has put together a show well worth seeing. The convenient gallery hours of noon to 9 p.m. seven days a week (through Feb. 24) guarantees a trip across the bay free of rush hour traffic.

AT HER BEST in gouache, I feel the artist becomes heavy-handed when she turns to oil, losing the clarity of color and strong statement of fact so apparent in the watercolors.

Her draftsmanship is excellent, showing to advantage in three nudes, done almost non-objectively yet imparting the unmistakable weight and lush form of the human figure. The three paintings would make a delightful set.

Whimsey abounds. Almost hilarious are "Two Nuns Looking at a Ferris Wheel," "The Children's Hour Sets Sail" and "The Guests."

It would not be easy to choose the outstanding piece of the show, but I would feel safe in casting my vote for a delightfully delicate gouache entitled "Gulls In Flight." I wish I had painted it.

One can see, however, why she walked off with the grand prize in last year's Marin Art and Garden exhibit in Ross. My bet is she will win many more—although it is hard to believe she can turn out such a volume of work what with four young Storers, who must be forever underfoot about the studio.

And, before it goes further, I want to scotch as idle gossip the story that Inez deliberately placed herself in front of the nude paintings as the distrct attorney passed before them.

It just happened that way, she insists.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Old Guard Image Of Republican Party Ignores National Picture

GEORGE ROMNEY is a Republican who "recognizes that the Republican image needs improvement." In the Democratic party "union influence is too great," and the Republican party—at least in Michigan—has been "excessively influenced" by business pressure groups. Romney's remedy, which presumably would improve the Republican "image," is to respond less to organized minorities and rely on the unorganized citizenry.

I cannot feel that this throws much light on the problem of the Republican party. The problem is how to become the majority party instead of being, as it has for over 30 years, the minority party. The fallacy in Romney's diagnosis is that he talks as if all "business" had the same views of policy and of its interests, and so too all "unions," and that a sound Republican party should divorce itself from both.

This is impossible. The true political line for a party is to associate itself with the enlightened, progressive wing in the business world and the enlightened, progressive wing in the union world. When a party can do that, it commands the center, and is unbeatable.

SINCE THE GREAT Depression and advent of Franklin Roosevelt, the Republican party organization has been in control of Republican congressmen who had such safe seats that they survived the Roosevelt landslides. Although there are exceptions, most Republican seniors, who have acquired leadership by being re-elected, come from the countryside, suburbs, and small manufacturing towns.

They are not in touch with the urban masses. They are not in touch with the bigger industrialists and bankers in big cities, with the businessmen who have wider experience at home and abroad. For most of this century, there has been a large divergence inside the business world and inside the Republican party on questions of provincialism and parochialism as against nationalism and internationalism.

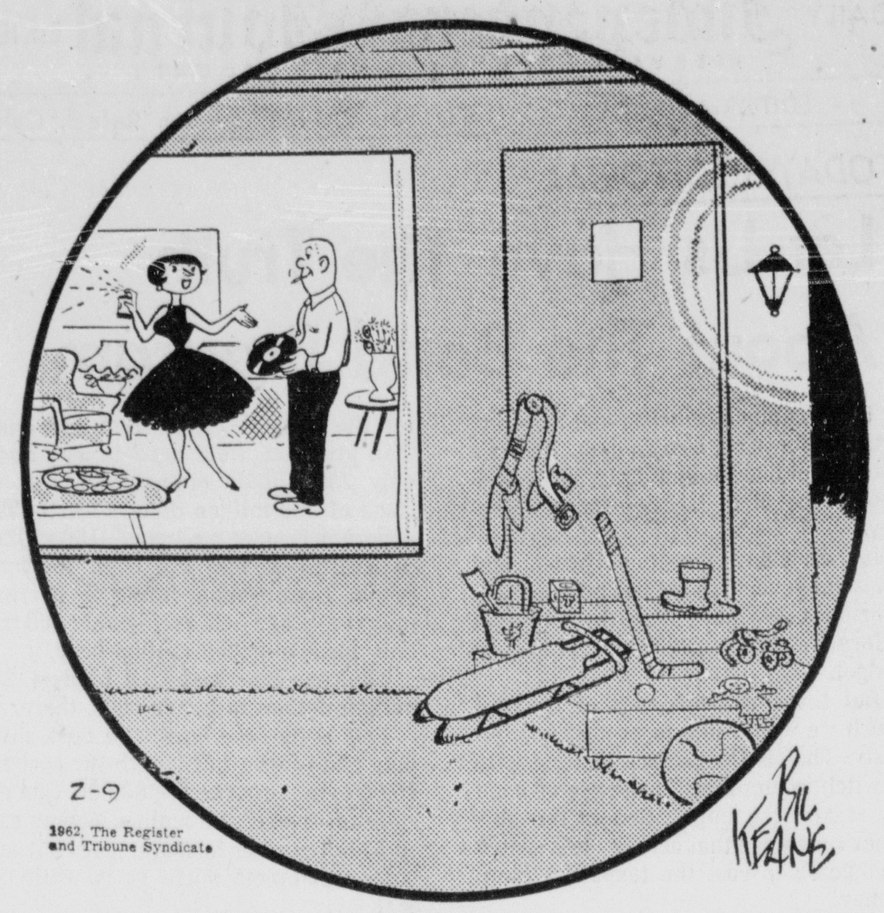

Proof that this is the problem is that never in the past 30 years have the Republicans chosen for their presidential candidate a man belonging to the Congressional ruling group. The Congressional group, which is dominant in Congress, speaks for the Republicans as a minority party.

Their strongest, wisest and best leader was Robert Taft. But three times the party convention denied him the nomination and chose a candidate not identified with the Congressional Old Guard.

WHY? BECAUSE the state politicians and the larger urban business interests have known that no Republican could be elected president if he were an isolationist and, in face of modern industrial development, a reactionary. The only Republican who was in fact elected was Gen. Eisenhower, and until he was nominated he could not be described accurately as any kind of Republican. When it came to Nixon, he did his best not to identify himself with the Old Guard, and made overtures to Gov. Rockefeller.

The fact that the Republican party has been nominating men who do not qualify as Congressional Old Guard Republicans—plus the fact that all but Eisenhower lost the election, has created a theory in the Old Guard that the Republicans will win — apart from a freak election like that of Eisenhower — only when they stand unreservedly for the ideas of the Congressional Old Guard. Sen. Goldwater has persuaded himself that there is a vast submerged Republican majority which will go to the polls and vote only for an Old Guardsman.

ALONG MARIN'S SPORTS TRAIL

By JIM GILMARTIN

Pro Baseball Riddles Marin Lineup; Busy Sports Schedule Next Month

If you think you have troubles, Bunkie, bend a lobe in this direction and I'll clue you in on the sad case of Mr. Ed Grimm.

Mr. Grimm is baseball coach at College of Marin and just a few months ago was as excited as a kid on Christmas Eve as he was contemplating all the goodies Santa was going to leave under the tree for the 1962 baseball season.

BARNEY DE BISSCHOP

"Man," Mr. Grimm shook his head yesterday, "I figured this was going to be our year. We haven't broken any world records in baseball in the past, but when I looked at my prospective 1962 roster I felt like a Casey Stengel. I'd never had it so good."

Today, however, Mr. Grimm is appropriately named, for three of his choicest prospects have been devoured by that hungry monster known as Organized Baseball. Before Mr. Grimm could say Abner Doubleday, outfielder Vince Pallavicini, pitcher Nino Geminiani and shortstop Ron Blum had become professionals. The two "i" boys succumbed to the almighty buck offered by the Detroit Tigers and Blum the ripe plum was plucked by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

To compound the fracture of Grimm's once promising roster, All-Star first baseman Russ Adams went marching off to military duty and a couple of other prizes were axed by Marin's stiff eligibility requirements.

And when you lose that kind of talent in so short a period of time, man, you've got problems. Come on, Ed, Grimm and Bear It.

MARCH WILL be a banner month for Marin sports, what with at least four major events on the calendar during a 15-day period.

An injury conference, football coaches clinic, a wing-ding golf tournament and a sports and boat show will share the spotlight, according to chairmen of the events who have paraded through the office during the past week.

Leading off the busy month will be the injury conference co-sponsored by the Marin Medical Society and the Marin County Superintendent of Schools Office.

The conference, according to chairman Dr. Arnold Nutting, is set for March 10 at Dominic's Restaurant, San Rafael and will be a day-long affair dealing with causes and prevention of sports casualties. Main speaker will be University of Washington grid coach Jim Owens. Other speakers will include an array of coaches, medics and school officials.

The next day, March 11, the Marin Golf and Country Club will present its annual Italian Golf Festival which last year went over with a bang. Joe and Syl DeMaestri are working on the details now and say it will be even bigger and better this year. They report entrants are presently training on burgandy and salami. Additional info next week.

MEANWHILE, down at Redwood High School Rapid Robert Troppmann reports his annual grid coaches clinic is set for March 17 with California's leading high school mentors on the speaking agenda.

Troppmann reminds us that the Redwood clinic is the largest of its kind in the state.

NEXT TO the March menu will be the ninth annual Marin Rod and Gun Club Sports and Boat Show at San Rafael's Bermuda Palms Hotel March 23-24-25 and chairman Barney DeBisschop reports this one should even top the past shows.

An innovation this year, the cigar-chomping DeBisschop notes, will be a human fishing derby sponsored by the Associated Sportsmen of California in the Bermuda Palms pool.

Men anglers will "fish" for boys wearing harnesses. The idea is for the men to reel their "catches" to the end of the pool, but the boys will have other ideas. Sounds like fun.

So you see, March will come in like a lion and leave with a splash.

TO REPHRASE an old saying, for Willie McCovey's benefit: "If at first you don't succeed, try playing the outfield."

IN VIEW of recent courtroom action, I'd say an attorney named Melvin is giving Horace Stoneham a Belli-ache.

A NOTICE of a baseball sign-up for kids was sent to the I-J sports desk noting that boys "must present proof of birth."

We take it that if you can't prove you were born you can't play baseball. Kid, you've got other problems.

Fish, Game Violations Net Fines

Illegal operations involving Marin County cockles and salmon led Wednesday to four fines and a "probation on condition of work" order by Judge David R. Baty in Northwest Judicial District Court at Point Reyes Station.

Harry Bowman of Inverness Park was fined $50 for taking cockles wtihout a license, having cockles over the 50-per-day limit, and cockles under the required minimum inch-and-one-half diameter.

Emile Lagier, James Antone and Harry Miller of Santa Rosa were each fined $35 for possessing cockles over the daily limit. These four arrests were made by fish and game warden George Nelson of Petaluma.

A 19-year-old student, William Foehr of San Francisco, was put on probation one year on condition that he put in two eight-hour work days in Samuel Taylor State Park where he had attempted to gaff a spawning salmon.

John Peter Jensen of San Francisco was fined $25 for removal of a spawning salmon from Papermill Creek in the state park. Arrests of Jensen and Foehr were by wardens Nelson and Al Giddings of Woodacre.

Ex-Tam Star Scores 41

Former Tamalpais High School's most valuable basketball player of 1961, Conrad Hoegter last night had a field day as he amassed 41 points against Andrewson's of San Rafael to bring the Mill Valley Boys Club varsity its 13th straight win this season.

Tars Shoot For League Lead This Week

College of Marin Tars, now in the thick of one of the tightest conference battles in many a year, will be out to even a score and get a crack at first place when they move into a two-game home set this weekend.

At 8 o'clock tonight at the Redwood High gymnasium the Mariners tackle Siskiyous Junior College, the team that handed Marin its only conference loss of this season. Siskiyous is now locked in a tie for first place with American River, each of the teams having a 5-1 record. American River is up for a single game with Yuba this weekend.

Tomorrow at the same time at Drake, Marin meets Shasta Junior College, a club that has had a slow start but is picking up steam with the asquisition of several new players this past week.

Marin will be minus a good deal of its backboard strength with the announcement that Jim Mitchell, 6-5 center, has been declared scholastically ineligible.

Mike Kavanagh, who stands 6-3½, and has been alternating with Mitchell, has been named to start in place of the big rebounder. The loss trims the Tar squad to 13 players.

Head coach Cal Riemcke called the Siskiyous team a well balanced, high spirited club.

"No trouble getting the boys up for the Siskiyous game," said Riemcke. "They're still smarting from that first contest. I only hope these high weather spirits don't dissipate for the Shasta game."

Riemcke is looking for his Tars to turn on the fast break and control the tempo of the game.

"We've been successful so far whenever we've been able to force the other team to play the game at our pace," Riemcke said.

"It looks like a tough weekend," he added.

N.Y. STRIPS OLD ARCHIE OF TITLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission followed the example of the National Boxing Assn. today and stripped ancient Archie Moore of another piece of his light heavyweight boxing championship.

The action was taken after Moore, 45, had failed to heed repeated warnings from the commission to sign for a title defense against either Harold Johnson, the NBA champion from Philadelphia, or Doug Jones, the No. 2 contender from New York.

PLAN FIGHT

After vacating Moore's title, the commission directed Johnson and Jones to make plans for a title bout.

The NBA took away recognition from Moore for failure to defend the crown a year ago and installed Johnson as champion when he knocked out Jesse Bowdry.

Moore, who still had been considered champion in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, defended his piece of the title last June 10 when he outpointed Italy's Giulio Rinaldi in New York.

Massachusetts and the European bodies are expected to follow the New York example in taking away recognition from Moore.

Ingo Favored In Comeback Bout Tonight

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI)—A lighter and faster Ingemar Johansson is confident that his "new speed" will win his opening comeback against West Indian Joe Bygraves tonight and ultimately recapture the heavyweight crown.

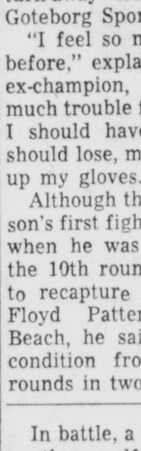

Because of the surprising speed and punch 29-year-old Ingo displayed in training, he is favored at 5-1 to beat Bygraves in their return bout before a turn-away crowd of 6,200 at Goteborg Sports Halle.

"I feel so much faster than before," explained the smiling ex-champion, "I don't expect much trouble from Bygraves. If I should have trouble— if I should lose, maybe then I hang up my gloves."

Although this will be Johansson's first fight since March 13, when he was knocked out in the 10th round of his attempt to recapture the title from Floyd Patterson at Miami Beach, he said he is in good condition from sparring 150 rounds in two months.

In battle, a wolf will not slay another wolf that offers its neck in a gesture of submission. But a dove, legendary harbingers of peace, will ruthlessly peck to death a helpless opponent.

AFTER THE ENGINE BLEW

A "Birdcage" Maserati, driven by Augie Pabst of Milwaukee, blew its engine and crashed yesterday during a practice lap at Daytona Speedway in Daytona Beach, Fla. Pabst was going 150 miles-per-hour when he hit the guard wall, and was thrown clear of the car. He was reported in fair condition at Halifax hospital today. (AP Wirephoto)

PHOENIX OPEN

Palmer's Tee Shots Called 'Unbeliveable'

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, his game once again sharp, is off to a torrid start in the $35,000 Phoenix Open with a three-stroke lead going into today's second round.

While first-day leaders often fade, Palmer usually gets better with each 17 and is especially noted for great final rounds.

He began defense of his Phoenix championship yesterday by shooting six birdies on the first seven holes and ended with a seven-under-par 64.

Lean Art Wall Jr. presented the most immediate threat to the Miami, Fla., muscleman with 67.

Jack Nicklaus, new to the pro entourage after winning the U.S. Amateur and National Intercollegiate titles last year, was grouped with five others at two-under-par 69. U.S. Open champ Gene Littler was among 10 at 70.

NEAR RECORD

Palmer's opening round was only a stroke over the tournament record for the 6,765-yard Phoenix Country Club course. It supported earlier evidence that he has regained the touch that earned him golf's largest bankroll in 1960 and second largest last year.

He was under par in each of the five rounds of last week's Palm Spring tourney, where he grabbed his first victory since the British Open in July.

Palmer turned his power loose on a course that has narrow, tree-lined fairways. He outdrove playing partners Bob Rosburg and Davey Hill by as much as 50 yards off each tee. And then he got some putts down, too.

"I've never seen anything like the way he blasted it off the tee," said Rosburg. "It was unbelievable."

As good as it was Palmer's opening spurt could have been better. His chip missed by five inches on the third hole, where a par 4 broke what otherwise would have been seven consecutive birdies. He almost sank a long putt for an eagle on No. 1 and missed a four-footer for a bird on the 18th.

He didn't slip over par on a single hole.

Wall, who said he "got all possible out of some pretty wild shots," had a round of four birdies and 14 pars. His irons were on the beam as his longest birdie putt was 12 feet.

Mays Alimony Battle Continues

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays, San Francisco Giants outfielder who is reportedly the highest paid player in baseball at $90,000 is seeking to have set aside a separate maintenance order requiring him to pay $1,000 a month to his estranged wife, Marghuerite.

Mays told a domestic relations court yesterday his wife has obtained a Mexican divorce and the couple has reached a new agreement for support of her and their adopted son.

Bergen Van Brunt, Mays' attorney, said under the agreement Mays is to pay $10,000 a year alimony and $5,000 a year to support the boy, Michael, 3.

The attorney asked Judge Joseph Karesh to vacate the separate maintenance order signed last August which also requires Mays to pay $3,500 in fees to Philip Adams, his wife's attorney in that action.

MARIN BASKETBALL

Tops Vs. Bottoms In Prep Circuit

By PAUL MILLER

The teams in the top half of the Marin County Athletic League basketball standings tonight will clash with the teams in the bottom half.

First place San Rafael High will play fourth place Tamalpais in Mill Valley; co-runners-up Redwood and Marin Catholic will meet Novato and Sir Francis Drake, respectively. Redwood will be hosted by the last place Pirates and the Wildcats will host Novato, also in the cellar. Preliminary games to the varsity contests begin at 7 o'clock.

KTIM's Ted Mitchell and Karl Barron will be broadcasting the Tam-Bulldog varsity game at 8:25 p.m., 100.9 FM.

HOT CONTEST

Probably the hottest contest of the three MCAL tilts will be between Redwood and Drake. After upsetting San Rafael and looking good against a strong College of Marin Junior Varsity Squad, coach Dick Hart's Giants will be scrambling for nothing but wins in order to at least catch San Rafael because the Bulldogs have a good chance not to lose any more games. And they don't have to play the Giants again. Redwood on the other hand must face Marin Catholic again, a team the Giants suffered their only other loss to in the first round of league play.

Although Drake is the cellar club along with Novato, coach Carl Brown's Pirates have been turning out some pretty scrappy efforts and some deadly third periods lately. Also it looks like John McBride may fill in where Brad Busch may not be able to be tonight due to illness. In Drake's last outing without Busch, McBride hit 19 points. These factors plus tonight's contest being a rival affair between two Tamalpais Union High School District institutes should make it competitive and fast.

Fans also will enjoy a good shooting show put on by Redwood star guard Jay Johnson and a defensive performance by the Giants' hustling rebounder Pete Coy. In and out of all this will be floorman Mark Boero of the Pirates.

Both San Rafael and Tamalpais, smarting from upset defeats last week, will be out for some emotional release tonight. The Bulldogs know they should win to keep their front running record intact. But the Indians know they have defeated coach Mike Diaz' hotshots once this season and would like to do some spoiling with San Rafael's 5-1 record as against Tam's 2-3 count.

It's difficult to predict who will do the major work for the Bulldogs. One game it's Jack

O'Dell Signs, Expects A Lot Of Work

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants had 24 men under contract today with the signing of southpaw pitcher Billy O'Dell.

The slick lefty posted a 7-3 record last season after his mark stood at 4-5 on Sept. 16. He went the distance to win the next three game including an 8-2 win over Milwaukee that clinched third place for the Giants.

Two months ago, O'Dell said from his home in South Carolina tha the either wanted to be pitched more often or traded.

O'Dell evidently settled for Manager Al Dark's comment that "O'Dell has shown me that he can pitch and he will do a lot of it in 1962."

An office spokesman would not disclose how O'Dell's 1962 salary compares with the estimated $25,000 he earned last season.

MAJOR LEAGUE CONTRACT FRONT

Maris, Yanks Ready To Talk Cold Turkey On '62 Salary

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Roger Maris and Roy Hamey are all through with the hors d'oeuvres so today they plan to get right down to cold turkey.

"We didn't really talk figures before but we will now," said Maris at the New York Yankees' spring training site in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

This will be the third salary meeting between the new home run king and the Yankee general manager. Their first two talks were brief and merely touched on generalities, according to Maris.

Now they're going right to the nub. Maris, who hit 61 homers last season and was voted the American League's most valuable player for the second straight year, is asking $75,000. The Yanks are offering $60,000 — an $18,000 increase over the $42,000 they paid his last season.

TIGHT SCHEDULE

Hamey has to catch Maris on the fly so to speak. Roger, 10 pounds overweight at 210, is a pretty busy guy and says he has "a tight schedule." Actually he isn't due in the Yankee camp until Feb. 16 but he and Mickey Mantle have to be in Fort Lauderdale for a moving picture they are appearing in which will be shot next week.

Other players don't have all Maris' problems although they would certainly like to.

There's Early Wynn of the Chicago White Sox, for example. He took a cut, said he "expected it" and optimistically added "we'll renegotiate next year."

The 42-year-old Wynn needs only eight more victories to reach the 300 mark in the majors. His record last season was 8-4 which wasn't bad considering his arm tightened up and he never pitched after July 22. Wynn said his arm "feels real good" and that "the doctor says it looks good."

Catcher Bob Oldis and utility infielder Bobby Malkmus okayed their contracts with the Philadelphia Phillies, who also sold outfielder Ken Walters to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League for an undisclosed sum.

The Baltimore Orioles were the most active of all the clubs, signing six of their players for a total of 22 out of 39. The six signees were outfielder Dave Nicholson, infielder Bob Saverine, pitcher Johnny Papa and catchers Dave Massarelli, Andy Etchebarren and Larry Haney.

Nicholson and Savarine are two of the highest paid bonus players in Baltimore history. Nicholson received a bonus of more than $100,000 four years ago and Saverine $72,000 three years ago.

This could be Nicholson's last chance to make it with the Orioles because all his options have run out and he can no longer be sent to the minors unless waivers are obtained from the 19 other major league clubs.

Vaulter Uelses Catches Cold—It Was Drafty At 16

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Uelses, new pole vault king, will not appear in the Sports Arena tomorrow night for the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games.

The Marine corporal has the flu and is in the Quantico, Va., base hospital. Doctors ruled out any chance for him to make the trip.

Uelses vaulted 16 feet, ¼ inch at a New York indoor meet Feb. 2, then boosted the mark to 16 feet, ¾ inch the next night in Boston.

Tomorrow night's pole vault favorite becomes George Davies of Arizona State, world record holder outdoors at 15 feet, 10¼ inches.

Rookie Of Year Signs

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Don Schwall, the American League's rookie of the year last season, has returned his signed contract, the Boston Red Sox announced today.

Blue Chips On Table In Big 5, WCAC Loops

The blue chips are on the table tonight in both the Big Five loop and the West Coast Athletic Conference.

At Los Angeles, Stanford and USC square off in a battle of twice-beaten quintets. The Indians and Trojans appear to have the strongest squads in the conference, but nobody has told UCLA about this and the Bruins have rolled to four straight wins. Tonight's loser will just about drop out of the race.

The Cards face the Bruins tomorrow night. Other Big Five action finds Washington at California tonight and Southern California tomorrow.

The situation is about the same in the West Coast Athletic Conference as co-favorites Loyola and Santa Clara hook up in San Jose.

The Lions have lost one and the Broncs two, while lightly regarded St. Mary's is still unbeaten and once-defeated Pepperdine also must be regarded as a contender. Pepperdine takes on San Jose State tonight in the other half of the twin bill and tomorrow the Waves meet Santa Clara.

Stanford's young club, with two sophomores and two juniors on the starting team, has scoring balance this year. Tom Dose, the 6-8 center from Glendale, has hit 20 or more points in seven games.

Senior John Windsor has hit 20 or more three times and Darrell Sutherland scored 24 against Nebraska.

Still, the Indians face formidable opposition in the Trojans, who have high scoring John Rudometkin, averaging 21.6 points per conference game, and Chris Appel at 14.6.

UCLA's senior guard John Green leads the league in scoring with his average of 23 points in each of the four Big Five games. Walt Hazzard, one of top sophomores in the area, has 15.3.

After losing four of their first five conference games, Washington's Huskies have snapped back to win a pair from Stanford and one from California with 6-8 center Bill Hanson leading the attack. The big junior ranks second in the loop in scoring with 22.9 per game and has grabbed 92 rebounds to lead in that department.

Last week the Huskies invaded Berkeley to beat California 62-57 for the first Washington victory over the Bears on their home court in 10 years.

Hanson and 6-6 Ed Corell had one good half against the Bears and that was enough. Corell hit for 17 points in the first half but just six in the second. Hanson had a single field goal in the opening half but hit for 22 points in the second.

Giving some solace to Bears' Coach Rene Herrerias was his team's 43.4 shooting percentage, best in a long time.

"But we have a lot of improving to do on defense," he commented wryly.

SHRINE GAME NETS MORE THAN $230,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—In its 37-year history, the East-West football game has raised more than $4 million for the benefit of Shrine hospitals for crippled children.

William M. Coffman, the managing director of the charity game since the first one was played, reported last night that $238,030.20 net was realized at the 1961 game in Kezar Stadium.

Reed Gains Semis In U.S. Indoors

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitney Reed, top-ranking American player, faces another challenger to his throne in the quarter-finals of the U.S. Indoor Tennis Championships tonight.

Reed, the U.S. Davis Cupper from Alameda, Calif., plays Gene Scott.

Scott, the University of Virginia law school student from St. James, N.Y., battled past Pvt. Bob Bowditch, Ft. Eustis, Va., 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 and Reed fought off Crawford Henry, Atlanta, 6-4, 10-8 last night.

Four other Americans — Chuck McKinley, Donald Dell, Frank Froehling and Ron Holmberg—also breezed into the round of eight along with foreign stars Rod Laver, the Wimbledon champ from Australia, and Spain's Manual Santana.

Meet My Terms Or Jump, Says Dodger Pitcher

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandy Koufax, star southpaw pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, has returned his unsigned contract and says that if the club doesn't meet his terms by March 10 he'll hold out.

Koufax won 18 games for the Dodgers last year, gave up fewer hits per game than any starting pitcher in the National League, fanned 269 batters in 256 innings, and received $18,000 salary.

Dodger general manager Buzzie Bavasi showed his appreciation by offering Koufax a modest raise. Sandy fired the contract back, saying it was unsatisfactory. Back it came in the mails with the same salary figure, and Sandy fired it back again.

"Koufax thinks he has a bigger raise coming but I don't figure it that way," Bavasi says.

Orient Tops Class A In Ocean Race

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Hall's Princess, 42-foot yawl from NewPort-Balboa, is showing the way in the San Diego-to-Acapulco Yacht Race.

Princess found a favorable route all to herself yesterday and logged an additional 154 miles, the best performance of the day, in the 1,430-mile test. The fleet of 21 yachts found calm seas, light winds and warm, sunny skies.

Princess is the overall leader and tops the Class B handicap group, where she has been first since the race started last Sunday. Legend, which had been in first place, overall, dropped to fifth.

ORIENT SECOND

The lead boat in the race, Sirius II, sailed by Howard Ahmanson, who won last year in the Pursuit, has a one-mile lead on Orient, sailed by Tim Mosely of San Francisco, on a boat-for-boat basis. Ahmanson's craft is far back in the standings, however, in the handicap rating. It had logged 659 miles from San Diego Thursday.

In Class A, Orient, Legend and Spirit are one-two-three; in Class B, it is Princess, Kialoa and Roland Von Bremen, and in Class C, Dick Lerner's Gamin of Los Angeles and Oceana, a Mexican boat, are tied for first, with Desert Star second.

The race is expected to end Feb. 13 or 14.

Seals Find Many Obstacles North

EDMONTON, Alta (UPI) — The San Francisco Seals, having a troubled time north of the border up Canada way, run into the Edmonton Flyers tonight at Edmonton.

The Flyers, who dispatched the Seals 8-6 Wednesday night, are atop the northern division of the Western Hockey League, eight points ahead of second-place Calgary.

The Seals occupy the bottom rung of the southern division ladder, six points to the rear of Los Angeles.

San Francisco registered its last win, and its only victory of its current northern wing, Sunday when the Seals set the Seattle Totems down 6-1. Since then they have fallen before Calgary 6-3 and dropped the 8-6 decision to Edmonton.

The Seals move along to Calgary tomorrow.

Three Games On Marin's Prep Schedule Tonight

Sovereign, another Rich Robertson, Bruce MacPhail, etc. But one thing is sure, they'll all be putting out tonight.

But so will Tam, especially if the pivot man Pete Bardea gets sore. He hasn't come through for awhile and maybe it's that time. If he and Warren Domino, Ellis Williams, Wilson Dolman, Art Ford and some others can all get with it at once, the fireworks will be lit for a coach Eddie Chavez victory.

"Remember Jan. 12!" will be the battle cry of coach Bernie Schneider's Marin Catholic Wildcats as they plow into the Novato High Hornets tonight. But the north Marinites also will have the same battle cry.

Jan. 12, Hornet captain Joe Colfer led his team in a 46-45 upset of Marin to win Novato's first MCAL game in history. So tonight, with just as strong a team which pulled off another upset by downing Tam last week, coach O. T. McAtee will probably be telling his troops: "You did it once, you can do it tonight."

Front runners for Marin are expected to be Frank Burch, John Enos, Ron O'Connell, Jerry Smith, Bob Williams, Paul Kruger for Novato, Jay Bucy, Nick Willard, Colfer, Martin Baccaglio, Don Scribner, Cliff Pierce, and Harry Cassidy.

Mill Valley Signups

Tomorrow and Feb. 17, signups for applicants in both Mill Valley's little leagues will be held at the Tamalpais High School gymnasium from 9 to 11 a.m. announced Dick Powers, official.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
IJ Fish and Game Writer

Proof Of Fishing Is The Catching; There's Plenty To Report Today

STEVENS

It's a case of perspective—one of the S. F. piscatorial pundits saw the weekend and the first two days of this week as a non-productive period for striped bass. This writer saw it quite the opposite. True, not a tremendous number of bass were taken, but considering the comparatively few who bucked the weather and tried, the results were good.

On the Marin side of the San Pablo Bay, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were bad days weatherwise, very few small boats went out of China Camp or Santa Venetia, but both Saturday and Sunday were productive for those who got out to the shell banks and fished properly. Out of Joe's Launching 30 odd bass and a flock of flounders rewarded the anglers. Sunday approximately the same number of boats shoved off from Joe's Landing and about the same number of bass and flounders came in.

Sunday's heroine at Joe's was a petite miss named Jackie Jensen, aged 11 years. Miss Jensen showed papa how it's done. She caught her legal limit of stripers with a beautiful 19-pounder topping the trio. Daddy? Well, he gave Jackie good advice.

I congratulate Ed Rose who pulled in a pair of stripers and Louie Silviera and friend who landed limits to medium size.

ON FOGGY Saturday and Sunday, the party boats out of Dowrelio's Crockett Harbor did a good job for the short loads they were forced to carry. Nadine Lessley told me that on Saturday Johnny Sivera and his Happy Days boat accounted for 13 stripers and on Sunday Johnny netted limits for the three anglers aboard—fish ran to nine pounds. On Saturday, Skipper Ruddy on the Jackpot had a load of fathers and sons but managed to register 11 stripers to six pounds. Monday, a very few anglers showed up and the score was about a fish-and-a-half per rod. On Tuesday I gather that only one boat, the Jackpot, left the Harbor, and it with only two passengers—but limits to nine pounds resulted.

I REPORTED on trolling in the Red Rock sector up until Monday night. As you read, fishing was red hot with early limits for all who trolled. Tuesday, in spite of contrary reports, it was very nearly as hot. Took a bit longer to load up with limits than on Monday, but the fish very definitely have not left the area. Hal Boener, of Lee Anderson's Bait Shop in Oakland, verfied the report on four boats, the Troller, Harbor Rocket, R. S. P. and the Sea Bee. The Troller netted six limits to nine pounds, the Harbor Rocket, with four aboard, limited to 10 pounds; the R. S. P. came in with four limits also—to eight pounds, and the Sea Bee unloaded 11 bass to nine pounds.

Those reports, which are authentic, can hardly be termed poor fishing, can they?

Joe Navarro of the Sportsmen's Center in Castro Valley called to report anglers Anthony Kile and brother Henry, taking limits of bass in one hour's time trolling the California City region.

JOE ALSO mentioned that catfish, black bass and stripers were taken over a wide range of territory over the weekend. Paul Trolling and George Phillips fished Lake Berryessa and took fairly easy limits each. Gladys Burnham and hubby Jack took limits of mediums from Honker Bay on the foggy Saturday; Manuel Navarro and his two sons, Dick and George, took a full string of catfish from Old River; Ross O'Connell and his two sons, Mike and Dave—13 and 15 years, respectively—took one striper of seven pounds and 43 nice catfish from Holland Cutoff—McDonald Tract, and, on Saturday, Bill Kane and Oliver Smiley landed three stripers to eight pounds and 30 catfish in the Turner Cut.

So, to paraphrase an old saying—the proof of the fishing is the catching. What's keeping you back?

LITTLE OLD LADIES ON THE LANES

Ninety-year-old Mathilda Jones, surrounded by other members of her bowling team, blows out the candles on her birthday cake in Kansas City this week, then takes her turn on the lanes. Lady Golfers Doing Double Burn After Defeat By Snead

By OSCAR FRALEY

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The lady golf pros are doing a double turn today.

Fourteen of them took on Sam Snead in a four round tournament on a par three course and, leading him by two shots with one round to go and all even with only seven holes to play, they blew it by five shots.

Which gave them two major disappointments this year.

The first was that Mickey Wright, the belting blonde from Dallas who was all even with Samuel Jackson just seven holes from home, wasn't named the woman athlete of the year in the various polls conducted here and there.

Just how Mickey did manage to blow the deuce isn't quite clear to anybody, particularly the women wedge artists. And, it might be added, in this corner.

Mickey, herself, is a real McGuire about it.

"I HOPE THEY never give it to me," quoth the dynamiter from Dallas who was beaten by track star Wilma Rudolph in most of those eenie meenie, minie, moe pin-sticking contests. "If they ever did, I wouldn't acknowledge it. Let's say I'm just not interested."

When you consider that Mickey on the fairways last year captured 10 tournaments, was the leading money winner in women's golf, and pulled a tremendous slam by capturing the U.S. Women's Open, the Ladies' Professional Golfers Assn. championship and the Titleholders Tournament, it's small wonder that she carries a chip on her shoulder.

The lady pros don't always see eye to eye. But in this instance they are 100 per cent behind the pretty gal who wallops a ball farther than most men.

"Mickey certainly should have been anybody's top athlete of the year," said Marilynn Smith. "It's almost as if the people who voted, whoever they were, didn't know what was going on."

THERE WAS agreement from Ruth Jessen, the classic blonde from Seattle, who was leading Snead by two shots on the heels of a four under par 50 as they started the final round in this par three tournament.

"People forget that we play all year, and every day. What do you have to do to be considered an athlete?"

What indeed? Because you can consider the case of pert and pretty Marlene Bauer Hagge who, at one time or another has scored a six under par 30 on a man's par 36 nine and a five under par 67 for 18 man-sized holes.

"The public just has no idea that the girls can play this kind of golf," said Marlene. "Mickey last year was the greatest."

LOUISE SUGGS, who beat Snead by two shots in this same tournament last year, figured that Mickey was cheated out of her just deserts "because for some reason people don't seem to be paying as much attention to women's golf as they used to do."

But Betty Jameson summed it up for all of them when she allowed: "It's as if the people who voted in any of those things don't know what's going on in the sports world."

Betty had another remark concerning Snead's victory, as close as it was up to the final seven holes.

"To say that we're disappointed," she acknowledged, "is the understatement of the year."

Considering Mickey's failure, as she finished second again, it was a case of double a-n-d nothing.

Bantam Clash To Be Reset

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Promoter Lou Thomas hoped to set a new date today for the world bantamweight title fight between Eder Jofre of Brazil and Herman Marques of Stockton.

The original date of Feb. 26 went into the discard yesterday when Jofre, South America's undefeated champ, announced in Sao Paulo that he had incurred a dislocated wrist.

Abraham Katzenelson, Jofre's manager, suggested in Sao Paulo that the fight be postponed until March 12. But the Cow Palace, where the contest is to be held, is booked up on that night.

"I am working out arrangements with the Cow Palace people for a new date and it will be some time in March," Thomas said. He is co-promoting the bout with George Parnassus of Los Angeles.

The girls' will be held as scheduled at the gym.

The entire program will begin again March 17. Activities include tumbling, trampoline, track and field, weight lifting, modern dance.

Heavy Rains Cancel South Cal Road Race

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Southern California's heavy rain storm has forced cancellation of the Pacific Coast Championship Road Races scheduled for this weekend at Riverside Raceway.

Sponsors of the first major western sports car event of the year, the California Sports Car Club and the Sports Car Club of America, said they hoped to reschedule the races for the weekend of March 3-4.

Manager Says St. Louis Should Be A Contender

By JOHNNY KEANE
Manager, St. Louis Cardinals

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — I recently returned from San Juan. The big reason for my trip was to see Julio Gotay, a young Puerto Rican infielder who has been in the St. Louis organization for the past three or four years.

Shortstop was our major weakness last year. We used Gotay there for about 10 games, but he was nervous and erratic. He went to Charleston of the International League and was named the second baseman on the All-Star team.

I saw him play shortstop again in the Puerto Rican Winter League and he was hitting and fielding very well. If he can show it in the National League, we will have made a big move toward contention in the pennant race.

With Gotay's help plus the addition of Minnie Minosa from the White Sox, I feel that we are definitely improved over last season.

We also have Curt Flood, who did a great job in center field, Charley James, Carl Warwick and Don Landum. I'm glad to see that Stan Musial thinks he can play in more than 100 games this season. He drove in 70 runs last season in about 100 full games.

We are well taken care of in the other infield positions with Bill White at first base, Julien Javier at second and Kenny Boyer at third. Alex Grammas makes a fine utility infielder.

Our catching could be better, but it should be adequate.

The pitching should be our strongest point and could be great if Ernie Broglio returns to anywhere near his 1960 form. Larry Jackson, Bob Gibson and Ray Sedecki should do as well if not better than last year.

Ray Washburn, a young pitcher we brought up at the end of the 1961 season, won 16 games for Charleston and showed me a lot of poise. We also look for help from Curt Simmons, Ed Bauta and Johnny Kucks.

Stoneman Defended In Heating Squabble With Attorney Belli

CONNOLLY

I'm signing waivers on the Melvin Belli - Horace Stoneham feud. The subject of "heat," no matter in what form it comes, is always distasteful. And besides, who ever heard of a box seat holder wanting the jernt defrosted before the ball game starts? They put lockers in back of the boxes to take care of that.

"Belli," sez my Uncle Mike, "can't be a nature lover or he'd go to Arizona or Florida where the heat is so bad they call the ball parks hot house plants. To think I'd have to live to see the day I'd have to listen to a guy complain of a lack of heat in a grandstand boxseat in an open air ball park.

"If this attorney fellow Belli was short of scratch or folding money, I wouldn't care. But meeting him in a courtroom is worse than tackling a rattlesnake—they don't come any tougher."

Attorney Belli, I am told, has been very successful as well as very disagreeable to Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants baseball club.

STONEHAM LEASED a ball park from the city of San Francisco that spent $600,000 or more to install what was supposed to be adequate heating for Candlestick Park.

So when Stoneham is handed the ball park he is very proud to tell the citizens they will have heated boxes. And he is very disappointed when he finds out the city got bilked on the heat and there is no warmth on the concrete floor, despite the fact it is supposed to contain radiant heat.

Let us say you leased a house that contained central heat and it turns out the house is colder than a landlord's heart? Would you sue the manager of the apartment, or the owner, who represented the heat clause?

The same goes for Stoneham, although attorney Belli didn't bother to sue the City of San Francisco. He sued Stoneham, who in turn has to sue the city to recover.

"TO BE on the safe side next season," Uncle Mike sez, "when there is a whale of a series going on between the Giants and some other team, I'd soothe old cold feet Belli by reading him fairy stories about central heat. And if that didn't satisfy him, I'd try giving him a hot foot.

"What's the world coming to anyhow, when they have to build a ball park with a roof on it to keep out the wind; build a million dollar heating plant to heat the boxes; install moving stairways to assist the old folks get to their seats—no wonder President Kennedy says we're a softie nation.

"My advice to attorney Belli," Uncle Mike offers, "is to go to a Turkish bath, turn on the TV and lay there and keep warm."

Uncle Mike might sound rather harsh on attorney Belli, but there is a reason. He just bought a house in Stockton that had a termite clearance on it and when he stepped into the closet to fetch his overcoat he fell through the flooring to the basement.

"I DIDN'T yell my head off," Uncle Mike insists. "I just felt that termites have to live like the rest of us and if I happened to buy a home loaded with those busy little bugs, that was my mistake and not the mistake of the seller who had been feeding them for a long time and didn't charge anything for termites when he sold me the house."

SCHOOL TAX HIKE BACKED BY PUBLIC

Mill Valley District Parents Ask Only If 'Increase Is Big Enough'

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

A public hearing on a proposed tax increase for the Mill Valley School District last night brought forth only warm approval—the single objection being: "Are you asking for a big enough increase?"

Even P. J. Rowland, head of the Marin County Taxpayers' Assn., usually foe of any tax increase for any purpose, joined the audience of about 150 in support of the proposed increase of 75 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

"We are not going to oppose this raise," Rowland said. "In fact, we commend the board."

Of the 75 cents, which is being asked as a ceiling for an indefinite period, only 70 cents would be levied this year, said board chairman George M. Wood.

Indicating five major categories of need, Wood said the funds would go toward (1) instruction, $228,900, (2) plant maintenance, $16,000, (3) plant operation, $20,600, (4) capital outlay, $9,000, and (5) reserves, $32,540. The figures, Wood stressed, were estimated only as annual averages for the next five years.

Of the total being asked for instruction, $137,800 would go for normal salary increases for office, maintenance and teaching personnel. A total of $74,500 was estimated as needed for additional personnel including two foreign language teachers, one guidance person, one music teacher, one administrator and supervisor for noontime lunch periods to free teachers for classroom work.

Raising the question of an even larger tax hike were at least three persons from the audience and a letter from the Muir Woods Parents Club. "Since we have to get out and work for a tax increase, why not ask for more so we won't was the gist of the opposition to an increase of 75 cents.

"The idea of the board in asking for only 75 cents was to reconcile the ability of the people to pay and the needs of the district," said trustee Edward A. Kemp Jr. "We can't risk defeat of this proposal."

A suggestion that the increase would only being the district "up to mediocre" was contradicted by board members as untrue. "With a mediocre budget, we have done an excellent job," said trustee William L. Clark.

"To go from where we are now to superior would cost more than any district could afford," said Wood.

Surveys indicate, board members said in presenting their case, that Mill Valley ranks 34th among 37 districts of comparable size in teacher salaries.

The 75-cent increase would bring the present tax rate of $1.50 to $2.25 plus override taxes of 72 cents, bringing the total tax to $2.97.

The increase, Supt. G. R. McConnell said, would cost the average homeowner about $35 a year.

The board will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the district office, 26 Miller Avenue, to act on a resolution placing the increase on the ballot for an election April 10, coinciding with the Mill Valley municipal election.

Hub Council Candidates Grow To 7

The field of candidates for three openings on the San Anselmo City Council grew to seven yesterday with filing of nomination petitions by Robert Bohanna, owner of Marin Neon Co. in San Rafael.

Also in the field is Woodrow V. Capurro, a lather foreman, who has filed petitions with City Clerk Anita M. Gannon.

Earlier announced candidates were incumbents Carleton G. E. Little and William Franchini; Edward L. Nordmann, owner of the San Anselmo Paint Center, former councilman Cecil J. Allen, and Homer F. Crowell, a San Quentin Prison employee. Terms of Little and Franchini expire in April, along with that from which Robert E. Rouse has submitted his resignation.

Bohanna, who is 45, established the Marin Neon Co. after moving to Marin from San Francisco a decade ago. He was born in Denver. The family moved to San Francisco when he was a child and he was graduated from Balboa High School there.

Bohanna and his wife, Grace, live at 30 Terrace Avenue.

He said numerous San Anselmo ordinances, particularly the building codes, need updating, and "we need more building inspection." He foresees great growth in the Hub City and feels the council must be alert to cope with it.

Capurro, 41, is a San Francisco native but has lived 25 years in Marin county. He completed his education at College of Marin. He is employed by Carl Weber Plastering Co. of San Rafael.

Capurro and his wife, Jermaine, and two daughters, Wanda, 4, and Lisa, 1, live in "the biggest house on the hill back of the Tamalpais Theater," which he built three years ago.

Capurro thinks the city council should do something about the parking problem and about lack of facilities for teen-agers.

San Anselmo Bargain Days Expanded By Hub Chamber

San Anselmo Bargain Days next month were expanded to Bargain and Get Acquainted Days by action of the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon.

The event will be March 1, 2 and 3, rather than March 3, 4 and 5 as listed in Wednesday's Independent-Journal.

"The emphasis will be on getting the public to know the merchants as people," said Mrs. Patricia Mann, chamber vice president. "Advertising will carry information about the people who own and operate the stores. This will be part of a long-range program."

She said 14 merchants attended yesterday's combined meeting of the chamber board and its merchants committee, headed by Sam Miller.

Directors yesterday discussed whether to hire a fulltime manager and establish an office on the city's main thoroughfare, San Anselmo Avenue. Further reports on both proposals are to be made at next Thursday's meeting.

George G. Washburn, secretary, now serves as part-time manager from an office on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

For centuries a portion of the east coast of the Federation of Malaya was called the Beach of the Fire Ants. An enterprising Malay developed it into an amusement center and changed the name to Beach of Passionate Love.

Two Youths In Drag Race Sentenced

Two youths were sentenced wednesday for participating in drag-racing, and a third was to be arraigned this afternoon on a similar charge.

David J. Kennedy, 18, of 87 Rutherford Avenue, San Anselmo, drew four months probation and $29 fine by Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court for racing along San Quentin Road last Saturday morning.

Robert S. Dinubilo, 18, of 520 Whitewood Drive, San Rafael, who was a passenger, was sentenced for aiding and abetting a speed contest. He must pay $12 fine and remain on three months probation.

Martin K. Murray, 19, of 118 Bretano Way, Greenbrae, was scheduled to appear in court this afternoon. He is accused of several violations including racing, speeding at 70 miles per hour, and stopping a car on the traveled section of the highway.

Kennedy Tours Leftist Strongholds To Cheers

TOKYO (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy toured leftist strongholds in the Tokyo area today and came away with his ears ringing from shouts of "Kennedy banzai!"—Long live Kennedy.

Kennedy encountered only a few of the Communists' usual "Go Home" signs as he visited a Tokyo factory. The demonstrators that have shadowed him failed to spoil the last full day of his six-day visit to Japan.

President John F. Kennedy's brother, 36, leaves tomorrow for Hong Kong, the next stop on his goodwill tour, and said he would take with him a "warm feeling for the Japanese people."

Cheering workers, a brass band and fluttering Japanese and American flags greeted Kennedy at an electric plant where Communist party cells distributed hundreds of anti-American leaflets.

At a steel company a small cluster of Communists waving red flags and shouting "Go Home Yankee!" greeted Kennedy, but he paid little heed.

Kennedy also got together with leaders of Japan's giant leftist Sohyo Council of Trade Unions who said they believed the U.S. is imperialistic and run by monopoly capitalism.

In a lively exchange with Sohyo Secretary-General Akira Iwai, Kennedy asked: "What about Hungary and Tibet? Do you consider the Soviet Union is imperialistic?"

Iwai said he believed this different from monopoly capitalism. Iwai, who has visited the U.S., conceded "many social improvements have been made" but said "basically monopoly capitalism hasn't changed since Adam Smith."

Harpist To Present Concert For Family

That old fashioned institution, the family concert, will be revived Sunday, Feb. 18, at 3:15 p.m. at the Sausalito Woman's Club, 120 Central Avenue, with a concert of harp music by Joel Andrews.

The venture is the idea of two Sausalito women, Mrs. Robert La Fontaine and Mrs. Paul Micou. Having decided they were spending too much time on activities that were not too rewarding, they believed that sponsoring concerts that would contribute to the cultural life of their community would be an excellent venture.

And since they were particularly concerned with having their children and others hear the best music, they selected afternoons rather than evenings for the time.

Though children are especially welcome, this is not a "kiddie concert" in the usual sense. Artist and sponsors feel that opportunities for families to share musical experiences are rare and chose the time and program accordingly.

Future family concerts will be arranged if the response is enthusiastic.

Termed a real virtuoso by critics, the first young artist to be presented has performed widely in solo concerts, and as first harpist with many symphonies under such conductors as Maurice Abravanel, Sandor Salgo and Gerhard Samuel.

A composer and teacher as well, Andrews will perform a wide variety of works including some modern ones to demonstrate the unique potentialities of this instrument, one of the oldest known to man.

A native of Santa Barbara, Andrews is currently on the faculties of the Music Academy of the West there and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. There he recently presented a seven-week seminar in composition devoted in part to eleven new special effects recently discovered.

"The ease with which the harp can produce a wide variety of subtle, exotic and esoteric effects places it in a unique and important relation to the new sounds of 'music concrete' and the tape composers. The harpist can improvise complex sounds which it would take an electronic studio weeks to symthesize," he states.

Andrews predicts a renaissance of composition for the harp and a great increase in its popularity.

Tickets will be available at the door or may be reserved by calling Mrs. Micou or Mrs. La Fontaine.

A Mink In Every Closet

NEW YORK (AP) — Mink is so accessible today that a secretary can blink mink lashes, carry a mink beer opener, or even punch her time clock fully clad in it without causing office gossip.

Yet, paradoxically, the fur that makes up 85 per cent of the market remains a status symbol. It is not only expensive now (averaging $3,000 for a coat), but by fall it will be 10 per cent more so.

The pelts of these vicious, well-fed, short-lived animals drape around the shoulders of more working girls than ever before because, as Edward Langenfeld says, "more working girls earn enough to afford it."

In fact, the president of the Emba Mink Assn. (an organization of mink ranchers) claims the mink market is a remarkably accurate measure of the health of the nation's economy.

Approximately two dozen times during the winter months auction houses here test the economy, and, also at the wave of a gavel, improve or shatter the fortunes of some of the country's 25,000 mink ranchers.

The ranchers often accompany their bundles of blonde, brown and tan mink skins to the auction house to learn immediately how much return they will get on an investment of four mink meals a day from April through November.

The graders stamp, code and arrange them in bundles of about 36 pelts and tie them to racks. There they hang like eerie phantom trees in the blueish light. After that the ranchers' fate, and the eventual cost of a mink coat is up to the fur buyer.

He dons a white coat, although it isn't necessary, just a carryover from less efficient days when greasy, untanned skins got their surroundings soiled. After examining the bundles, he notes their numbers in his market book, and descends to a long, narrow auction room many floors below.

The auctioneer, with three spotters on each side, stands behind the long, high bench. Overhead a sign indicates the name of a mink on sale, above that a neon sale number blinks.

The buyers at their tables hunch over code books like horseplayers with racing forms, scribbling and sending secret signals to vigilante spotters.

Somebody drops his eyelids, another a pencil. Or another tugs at ear lobe so that a competitor won't know what he's paying for his minks. When the well-trained spotter sees the signal, he shouts "Up!"

Each "Up" raises the pelt price 25 cents on a female skin, 50 cents for larger skins. The unceasing cry of "Up, Up Up" sounds like popcorn popping. The auctioneer's shoulder high flourish with his gavel signals the end of bidding.

Within a day the auctioneer moves more than a million dollars worth of minks out of the fur forests upstairs to the back shops of skille d furriers everywhere.

And in another month, some working girl is making her first payment on her first mink, a symbol of national prosperity.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D
Guidance Counselor

Neighborhoods Will Influence What Your Child's Gang Does

Do you live in a nice neighborhood? One where your children will learn to be good, not bad? Neighborhoods matter a lot. Your youngsters' gangs will control many of the things they do. Will they go for mob fights and riots? Will they engage in illicit sex? Will they steal, set fires, throw rocks through car windows? Such things are normal in some neighborhoods. There nearly all the children do such things. Many of them are arrested, of course. Their parents suffer and suffer and suffer.

Or will your children have the right kind of fun? Will they run in good gangs? Will they get their kicks in constructive ways? In good neighborhoods delinquency is rare.

How can you judge a neighborhood? One way is to look up the juvenile arrest rate. Probably you could get the information from the probation office or the police department. Another way is to look the area over critically. Are the houses reasonably well cared for? Or do they look slummy? Are churches nearby? Are there safe places for children to play? Do the boys and girls on the street seem to be nice kids? You can learn by looking.

Wealth? That is not important. One of the worst neighborhoods I ever worked in was full of millionaires. The children were raised by governesses. The parents were drunkards. Sex delinquency was shocking. Rich kids drove their own expensive cars when they held up service stations. Usually it is best to live in a middle-class neighborhood, avoiding the extremes.

If you are in a bad neighborhood, move. Get your children out. Give them the chance to be good citizens, not thugs.

(Q) "A social worker told me that neighborhood differences had little to do with juvenile delinquency. Do you think she was wrong?" G.B.T.

(A) Yes, I do. I've argued this point many times. My experience has taught me that neighborhood differences have a lot to do with juvenile delinquency. Some social workers disagree.

More Women Are Their Own Bosses

More and more women are learning how to succeed in business without having a boss.

Housewives have been going to work for other people in a two-income-per-family approach to inflation for years. But now they are finding that independent enterprise can be more rewarding, in more ways than one if they go into business for themselves.

A wide variety of do-it-yourself success "kits" were on display at the New York Coliseum at the fourth annual "Start Your Own Business Exposition."

It is one of a series of such shows held around the country to encourage men as well as women to become participants in free enterprise, in the real sense of the word.

Independent enterprise is another way George Arons, founder and executive director of the show, describes the businesses on display.

Among the "kits" are equipment to establish a floor-cleaning business, requiring an initial investment of $1,000 on easy terms, and a coin-operated laundry or dry cleaning establishment, with considerably more capital involved, also on easy terms.

Available for franchise or purchase are roadside custard or hamburger stands, pizza parlors, rug cleaning systems, ice cream vending trucks, income tax services, home centered businesses involving the import of goods from Germany or Japan, and tool rental services.

There are many others—a total of nearly 100 opportunities being offered to persons who visit the "Start Your Own Business Exposition."

Arons said that since he began sponsoring the shows in key cities, he has received many queries from women who want to start a business so they can take some of the inflationary pressures off their husbands. Retired couples want to supplement pensions or other income. Persons with "nest eggs" for investment hope to reap profits through their own enterprise.

"Women are the real motivation force behind this growing trend toward self-employment," Arons said. " Woman no longer goes from school to kitchen. She works a few years to help pay the bills. As a result, she wins the right to plan and decide with her husband the best way to keep the refrigerator stocked, the clothes closets filled and the second garage occupied." (UPI)

Many Factors May Cause Thinning Hair Before 40

There are many factors which may cause a woman's hair to thin out before she reaches the age of 40 or even 30. But this hair loss most often is temporary and should not cause alarm.

Women with this type of hair loss (technically termed diffuse alopecia) will not become bald in the way men do, according to an article published by the American Medical Assn.

"This condition is either self-limiting or can be stopped after some forms of treatment," it said. "Even in cases where the thinning gets progressively worse, the loss will stop eventually."

There are a number of "normal" factors to explain temporary hair loss in women, the article said. These include pregnancy, certain medicines, illnesses accompanied by high fevers, and molting periods which follow no set pattern.

Other factors, which have been implicated, but not proven, as causes of diffuse hair loss range from cheap hair dyes and ponytail hair styles to emotional upsets and air pollution, the article said.

Improper use of home permanents sometimes play a role, it said. Cold wave solutions, unless they have built-in neutralizer, can act as a depilatory if they are left on too long, it said.

Another possible cause, it said, is excessive oiliness. Squalene, a chemical found in the natural oils of the hair, has been found to be a depilatory, it said.

Over-manipulation, tight rollers, too-frequent dyeing or bleaching, are other factors investigated by dermatologists when all the possible normal causes have been eliminated, the article said.

Dr. Howard T. Behrman, director of dermatologic research at New York Medical College, said heredity was an important factor. An investigation usually shows that a woman with sparse, thinning hair had a mother and grandmother with the same condition, he said.

The following rules for the care of normal healthy hair were listed as generally prescribed by dermatologists:

Keep fit, get enough sleep and eat a balanced diet.

Brush hair moderately or massage scalp gently.

Shampoo regularly, once a week for most women, more often for those with oily hair.

To dry hair, use a dryer regulated to avoid overheating instead of rubbing with a towel.

Those with dry hair should shampoo lesse frequently, avoid bleaches and use permanent waves less often.

Don't play with the hair, comb it constantly or use the pony-tail style.

If more than the normal amount of hair is falling out, treat hair gently and do not pull tightly in setting it.

Don't be misled by advertising for creams, tonics, or medications which promise to restore thinning hair.

If a definite thinning becomes apparent, see a dermatologist.

Redwood P-TA Will Present Program Information

Redwood High School students will participate in "Know Your International Program" at the Parent Teacher Association meeting on Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. at Olney Hall, College of Marin.

Redwood participates in three different programs, and explanations and information regarding all three will be presented.

American Field Service will be described by Redwood Junior, Don Rogers, who has been selected to travel abroad this summer. Mari Segayar from Brazil and Servet Mutlu from Turkey, Redwood's American Field Service exchange students this year, will also speak.

School Affiliated Service is the second exchange program at Redwood. Affiliation with a school in Preetz, Germany, is made possible through support of the Schultz Foundation Grant. Redwood expects the first exchange student from Preetz next year. Sophomore Pat Leske, who has been chosen to spend her junior year at Preetz, will take about S.A.S.

Experiment in International Living, the third exchange program, will be explained by Margaret Deedy, Redwood graduate who traveled abroad last year.

Bacon Combines For Imaginative Casserole Dish

In food preparation, it's the combination that counts. For example, cured pork products are tasty when served alone, but they can really dress up a meal when combined with other foods in an imaginative manner.

Let's look at Canadian-style bacon for a moment. This cured meat needn't be relegated to the breakfast table only. Bake it in a casserole with colorful and seasonal foods, and you'll have a delicious supper treat.

The bacon slices are placed atop a mixture of squash, cranberries, pecans, brown and white sugars and cinnamon. The flavor and texture are something special. And very little preparation time is involved . . . just chopping the pecans, halving cranberries and blending the ingredients.

Canadian-style bacon is the cured and smoked boneless loin of pork. It can be baked in a whole piece, or sliced for broiling, panbroiling or including in casseroles.

Canadian-Style Bacon—Squash Casserole

- 6 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½ inch thick
- 2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen cooked squash, defrosted
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¾ cup fresh cranberries, cut in halves
- ¼ cup coarsely chopped pecans

Grease a 1½-quart carresole. Combine squash, sugars, cinnamon, cranberries and pecans. Pour mixture into casserole. Top with Canadian-style bacon slices. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 45 minutes. Six servings.

Young Players Have Advantage Over Oldtimers—It's Courage

Today's young men and women take such things as airplanes, television and bubble gum without blinking an eye. They have the advantage over those of us who grew up with trains, radios and lollipops. Young bridge players enjoy a similar advantage.

When this hand came along last year in the national mixed team championship, Mrs. Louise Robinson and Richard Freeman found the right defense without the slightest hesitation. Both in their early 20's, these young experts didn't have to overcome the habits of a lifetime to make the right play.

Freeman led the nine of diamonsd, and Mrs. Robinson took the queen and ace of diamonds. What should East lead next?

LOCATES ACES: Mrs. Robinson was sure South had the three missing aces for his vulnerable opening bid. Hence she could defeat the contract only by developing two trump tricks.

An old-timer might flinch at the idea of leading a suit that dummy could ruff, but Mrs. Robinson led another diamond without breaking her stride. To make things easier for her partner, she led a low diamond.

Freeman saw the plot immediately. He ruffed the third diamond with the jack of hearts, and now the defenders were sure to get two trump tricks.

It seldom pays to lead a suit that dummy can ruff, but in this case it helped Mrs. Robinson and Freeman win a national championship. If you want to get equally good results with such a play look for a situation in which the only tricks you can expect are trump tricks. Then your partner may be able to drive out a high trump and thus promote the value of your trumps.

DAILY QUESTION: As dealer, you hold:

What do you say?

Answer: Pass. You would bid one diamond in third or even fourth position, but not as dealer or second hand. If your long suit were a major, you would be just barely justified in opening the bidding.

Woman In Hospital After Cars Collide

One woman was hospitalized as result of an auto collision yesterday at Eucalyptus Avenue and Center Road in Novato.

Mrs. David P. Martinez of 2227 Center Road was driving east on Center Road when a car driven by Mrs. Charelotte Larson, 46, of 2378 Vineyard Road entered from Eucalyptus Avenue, striking the Martinez auto, reported Police Chief Roy A. McLeran.

Both cars skidded 66 feet into a vacant lot after the collision.

Both drivers emerged, apparently little hurt, but Mrs. Martinez fainted a few moments later. She was taken to Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for observation.

A Doctor Reports Linkup Between Eye Color, Skin

NEW YORK (UPI)—When it first occurred to Dr. Robert C. Carney there might be a connection between the color of a person's eyes and the health of his skin, he did his best to perish the thought. It troubled him to catch his mind thinking unscientifically.

Yet he had to believe what his eyes told him about the eyes and the skins of all these people coming to him about their itches. He could see by their skins they all had the itchy skin disease, atopic Dermatitis. And the eye-color of most of them was definitely brown.

Who has ever heard of eye color having anything to do with the state of a person's health? Carney knew there was no scientific justification for such an idea, and he kept quiet. But he began writing down the eye colors of every person he saw with the disease.

Eventually he accumulated 184 such persons and 127 of them had either brown eyes or the variant of brown called hazel. That's a whopping 64 per cent of the total. It seemed especially whopping because this was going on in Iowa City where Carney is a member of the university's medical faculty and Iowa is considered a blue-eyed state.

But to make sure of that, Carney and some of his medical friends checked the eye colors of 1,484 Iowans in and about Iowa City, taken more or less at random. Well more than half of them—58 per cent—were blue-eyed.

This emboldened Carney to suggest to the American Dermatological Assn. that somehow, by means which are now unknown, brown-eyed people are more susceptible to atopic dermatitis than are blue-eyed people. And it was by means an irrational suggestion. Eye-color is an inherited characteristic and susceptibility to atopic dermatitis probably is, too.

It still is a disease with no little mystery attached to it. It is a manifestation of allergy and usually occurs in families much given to allergies. Yet there's a great deal of the psychosomatic in it. Nervous and emotional upsets can bring it on.

Carney spoke at an out-of-the-way unpublicized meeting of the association last summer whose proceedings have just been published by the American Medical Assn. One of his medical hearers commented that brown-eyed people represent the Latin races which are more openly emotional than the blue-eyed races of the British Isles and Northern Europe.

Another hearer reminded that eye-color is inherited through a complex array of genes which are somehow sex-linked because a blue-eyed father and brown-eyed mother will produce a different assortment of blue-eyed and brown-eyed children than a brown-eyed father and a blue-eyed mother.

Susceptibility to atopic dermatitis could be linked into this linkage of eye-color inheritance. Carney went further. It was his idea that other skin diseases could go with brown eyes or, perhaps, with blue eyes. He urged his fellow dermatologists to keep records of eye colors in skin disease patients.

"Eye color may lead us, by whatever meandering path, to a better understanding of some of our difficult skin problems," he said.

Third Drunken Offense: Jail

Theodore Benjamin Harmon, 55, of the Meadow Club, Fairfax, paid $276 fine yesterday and drew 10 days in county jail for his third drunken driving offense.

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Municipal Court sentenced Harmon for driving while intoxicated along Bolinas Road in Fairfax last Oct. 27.

Harmon had two prior convictions for drunken driving in Sonoma County, in August, 1957, and September, 1958.

DOES MARIN HAVE BIGGEST U.S. BAY TREE?

Just before saying farewell to his recently sold Ross property, attorney Vincent Hallinan took this photograph of what he believes to be the biggest bay tree in the United States, located there. It measures 39 feet around the trunk two feet from the ground according to Mrs. Ellen Chabot Bothin, who arranged for much tree surgery in the interest of preserving the giant. Hallinan's 13-year-old son Danny sits in the tree.

'TWO FOR SEESAW'

Plenty Of Laughs, Heart Ache In Play

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Half a hunk of man is not enough for Gittel Mosca, the earthy, Bronx-born heroine of "Two for the Seesaw" now playing at the Sausalito Little Theater.

Gittel, played by Carole Merson, is woman in full bloom from her bare toes to her Yidlish accent. She reels with womanhood, draws most of her laughs by her naturalness and, when she is sick, you ache for her to get well.

She seesaws back and forth through three acts of William Gibson's play with Ronald Reese. Reese plays Jerry Ryan, the married man who keeps Gittel "in the vestibule" when she wants to be in the living room.

Reese needs to be needed for the moment but Gittel wants to keep his neckties in one spot for keeps. As Gittel says, "I bet a penny with Jake, I get a penny. With you, Jerry, all I get is the cellophane."

The seesaw is heavy on one end because Gittel is so funny. When she swears, you laugh. When she is serious, you still laugh. She is not supposed to eat French fried potatoes and so Reese gives her health bread which Gittel says "must have been cut off a stump."

Reese is well cast, at home, talented. Miss Merson, who is to audition in New York in April for the Academy of Dramatic Art in London is tremendous. It's a good show, being presented Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 through February.

Directing is John King, assisted by June Stoerkel. Included in the production staff are Bruce Blake, production manager; Ed Pilley, assisting Blake; Curt Hoffman, stage manager; Chuck Maurice, set design; Lynn Arden, light design.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Here's How Sick Pay Figures In

By PETER J. WIKEL C.P.A.

How sick pay is taxed in your Federal return.

Benefits for accident or sickness, or wages received while you were off work because of sickness or accident are taxed as follows:

P. J. WIKEL

The amount you received because of accident or sickness, if received from an insurance company where you paid the premiums either directly or through payroll deductions, is not taxable income.

The amount you received because of accident or sickness where your employer paid the premiums to the insurance company, or where your employer himself paid your wages while you were off sick, is not taxable income up to the first $100 per week you received after the first seven days you were off.

If you were in a hospital for any day while you were off sick or if you were off because of accidents, then the seven-day waiting period does not apply.

If you received over $100 per week, the excess over $100 per week is taxable income to you.

Be sure to attach a form 2440 to your tax return showing how you figured this. When you were off—what happened, if you were in the hospital, etc.

A.F. Has Physical Therapy Openings

Female college students working toward degrees in occupational or physical therapy or serving a dietetic internship are eligible for the Air Force medical specialist program.

Students must be over 21 and less than 26 years of age and ending their junior year of a four year course in occupational or physical therapy. Applicants accepted are commissioned as Air Force second lieutenants and receive full pay and allowances while finishing their training.

Further information may be obtained from Sgt. Chester R. Thoren, Marin County recruiting representative, at 819 A Street, Room 32, San Rafael.

Novato Phone Barrier Comes Down Feb. 17

One of the last barriers separating Novato into two sections will be removed at 12:01 a.m. Feb. 17 when it will be possible to dial telephones all over the city.

At that time the TWinbrook (or 892 and 897) exchanges will be able to dial TUcker (or 883) numbers, and vice versa.

At present, a person must call Operator and pay a toll charge between these exchanges, even though these two numbers are in the same city or even across the street from each other.

The toll charge of 15 cents per call will be eliminated. However, there will be an increased rate of 25 cents on residential and 50 cents on business phones each month.

Rules Of Order Figure In Marin's Political Footwork

Marin County is running at normal volume in the number of residents becoming candidates for state, district, county and local elective offices. The recall spirit seems on the rampant side.

In the field of appointive officials, there also has been some action, including putting the coroner-public administrator on a salary rather than a fee basis and the departure from three public offices of George E. Goheen, long a leader in public service.

At Tuesday's meeting of the County Board of Supervisors, Goheen presented a letter of multiple resignations: as a member of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency, as a member of the Housing Authority, and as chairman of the Saucelito Canal Dredging Finance Committee.

For the three positions held by Goheen, two men were appointed to two of the posts. As a member of the Housing Authority board, James Quiett of Marin City was appointed last week. Tuesday Harold Stockstad, Tamalpais Valley, was named to replace Goheen on the Redevelopment Agency. These actions indicate a trend toward further distribution of membership on various agencies and commissions.

As successor to hard-working Goheen, Quiett becomes the Housing Authority's first Negro member. He is also a resident of the Marin City housing unit and treasurer of the Marin City Tenants Council.

Stockstad, active in citizen groups, was first chairman of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs when it formed to oppose the stop-work order in the then turbulent civic center dispute.

Goheen's resignations followed an unusual series of parliamentary procedures. His term on the Housing Authority had expired. Many believed he would be reappointed—until Supervisor Peter H. Behr proposed Quiett's appointment. The supervisors voted 3-1 in approval. The dissenter, Supervisor Fusselman, changed his vote to "aye" and moved reconsideration. So all was confused for several days. The issue: Did Fusselman's motion prevail without a second?

To clarify the issue, Goheen presented a resignation from his term-expired post, and the two others. For further clarification, County Counsel E. Warren McGuire — with additional authorities submitted by a citizen-parliamentarian —ruled the supervisors' appointment of Quiett stood.

We're sorry for the major result of this parliamentary puzzle, the withdrawal of George Goheen from positions of responsibility in which he has ably served Marin County.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BRICKBAT to the Marin County Board of Education for selecting a member to replace Theodore V. Cole without ever making public the names of persons under consideration so that voters —who placed Cole in office — could have a chance to make their opinions heard to the nominating committee. But a bouquet to Walter L. Johnson of Loma Verde, the new appointee, for his willingness to take on a difficult but important job of public service.

OVER 300 BOUQUETS (one apiece) for Marin County's Rotarians, on the 57th anniversary of the founding of Rotary International, and the splendid service our local clubs have given our communities.

A BOUQUET to Dr. Albert C. Daniels, San Rafael, upon his appointment as one of the first ten members of the new San Francisco Bay Regional Hospital Planning Committee.

BOUQUETS to California and Arizona defense chiefs for their coming cooperative disaster program. Good to know Arizona troops will not be manning the border to repel Golden State "invaders."

A BOUQUET to Kelso Norman, new president of the Sausalito Foundation, which is devoted to preserving that community's scenic beauty.

A BOUQUET to Rev. Bliss W. Bellinger, Terra Linda, upon his reelection to the presidency of the Marin County Council of Churches.

A LESSON IN PRAYER

An unforgettable lesson in prayer can be learned from the example of our divine Lord in the pages of the New Testament.

1) "All things whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you shall receive, and they shall come to you. And when you stand up to pray, forgive . . . that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your offenses." (Mark 11:24, 25)

2) "But in praying, do not multiply words." (Matthew 6:7)

3) "Pray for those who persecute and calumniate you." (Matthew 5:44)

4) "He went out to the mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God." (Luke 6:12)

5) "And falling into an agony He prayed the more earnestly." (Luke 22:43)

6) "Yet not for these only do I pray, but for those also who through their word are to believe in Me." (John 17:20)

And finally, that great missionary prayer that Jesus would have all put into practice: "Pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into His harvest." (Matthew 9:38)

Make my whole life, O Father of all, an unceasing prayer of faith in You and good works for others.

Our Fitness Researcher Finds New Sport With Defense Angle

Comes a time when you feel too flabby to go out for any sport more active than to chin yourself over the local bar.

And yet you still have enough kick in you that you don't want to lie down and give up the ghost.

IF YOU'RE in that category, there's a new sport that is being introduced into the county which may be just the thing for you.

The other day I hobbled down to the Marin School of Self Defense in Larkspur and learned that there is still plenty of hope for tired bones barely hanging together on flabby muscles.

INSTRUCTOR DEL Esposti introduced me to Karate (pronounced Kah-rah-teh). The beauty of it is that there is no body contact in this sport, and no mat work. If you can stand up and still have a few twitches left in your legs and arms, you're in.

"Oh, it's sort of like slimtrim for men?" I asked.

"No, it's for both men and women—of all ages," said Esposti. And he demonstrated. The hand shoots out, or comes down in a chop, the body wheels around and elbows jab out, and the feet kick in all directions.

NO CHANCE for injury because each person goes through the exercises without physical contact, and setting his own pace. The intriguing part is that karate puts you in shape, gives you balance, and the net result is not wasted. Because if you ever have occasion to use it, it can be done with deadly effect, Esposti explains.

ESPOSTI IS a judo blackbelter who's been teaching it to youngsters for more than a decade. He also instructs San Anselmo police on the side.

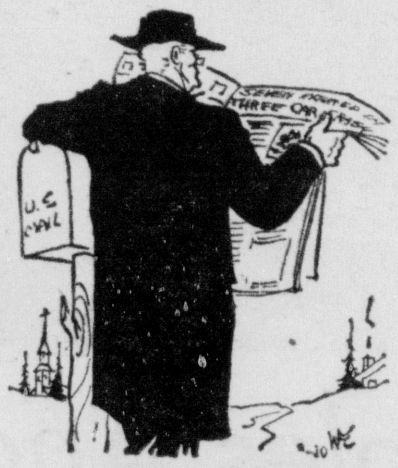

So if you're too old for the twist, you can always fall back on karate. Esposti plans to set up a class for older people any day now.

Ladies need not fear—they won't ask you for your age.

IN ANOTHER field, politics, the latest information is that retired Col. Joe Morrison will not be running for any county office this year. He had been mentioned as candidate for the assessor's job, having worked in both the county clerk's office and with the tax collector.

And in San Rafael, the name of Nick Giampoli is being mentioned along with Don Midyett, who is rumored as possible candidate for the police chief's job next year.

Both Nixon, Shell To Be Here Next Month

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

Two major Republican candidates for governor come into Marin County on succeeding days next month. Both Richard M. Nixon and Joseph Shell have accepted invitations to address the two-day convention of the California Federation of Republican Women, Northern Division, in San Rafael March 13-14. Shell will speak at the dinner meeting the first night of the conclave. Nixon is scheduled to address the luncheon meeting the following day.

The session, which will attract top GOP women from all over the northern part of the state, is being hosted by the three local federations, the Marin Federation headed by Mrs. J. Lee Chaille of San Anselmo, the Southern Marin Federation headed by Mrs. Ann Moss of Mill Valley, and the Novato Federation whose president is Mrs. Genevieve Grundstrom.

Shell is getting a head start in Marin, however. Here once already, he plans to make a day-long second visit next Wednesday when he will be a luncheon guest in Novato and the dinner honoree at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito that night.

I'VE BEEN ASKED several times why it was that the Independent-Journal was so interested and devoted so much time and space to the convention of the Young Republicans in Disneyland. We were more interested, apparently, than some of the metropolitan papers.

The answer is that we are conscious of a conservative swing in both parties and we are anxious for our readers to know as much as possible about how far this swing is going and who is leading it.

IN SACRAMENTO Monday just before the governor presented his budget, I was standing next to a Democratic officeholder, one high in the esteem of the California Democratic Council.

I complained to him that the lid had been on the CDC convention in Fresno, that even such things as issues policy statements were toned down to conform with the party line.

"Well," he said, "you know the CDC got a reputation as being too liberal."

HOW FAR CAN the conservative movement go?

Let's try to imagine a full conservative victory. Suppose the far right wing (this is a much better description than John Birch Society because many far right wingers don't go along with some of the Birchers' contentions) could capture the Young Republicans, then the California state organization and move into the national scene.

What could happen is a major upheaval in our national parties. The Southern Democrats might well see the new far right more closely aligned with their thoughts than the Democratic party. Then the more liberal Republicans would find their party untenable. This could result in organization of the Republocrats and the Demicans.

THUS MIGHT BE born two parties which could be more nearly classfied as conservative and liberal.

Or, it could be that both of the new parties would be farther right than their respective predecessors and Democratic liberals might be forced to set up a third party to be heard.

In most every political party realignment in the history of this country the change has come about in somewhat this manner.

BUT CAN 300 or 400 youngsters meeting in Disneyland, some of them not even old enough to vote, start such a change in our national life, even if they have a membership of 9,000 behind them?

Let's remember that there probably are only a few hundred Birchers, that there probably aren't more than 1,500 or so Communists in California. They have stirred things up quite a bit.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

'Fallout Shelter Plan Fallacious'

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Government emphasis has now shifted from private fallout shelters to community fallout shelters, and a $700 million appropriation, if approved by Congress this year, will be used to mark and stockpile existing structures.

Many competent, responsible scientists have repeatedly warned about the fraud and illusion of civil defense in this nuclear age, and that existence of shelters minimize the horrors of nuclear war by indicating that such a war may be survived.

There are many absurdities and inconsistencies in a community shelter program. Firstly, if available shelters are in large downtown buildings, how are people in outlying districts going to be convinced to rush back to the cities, when the cities themselves would be prime and likely targets? Those Civil Defense arrows, which for years pointed to some vague haven in the country, are now turned around to point to a cellar in the city. But city shelters would be designed to protect from fallout, not from blast and firestorm, which are the immediate effects of a nuclear explosion. The fallout gets you later, if you're lucky.

Then there is the question of time in reaching the shelters, and what number is to enter, and who is to be turned away, and who, and by what authority, will do that. The resultant panic would be the last experience of those deluded enough to enter a shelter with the hope that they would emerge alive.

Advocates of fallout shelters often argue that a doctor does not spare medication even though he knows the patient is about to die, and therefore (they say) we must have shelters even though we know—and the Government knows—there would be little hope for the population . . . The right, and only, prescription, is a positive approach to peace. And the road to recovery lies in reducing the war-fever, and eliminating the narcotic effect of Civil Defense.

Congo Premier's Visit Points Up Peace Hope—And U.S. Activities

WASHINGTON — Premier Adoula's visit to Washington this week came at one of the more opportune moments in the whole span of the Congo's turbulent existence.

It was opportune because the shape of a stable central government is emerging, and outlook for an end to the worst of the civil strife is in sight.

Adoula's conferences at the UN and his talks with President Kennedy, Secretary Rusk, and officials of the World Bank this week could proceed with some chance of accomplishing something toward helping him guide his fragile nation along the hard road which still lies ahead.

THE NEXT STAGE in the Congo will undoubtedly have its disappointments. But when you compare the direction of events today with that of a year or two ago, there is reason to give the United Nations considerable credit.

Patrice Lumumba, unstable pro-Communist firebrand under whose leadership the worst could happen and usually did, is no longer on the scene.

A central government, approved by parliament, is extending its influence throughout the Congo.

Adoula has, at this point, successfully countered two secessionist movements — that of pro-Belgium Moise Tshombe of Katanga province and that of the pro-communist, Antoine Gizenga of Oriental province. Tshombe has accepted an agreement to work with the central government which, if faithfully carried out, is most promising.

Adoula's handling of Gizenga showed the premier at his best. He gave his vice premier enough leeway to bring about his own discrediting, and as a result the central government has freed itself from a dangerous pro-Communist influence.

WHILE SOME aspects of UN day-to-day operation in the Congo can be fairly criticized, in the perspective of all that has happened there it has carried forward a riskful and difficult task.

Under the nearly unanimous and repeated votes of the General Assembly, the UN went into the Congo to secure the central government from external and internal threats. The UN did not create a united Congo; Belgium created the united Congo. The UN's duty was to help retain the unity of a nation which was given over to its care.

Premier Adoula's estimate of the UN role is that "it enabled the Congo to keep its sovereignty and independence. If the UN had not acted, the Congo would probably have been divided and occupied by foreign powers."

The reason the U. S. consistently backed UN intervention was to avoid such a strife-torn Congo that Soviet and American forces would have inevitably been drawn into the vacuum.

Jack Cimino—The Friendly Electrician

He's A Man Happy At His Work

By DON KEOWN

When Sebastian (Jack) Cimino was appointed to the Fairfax City Council, he served three months and resigned.

"I just couldn't stand the bickering and politics," he explains.

On the other hand, he served Fairfax for a number of years on its planning and recreation commissions and enjoyed every meeting of those bodies.

"Not all the commissioners agreed on the matters that came before them," he recalls, "but there was a willingness to hear out each other's opinions without petty arguments. I had a feeling we were accomplishing something constructive in a harmonious atmosphere."

THIS TELLS YOU much about the character of Cimino, Marin electrical contractor. He's a soft-spoken, gentle man who shuns controversy but not civic responsibility and service. He's also a generous and modest man. Many a worthy Marin project — the Marin Art and Garden Center, the Girl Scouts' Arequipa, the Fairfax Community Church, etc.—has benefited from Cimino's willingness to donate his personal skill and labor and the facilities of his firm. But when he's asked about such contributions, Cimino smiles in embarrassment and says only, "I don't like to talk about that. It sounds too much like I'm blowing my own horn."

But if Cimino is reluctant to "blow his horn," the people who know him do not hesitate to do so for him. They will tell you that Jack Cimino is a credit to his community and to his chosen profession of electrician.

As for that profession, Cimino says: "I have never for a minute regretted my choice. It has given me a life that might not have been the most exciting, but it has been rich and satisfying. Without hesitation, I recommend it to any young man who might feel he has an aptitude for working with electricity."

Cimino was born in Tampa, Fla., the son of parents from Sicily. The father was a cigar maker and, since his work was seasonal, the family traveled widely and frequently. There were five brothers, four of whom are still living, and Sebastian was the oldest. The family life was typically "old country" and Italian was spoken in the home.

As early as the age of 13, while still attending grammar school, young Sebastian was spending his summer "vacations" on the assembly line of a belt factory at Hammond, Ind., working six days a week, eight hours per day, for 50 cents a day. It was hard and monotonous work for a youngster.

THE BRIGHT SPOT of his boyhood, Cimino recalls, came in 1913 when his grandfather sent his mother money so that she and her sons could visit him in Sicily. The Ciminos planned to be abroad but four months. But while they were overseas, World War I broke out. Italy entered the conflict on the side of the Allies. And German U-boat warfare made passage home almost impossible.

Sebastian recalls today an Italian immigration official looking at the Cimino brothers and telling their mother that she had "four fine future soldiers." "Not my sons," determined Angela Maria Cimino and she redoubled her efforts to secure passage home. Finally, after a nine-month stay in Sicily, facilities aboard a passenger ship were reserved and the mother and her flock returned to the United States in a voyage made under blackout and in constant fear of submarine attack.

"When we reached home, we had to learn English all over again," Cimino recalls. "We had completely forgotten it during our stay in Italy."

It was not until his final year in grammar school that Cimino developed an interest in electricity. "It started with radio. I began putting crystal sets together and I became fascinated by electricity."

From Denver, Colo., the Cimino family moved to San Francisco where the father, an expert in the blending of tobaccos and the other more intricate aspects of cigar making, went to work as a foreman for a cigar company. And there, at 16, Jack Cimino began his career in electricity. He enrolled in night high school and at the same time took a job as an apprentice electrician for the Buzzell Electric Works at a dollar a day for a six-day work week in the concern's motor shop. From there after a few months he went to Hetty Brothers, still an apprentice.

The family was residing in San Francisco's North Beach and the parents were delighted at the Italian flavor of their surroundings.

Cimino recalls that most of his work days were devoted to helping to wire some of San Francisco's oldest and largest mansions which were shifting from spark-ignited gas illumination to electrical wiring at the time.

"I CRAWLED through attics only 18 or 20 inches high, and was happy doing it," he remembers. "This, I told myself, was for me."

He worked for Hetty until 1922. Then he joined the union and asked his boss for a raise to comply with union rates. The employer delivered one of those "you youngsters think you know it all. Why, when I was your age ..." lectures, and a short time thereafter Cimino was laid off.

He then began a long association with the Severin Electric Co. Starting out as an apprentice, he advanced to journeyman, then foreman, then superintendent, then to estimating and finally became the manager of the business. He remained with the firm for 23 years. And early in that period, in 1925, he married a San Francisco-born girl of German-English stock. He had met Dorothy at a club function.

After five years as manager of Severin, he cut his ties with the firm in 1945 "because an interest in the business I had been promised failed to materialize." And he decided to go into business for himself, "because I thought if I could make money for Severin, I ought to be able to make money for myself."

Marin was a logical choice as a site for that business because he and his family had resided in Fairfax since 1931. His wife's grandfather, a Fairfax resident, had coaxed them into moving to Marin "and he did us a tremendous favor." Six days a week, Cimino had caught the 5 a.m. train to the ferryboat and the city. Six days a week he arrived home at 7 p.m. or later. "But we thought nothing of that in those days. It was worth it to live in Marin."

With Severin, Cimino had tackled and successfully handled a number of large-scale assignments. A new power plant completed at Pearl Harbor just before the bombing of Dec. 7, 1941, was one such. Also just before the war, he supervised the installation of a new boiler plant and underground telephone communications at Hawthorne Naval Ammunition Depot in Nevada. When a subcontractor encountered difficulty in the wiring of the floating drydocks at Pacific Bridge Co. in Alameda, an emergency call went out for Cimino. And he

IN HIS OFFICE in San Anselmo, Sebastian (Jack) Cimino, owner of the Cimino Electric Co., Inc., dictates a letter to his secretary, Miss Mary Druley, who has been with him for 15 years. Electrical contractor Cimino says he has never regretted his decision to enter the field. And, he adds, the biggest opportunities in electricity and electronics still lie ahead. The Story Of Jack Cimino—saw that major job through to a successful completion. Severin also had charge of all fire protection installations for the World's Fair at Treasure Island. During World War II he was awarded the Navy Civilian Service merit award for his handling of military projects.

BUT NOW CIMINO was on his own and working out of his Fairfax home on a far different scale. Soon he took in a partner, another former Severin man, Paul DiPietro. And the business was moved from the Cimino home to space in the Irwin Street building occupied by R. E. Murphy and Sons. DiPietro next constructed a building along Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael next to the King Cotton and the electrical contracting firm moved into that structure in 1948.

In 1954, Cimino bought out DiPietro's share of the business and moved the firm to its present location at 110 Spaulding Street, San Anselmo. DiPietro now owns and manages the Wye Club in San Rafael.

At its start, the new enterprise had concentrated largely upon residential wiring. But it soon began to branch out into commercial work and on public buildings such as schools.

The wiring of San Rafael's Albert Field is one job of which Cimino was particularly proud.

Cimino was active in the Ross Valley Players and handled the stage lighting for that troupe for years. Consequently, it was to him that Mrs. Norman Livermore came with the news that an art and garden fair was being contemplated for Ross and with a request that he look into the possibiiities of outdoor lighting for a section of the grounds for that affair.

Cimino met the requirements by stringing lights on the big magnolia tree in the "barnyard" area and by placing floodlights on the ground. Since then, Marin Art and Garden Center lighting has been a continuing responsibility and interest for Cimino. And is typical of the man that the initial installation cost the fair only the cost of materials—without profit — and that even today Cimino makes no charge for the considerable amount of his own time that he devotes to the continuing improvement of lighting at the center.

Girl Scout officials encountered much the same situation when they approached Cimino concerning wiring for their Arequipa facilities at Fairfax. And Cimino also contributed the wiring for the Fairfax Community Church to which he belongs, his fellow church members will tell you.

THERE HAVE BEEN other similar unselfish services to his community by Cimino, but

Jack Cimino Puts His Skill To Work For Worthy Causes

he insists that "it is just my way of making my contribution to worthy causes. Others contribute just as much in other ways. And there's no reason special mention should be made of my donations."

Cimino Electric Co. has prospered and from its start as a one-man enterprise it has grown to the point where it now maintains a work crew that averages 16 men plus a woman employee in the office. Jack Cimino still works a six-day week that usually runs from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The administration of the business now occupies almost all of his time, although on rare occasions he may still don work clothes and do a bit of wiring "for something that especially interests me."

WHILE JACK CIMINO will still occasionally go out on a wiring job that has special interest for him, the administration of his business, Cimino Electric Co. Inc., is a task that now demands most of his time. Here in his office at 110 Spaulding, San Anselmo, he "figures" a contracting job. (Independent-Journal photo)

The Ciminos had two children. Daughter Joan died, the victim of leukemia at the age of 16.

There was a time when the father hoped that his son, Robert, would follow him into the business. And before World War II, Robert did study electrical engineering at Marin Junior College. During the war he enlisted as an aviation cadet. Back from the conflict, he returned to the Kentfield college and tried to resume where he had left off. Then one day he went to his mother:

"I know that dad would like to have me become an electrical engineer, but I just can't seem to get interested in it," he told her.

Dorothy Cimino knew their son's decision not to go into the electrical business would be a blow to her husband. But she also knew Jack Cimino to be an understanding man who would want Robert to do what made him happiest. And so it was agreed that Robert Cimino would go to southern California and enroll in a school conducted by Northrop Aviation. After graduation, Robert went to work for North American Aviation in its engineering department. He is married and lives in Hawthorne. And he and his wife have presented the Fairfax Ciminos with three grandchildren—two boys and a girl.

DURING HIS service on the Fairfax Planning Commission, Jack Cimino is particularly proud of the accomplished rezoning of a considerable section of the business district, and of a new street sign program.

While he at first gives an appearance of shyness, Cimino is essentially a friendly man who mixes and mingles well. As a result, he is a past president of the San Rafael Kiwanis Club and a member of the YMCA board of governors, the Elks Club, the Shrine and the Fairfax Community Church. He headed the church cabinet during the period its new place of worship was constructed and directed the membership canvass to raise funds for that project, obtaining some $35,000 in pledges. He is again chairman of the church cabinet at present.

He served on the Fairfax School Board for seven and a half years during a period when extensive building programs were undertaken. He is proud of his honorary Parent-Teacher Assn. memberships, sponsored by the Oak Manor and Deer Park units.

He's a member of the San Francisco Electrical Contractors Assn. and the Redwood Empire National Electrical Contractors Assn. For eight years he was chairman of the Joint Apprenticeship Committee.

Twelve years ago he developed diabetes. Regularly he must take insulin. But it is typical of Jack Cimino that he has accepted that situation with tranquility. "I've found I can live with it with very little trouble," he says. "Just about the only effects I feel are in my diet. Otherwise, it hasn't cut down on my activities."

Outside his work, his family, and his community servives, Cimino has one major interest—his hobby of gardening. "I find that when I'm working in the garden, I just forget business or any other problems," he notes.

As might be expected, the Cimino home at 12 Meernaa Ave., Fairfax, is all-electric. One unusual feature is the floodlight system Cimino installed in his yard as a property protection measure. Intruders would receive a rude surprise. From any one of five points in the home, Cimino or his wife can flick a switch that floods the entire yard with bright illumination.

WHEN APPROACH by a young man considering entering the electrical field, Cimino has no hesitation in urging him to do so.

Why? "Well, first, of course, there is what it has done for me. I owe a lot to Edison and those other great men who first found out electricity could be put to great use on behalf of mankind.

"But also there is the sincere feeling I have that electricity is still in its infancy. The greatest gains are yet to be made. And I envy the young men who will participate in those gains. I think they'll find electricity fascinating."

Certainly, Jack Cimino has found it so.

The Ultra-Modern In Kitchen Aids

THE PRIDE AND JOY of Mrs. Roy Claxton in the all-electric kitchen of her new home at 305 Riviera Dr. along the perimeter of beautiful Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club on Marin Bay is her Tappan electronic range. It turns out a cake in four minutes, prepares frozen vegetables in four and a half minutes, a small roast in 11 minutes. Mrs. Claxton can prepare an entire dinner for six in a half hour — thanks to the range.

THERE'S NOT ONE but two electric dishwashers — also Tappans — in the Roy Claxton home on Marin Bay. And here the Claxtons make use of this most unusual "his" and "her" arrangement in their kitchen. More pre-rinse and rinse cycles with fewer moving parts are other features of these ultra-modern kitchen helpers. Claxton is a partner in 20th Century Builders, one of eight custom builders active in Marin Bay, which built the home.

ELECTRIC-POWERED VEHICLES were a common sight on American roads in the early stages of the automotive age. They are fewer now, but far from vanished. Above can be seen a couple of them. At left Billy Neader, San Rafael police woman, has the battery of her electric-powered traffic cart recharged by Bill May, chief mechanic for the city of San Rafael's utility yard on Francisco Boulevard. The cart must be so charged every day. And at right is a vehicle which doesn't, but could, travel city streets. Buzz Davis, Independent-Journal pressroom foreman, is seen filling with distilled water the batteries of the fork-type paper lift used to hoist the huge newsprint rolls upon which your I-J is printed. Its batteries, too, will then be plugged into a charger outlet. (Photos by Jim Kean)

Marin Commercial Lighting Brightens

A noticeable brightening of stores and work places in Marin County is due to a healthy new growth in improved commercial lighting.

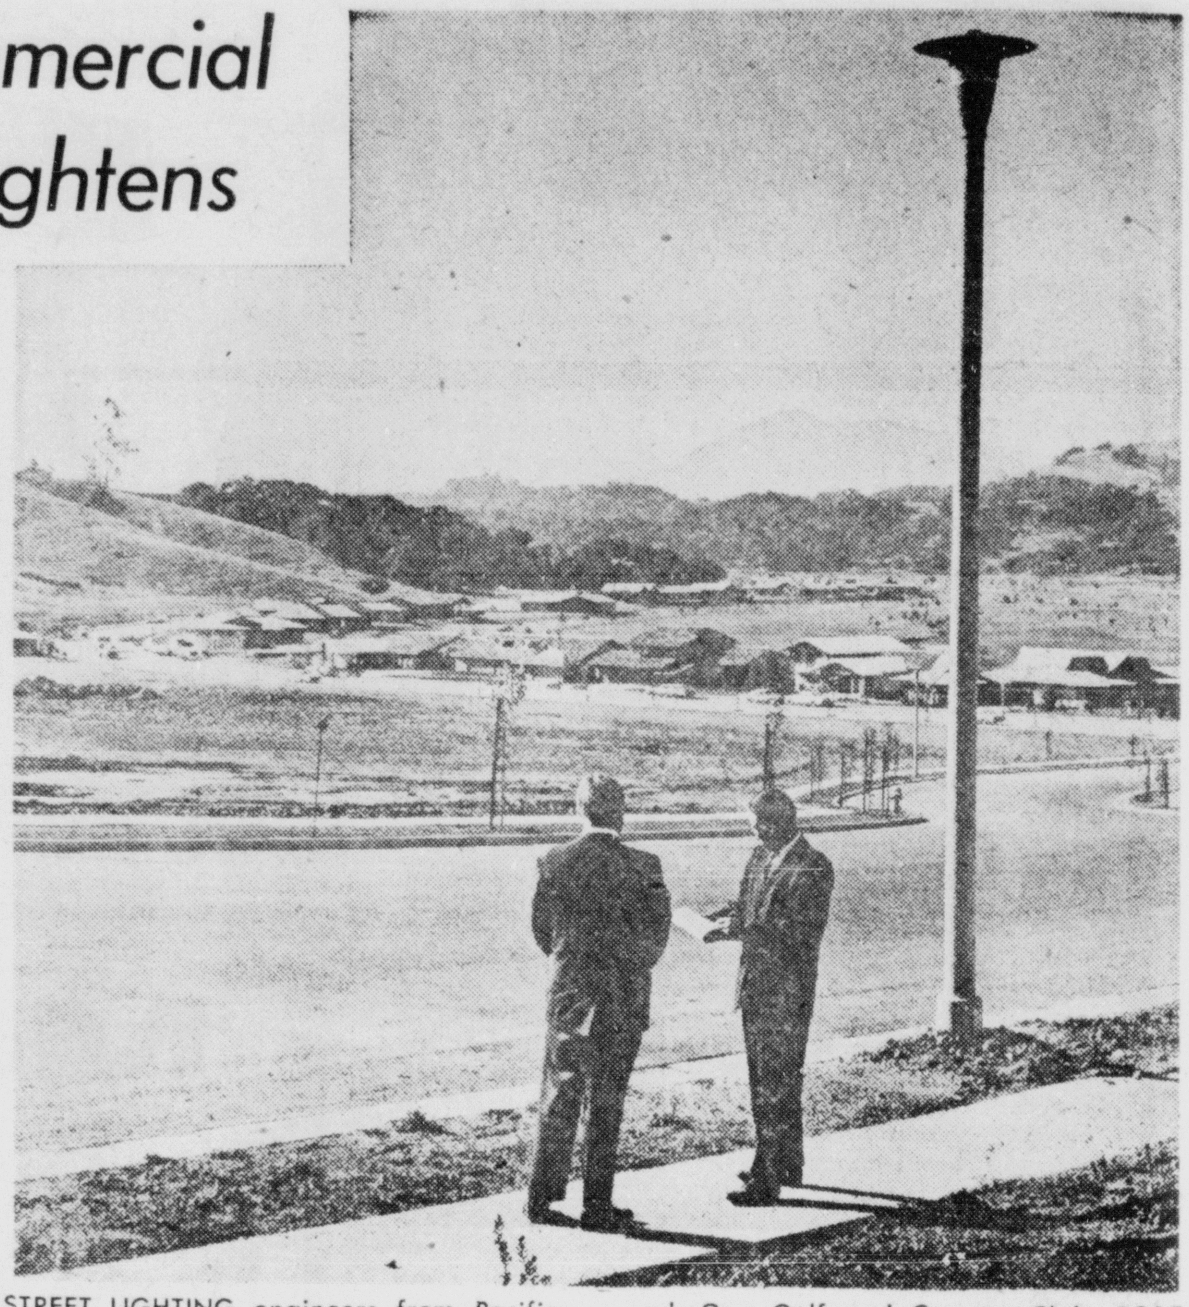

Entire ceilings of light are becoming common today in modern Marin businesses. Tomorrow, perhaps, walls will be luminous, too.

HISTORICALLY, levels of illumination have doubled each decade. This exceptional growth of lighting reflects the recognition by business and industry of the contribution proper illumination makes toward increased production, stimulation of sales and improved office efficiency. Good lighting helps move merchandise off the shelves; customers naturally gravitate toward the brightly lighted store.

Research has proved the need for higher levels of lighting. Lamp manufacturers have increased the life and life output of existing sources and developed new lamps. One of these is the remarkable new iodine quartz lamp, which is tubular in shape and about the size of a pencil.

It has a higher light output for the bulb size than any incandescent lamp and emits 98 per cent of its initial light output throughout its life. This lamp is useful for infrared purposes and for large area lighting.

Another lighting development is "flat light" or electroluminescence, which is coming into commercial use after 10 years of laboratory work. It opens imaginative new vistas of architectural decoration and such useful devices as luminous stair treads, table tops and highway directional signs.

STREET LIGHTING engineers from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. assisted in the preparation of a master street lighting plan for Marin Bay Homes. Here at the site of that scenic new development around the Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club, PG&E commercial lighting representative Mark Jensen, right, consults with an engineer on the plan. The attractive light standards support bright color-improved mercury vapor lamps.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. maintains a staff of lighting specialists and engineers, available upon request to provide lighting layouts for new or remodeled buildings, where an architect or engineer has not been retained for that purpose. These lighting specialists are ready to solve the particular lighting problems of industrial inspection, floodlighting, sports lighting and critical seeing tasks, as well as the problems relating to general illumination requirements.

As a public service, PG&E also assists communities, residents or property owners in planning better street lighting.

Good street lighting makes streets safe and friendly on even the darkest night and improves real estate values.

Skilled street lighting engineers are available on request to discuss the needs of a community with city officials and make recommendations that will lead to a reasonable, economic modernization of the community's street illumination.

SURVEYS WILL be made on request at no cost to local communities. A master plan will be developed to fit a city's budget. The plan includes traffic studies and research intto the future growth of the area. Maps are prepared of the areas to be lighted. Discussions are held with community officials to determine what is needed at once, how much can be provided from current funds and the estimated needs of the future.

The best equipment to do the job will be selected and recommended.

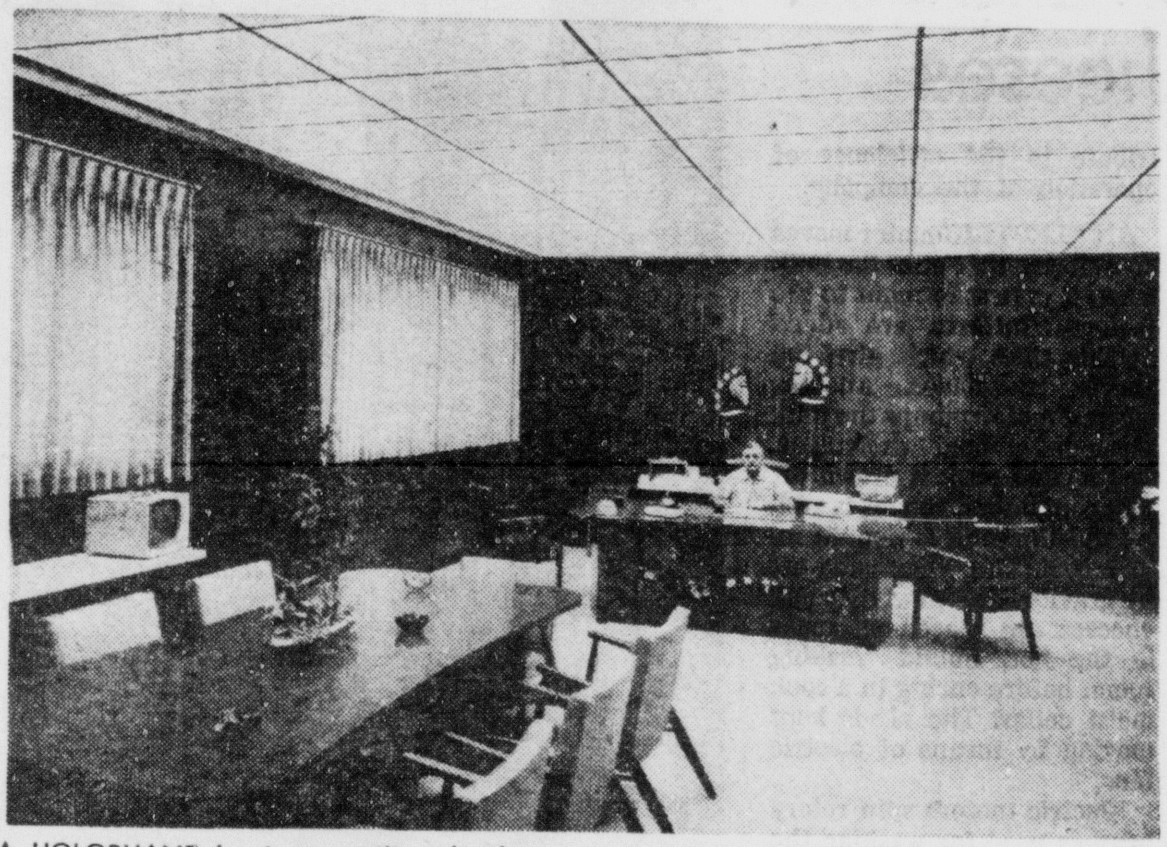

Thus PG&E assists the community in long-range planning that permits both the community and the utility to develop a street lighting system that will be efficient and economical now and in the years to come.

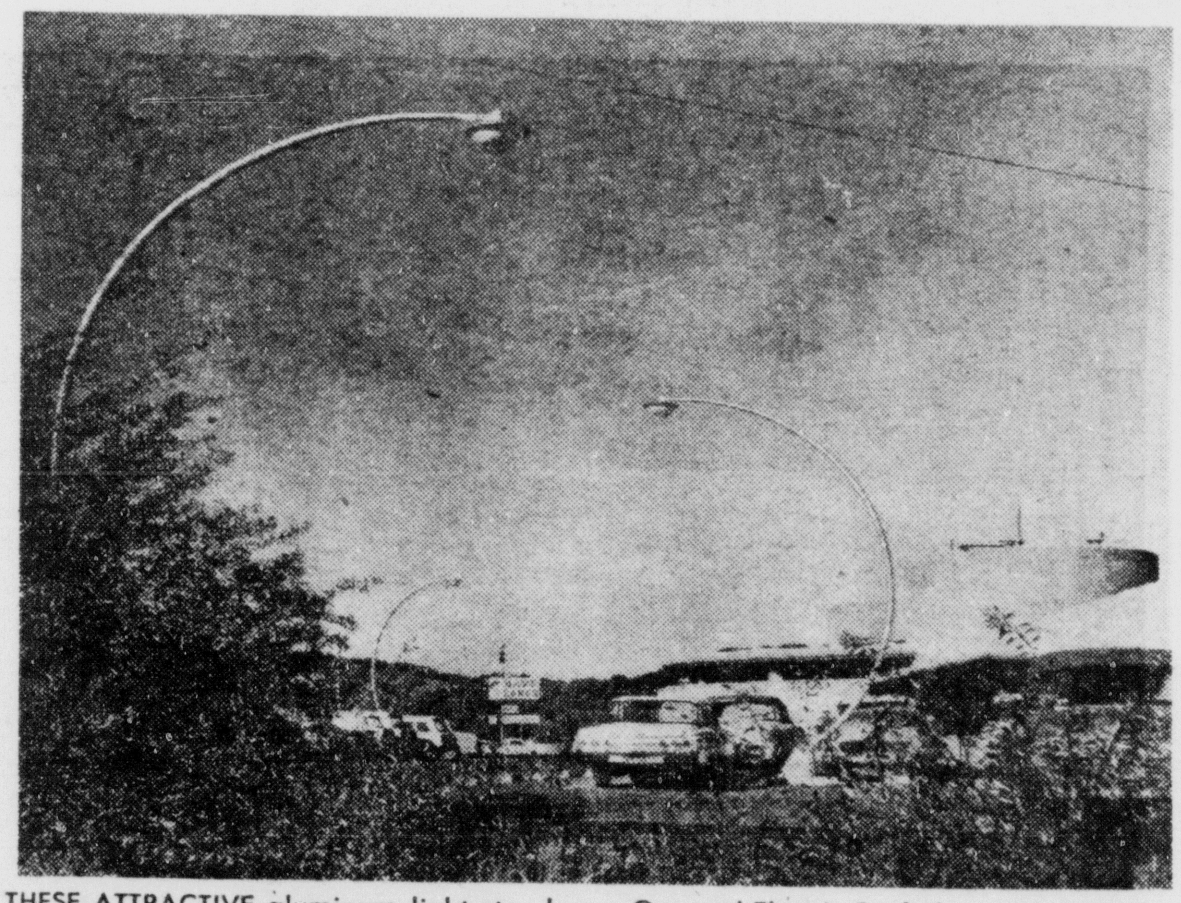

AT NIGHT, the new color-improved mercury vapor street lights effectively and attractively illuminate the Marin Bay Homes near San Rafael. Marin Bay, says PG&E, is the first residential subdivision in Marin County where street lighting meets the Illuminating Engineering Society's recommended practice for levels of illumination. Underground power distribution is another feature.

For A Lighter, Brighter Marin

A HOLOPHANE luminous ceiling lends a pleasant, warm glow to the office of Joseph R. Filippo, general contractor, at 81 Joseph Court, San Rafael. Filippo sits at his desk, which has a dimmer control built in at knee level that brightens or dims ceiling. Ceiling has prismatic lens panels that control glare of fluorescent lamps. Lighting was designed by Mark Jensen, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. commercial representative. It is the only luminous ceiling of its kind in Marin County.

THESE ATTRACTIVE aluminum light standards at Nave Lanes, near Novato, form a curved shape, reflecting the versatility of modern design in outdoor lighting. Pacific Gas and Electric Co. lighting specialists are available at no cost for consultation to builders and architects in planning up-to-date, economical lighting.

Electricity Plays Major Role In Turning Out Fine Cheeses

By RAY PIERCE

A cheese lover's Mecca is the Marin French Cheese Co., makers of "Rouge et Noir" brand cheeses.

The small, family-owned cheese factory is located in the rolling hills of Marin County dairy country, nine miles west of Petaluma on the old Petaluma-Point Reyes Road.

MARIN FRENCH makes four types of so-called "soft" cheeses — Camembert, Brie, Breakfast Cheese and Schloss.

Marin French is the only Camembert factory west of the Mississippi and one of four in the United States. The others are in Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio.

Jefferson A. Thompson, a cheese maker from Illinois, bought the 400-acre ranch on which the factory is located in 1865, operating it as a dairy. In 1906 he decided to make cheese, and sent his son, Jefferson T. Thompson, to Storrs in Connecticut to learn how to make Camembert. At that time there were many other little cheese factories in Marin County — dairymen made cheese as a sideline.

At first the Breakfast Cheese was the most important product, being used extensively in the saloons as a free lunch item. When the saloons went out with prohibition, the Camembert came into its own and today accounts for about half the production.

At first Jefferson T. Thompson called his cheese "Yellow Buck" brand, but fellow Elks Club members objected to a picture of a moose on a package of cheese, so a newspaper friend in San Francisco in 1910 dreamed up "Rouge et Noir" as the most French-sounding name possible.

Today the grandsons of Jefferson A. Thompson run the factory, taking turns as president of the family corporation. Brothers Douglas and Edward Thompson are tinkerers and inventors and have smoothed and speeded production and packaging by means of a collection of electric-driven Rube Goldberg-like contraptions which they have devised.

Their cousin, Pierce Thompson, is a graduate of the University of California at Davis in dairy bacteriology and has improved cheese making methods.

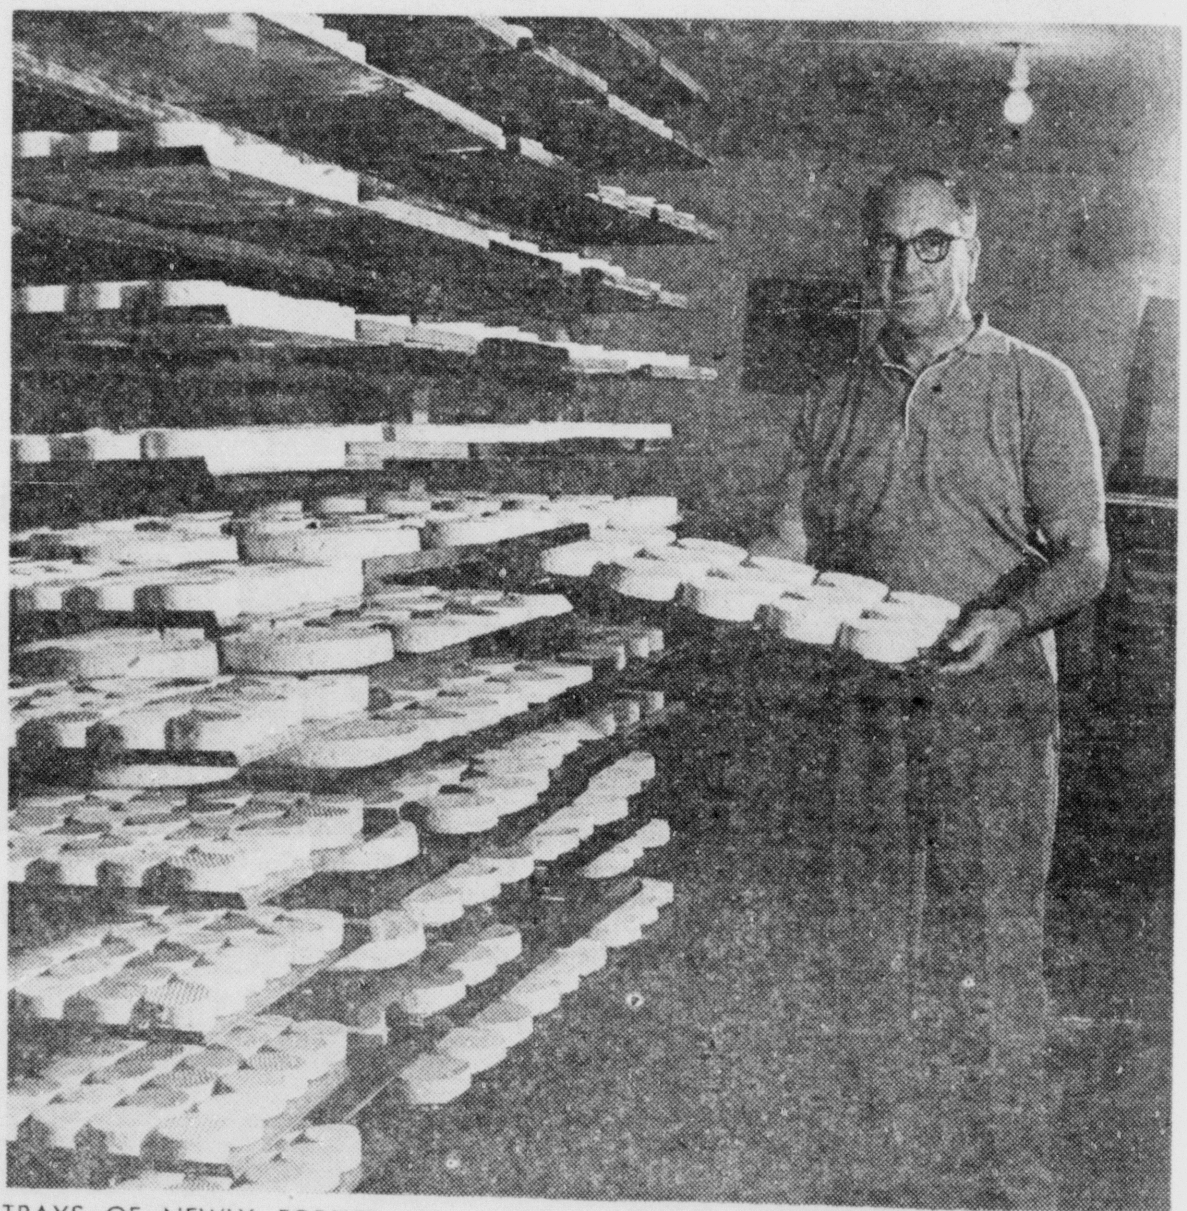

Many electric motors contribute to the efficiency of operation of the company.

AN ELECTRIC motor moves an agitator that stirs the milk when it is first brought to the factory. Cultures are added at this time which give the cheese its flavor. Another electric motor pumps the milk through a heat exchanger. The heated milk is drawn off into containers, rennet is added and the milk is poured into forms. The whey runs off by gravity. The newly shaped cheeses are placed on racks in the hot, humid "making room, before curing in a cool, moist cellar. The air is kept moving by means of electric fans.

Electric motors spin rotary brushes used for washing the trays and cylinders, operate machines used in the "box factory"—a part of the cheese factory where the little wooden cheese boxes are made—and wrap the packages in cellophane.

PIERCE THOMPSON checks flasks of cultures growing in light bulb-heated incubator at Marin French Cheese Co. factory in rural Marin County. The cultures will be added to pasturized milk as the first step in making Rouge et Noir cheeses.

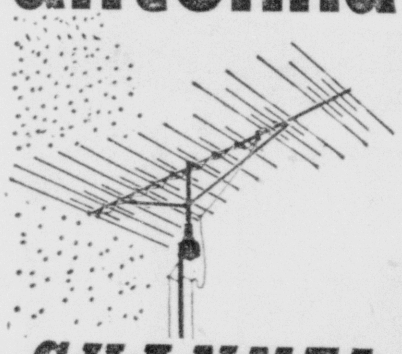

TRAYS OF NEWLY FORMED cheese are placed on racks in "making room" at Marin French Cheese Co. Pierce Thompson holds a tray of Camemberts. Smaller cheeses in left foreground are Breakfast Cheeses, big flat ones in center of rack Bries. Making room is warm, kept at 87 per cent humidity. Cheeses stay on racks 30 hours, then go to cool, moist cellars for additional curing.

They are working in the packaging room of the Marin French Cheese Co., a family corporation in northern Marin. Wrapped portions of the cheese are then placed in boxes, center, which are date-stamped before being given another wrapping of cellophane.

FINISHED CAMEMBERTS on rack in foreground await cutting into portions and packaging in Marin French Cheese Co. plant. Circular box with wires in right foreground slices cheese rounds into six equal portions. Mrs. Olga Lavio, left, and Frances Corda wrap individual pieces in cellophane, place them in boxes. Lighting Fixtures Bring Back Elegance

But The Inconvenience Of Old Is No Longer A Problem

MRS. DONALD McKEE shows you one of the carriage lights used to light and decorate her home at 90 Westwood Dr., Kent Woodlands. This is a large scale model of a stable oil lamp with the tapering base used for the fuel supply in the original.

Ever since the advent of electric lighting, people have been trying to retain the graces of candle lighting without the attendant inconvenience.

The chandelier with its banks of sputtering candles was first replaced by the hissing gas chandelier and then wired for the incandescent light. Electric globes have been fashioned to simulate candle flames and all manner of candle, gas and fuel oil lanterns have been redesigned for electric lighting.

In merchandising various lighting arrangements, the term candle, to indicate soft lighting, is used.

Shading and dimming arrangements have pointed toward one thing, subduing the brilliance, but retaining the convenience and safety.

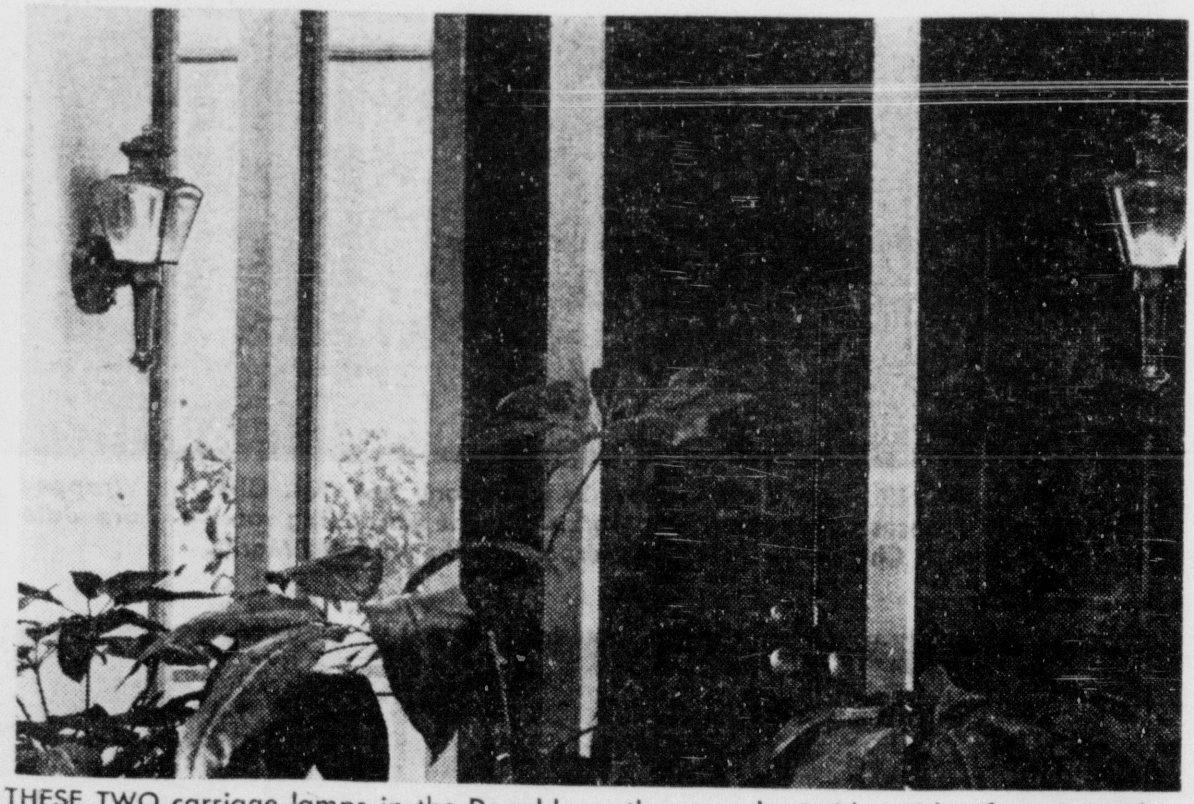

As every home reflects its owner's interpretation of elegance, so lighting fixtures vary to fit their surroundings. Electrical contractors such as Bowman Electric of Larkspur not only try to anticipate these fashions but also prepare any number of established forms of electricity. These range from ornate antique chandeliers to metal owls and obsolete stop and go traffic lights.

In order to keep up with these varied demands, the showroom of Bowman Electric is a fairy land of hanging sculpture. A description of this electrical garden would be a series of descriptions of its individual parts as they suggest no particular pattern or era unless it's the present.

The first advantage of electric lighting, its power, which has been magnified in some uses by using arcs, has been the subject of much research for methods of softening or modifying its power. The coating of the inside of globes and the substitute of gasses for filament (neon) have been steps in this direction.

As suburban homes became decorative as well as functional in America and estates became the property of a greater number of people, the market for outdoor lighting and combinations of indoor-outdoor lighting become more important. The function of the outdoor lantern and the medieval torch were simulated in electric lights. Chandeliers of every age and culture and lanterns from every country have been adapted to electricity.

THESE TWO carriage lamps in the Donald McKee entry hall are exact duplicates of those used on either side of carriages before electricity. Their fuel was either coal oil or carbide. (Photos by Ken Molino)

The Fuse Protects Your Home

Owners of inadequately wired homes are apt to look upon fuses or circuit breakers as more of a nuisance than a friend. Actually, they are the life guards of home electricity. They protect against dangerous "shorts" and serious overloading.

When lights go out or electric appliances do not operate, and if electricity is off in only a part of fthe house, a fuse has "blown."

Here's how to look for the cause of the trouble:

DISCONNECT and check cords to see whether any are broken, frayed, have no insulation, or have loose ends at the plug. Or, see whether the circuit has been overloaded with too many large appliances connected to the same circuit or outlet.

Next, examine the fuses in the box. The blown one usually will have a darkened top or you can see where the metal fuse strip has melted. Open the main switch, unscrew the blown fuse with finger tips and replace it with a new one.

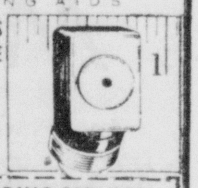

Should the new fuse blow immediately don't replace it, but look for the cause of the trouble as mentioned above, or call an electrician. If electricity is off throughout the house, a fuse may have blown at the main entrance switch box. If, however, your neighbors likewise have no lights, the trouble probably is on Pacific Gas and Electric Co. lines, and you should notify PG&E.

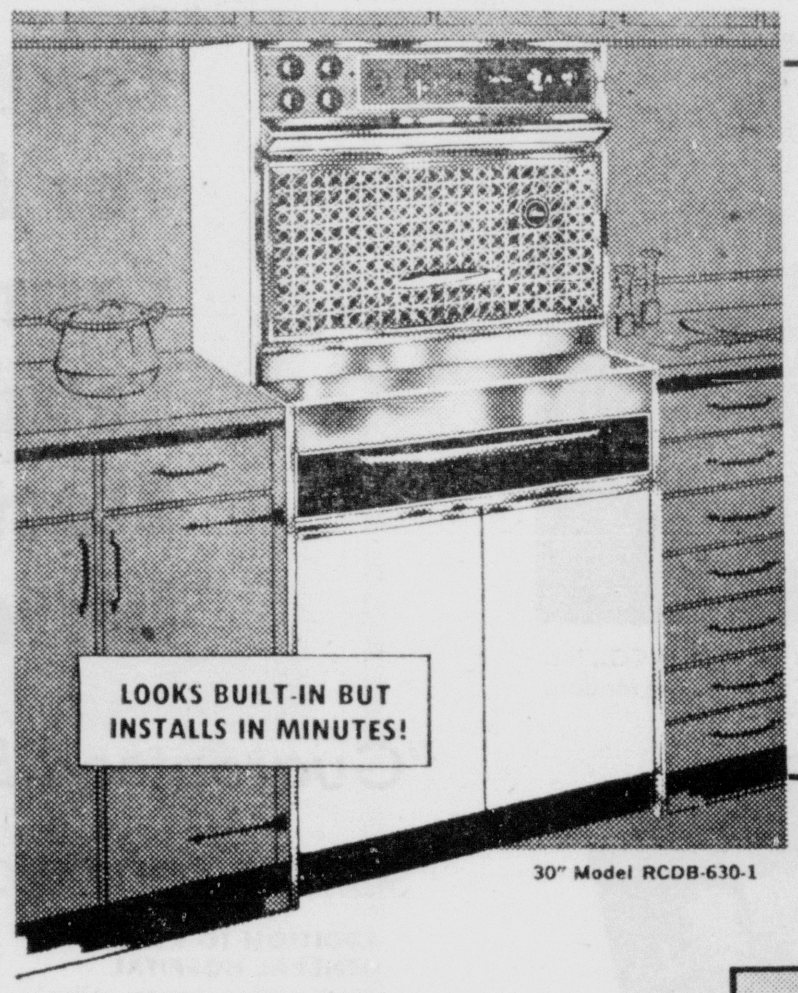

Have a supply of fuses on hand. They are inexpensive and can be obtained at hardware and variety stores, electrical shops, etc. The size is important. On branch circuits in the fuse box it should be 15 or 20 amperes. The main entrance switch at the meter generally calls for 30 amperes or larger. You should buy delayed action type fuses for circuits which supply motor-driven electric appliances, and thus safeguard against fuse blowouts resulting from temporary overloads.

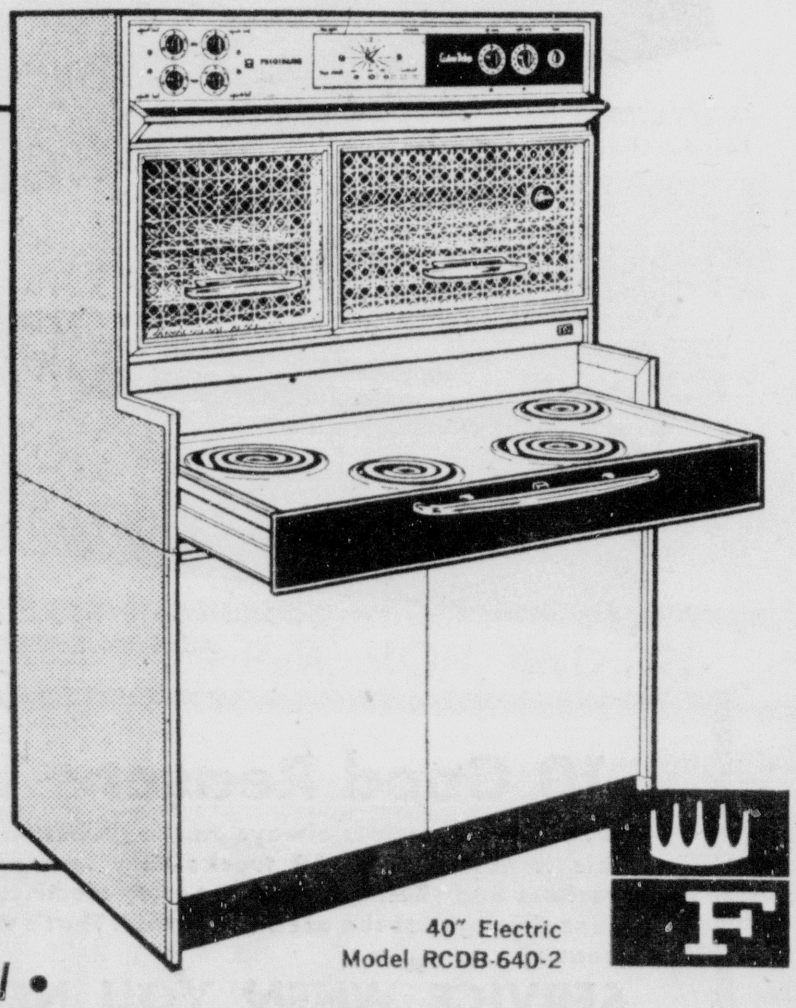

NINE TIMES out of 10 blown fuses are caused by low housepower. The symptoms of this are noticeable in other ways—lights flicker or dim when appliances are turned on, appliances operate slowly, radios fade or the television picture shrinks.

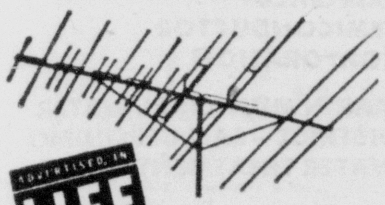

Inadequate housepower is costly. You pay for the current passing through your meter which you never use.

Marin Teen-Agers Know Electricity

An "inter-com" system from his upstairs bedroom to the kitchen downstairs, convenient for knowing when meals are ready, was the first real electronic accomplishment for Galen Armstrong, 43-C Pacheco St., San Rafael.

His latest is an electroplater which doubles as a battery charger which he can use to plate tableware, tools, and other items, or even chrome automobile parts.

HE BUILT BOTH units himself, projects in his Sir Francis Drake High School electricity and electronics classes.

Photographic equipment and its operation stimulated interest in electronics for John McCarthy, 201 San Anselmo Ave., San Anselmo, whose father Daniel F. is proprietor of Mac's Photo in San Anselmo.

His latest project for his Drake High shop classes was converting an old, unused manually operated photographic paper cutter into an automatic machine that cuts bulk rolls of printing paper into standard sizes up to five by seven.

Both boys are students in Milton Johnson's radio-electronics course at Drake. Both are sophomores with a prior year in basic electricity. Both want to take a full four years of electricity and electronics in high school.

IF THEY CAN work it in, that is. For both also want to go to college and take physics and chemistry as well as courses required for college entrance. And getting all that in, plus state requirements like physical education, government, and the rest, is no simple task.

Yet John and Galen are deadly serious about their electricity and electronics, and they fully intend to pursue them through college and into careers. They admit their specific plans are yet flexible. John is currently fascinated with the field of photographic machinery where, he says, automation is in its infancy.

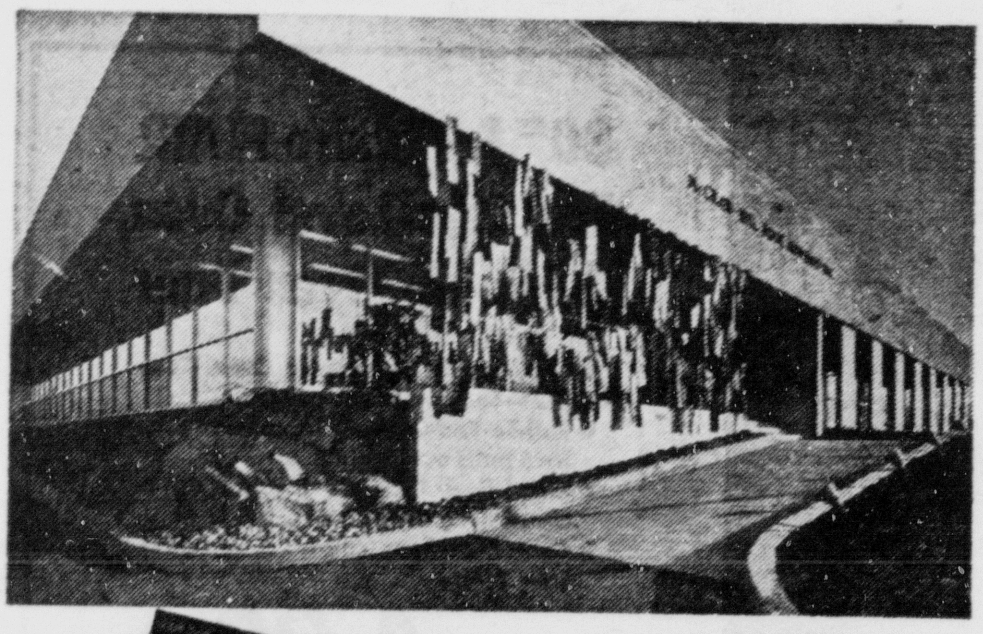

Galen has his bright eyes on the area of missiles with all its attendant complexes and demands for electronics.

Neither boy has a real workshop, something they dream about having someday. Both, however, have converted their rooms into minimum

IT'S ELECTRIC WEEK IN MARIN ONCE AGAIN

During the coming week the electrical industry in Marin and throughout the nation will be observing National Electrical Week.

The date for this annual observance is determined by the birthdate (Feb. 11) of the great Thomas Alva Edison, the man who made electricity a practical reality within the homes of America.

In addition to honoring Edison, the electrical industry annually makes use of the observance to make known to you some of the many benefits that are available from the miracle that is electricity.

It is, the people of the industry tell you, the time to take stock and ask yourself: "Are we making full use of our opportunities for living better electrically?"

In Marin County, this annual special National Electrical Week edition of your Independent-Journal Marin Magazine has become a traditional part of this observance.

It is our opportunity to tell you something of the people who are working for you in the electrical industry, of the young people who are studying electricity and electronics and planning careers in the field, of the wonderful new electrical appliances available to work for you in your homes, of the key parts played by electricity in agriculture, industry, commerce and recreation, and of new developments in the field of electrical power and electronics.

LATEST PROJECTS for two Drake students in electricity and electronics are an electro-plater, shown at left by Galen Armstrong who built it from "an idea" he saw in a magazine, and an automatic photo paper cutter built by John McCarthy for his father's photo shop in San Anselmo. The two boys are typical of the increasing number of "electronic bugs" found in Marin high schools. (Photos by Brooks Dutt) of living area and a maximum of work area.

Both students have "fooled around" with radios, too, and managed to repair several. John has also repaired the family television set and has constructed a Strobe flash gun unit for photography.

How did it all start?

"I'm not sure," John says. "I just liked this machinery in my dad's shop and got fooling around with it and got ideas and started reading some."

"Me?" asks Galen bashfully. "Oh, I don't know. A long time ago, when I was a kid, I liked to mess around with batteries and stuff."

7 Decades Of Street Lighting

How San Rafael Got Electrical Illumination

Electricity has been illuminating the streets of San Rafael for more than seven decades.

It was on Oct. 3, 1887, that town trustees granted pioneer utility promoter Allan Lee and his partner, J. O. Eldridge, a franchise for the erection and maintenance of an electric light plant.

The electric installation was erected and maintained at the same site where Lee and associates earlier had built the first gas service plant. And, interestingly enough, that site—at Third and Brooks — is now the locale of the new, half-completed Pacific Gas and Electric Co. office building.

SAN RAFAEL citizens had enjoyed, on a small scale, the benefits of gas service for lighting even before their town's incorporation. Records show that the community first substituted gas for the candles and kerosene of earlier days in November of 1871 when Allan Lee installed a Maxim gas machine and began selling gas at $5 per thousand cubic feet. Gas lighting at the time was no novelty. In San Francisco, the San Francisco Gas Co. had been lighting that city's streets since 1854.

Lee went on to build his first plant, completing it sometime before Aug. 2, 1875, when he and his associates were granted the first gas service franchise by the newly-incorporated town. Lee chose as his site a 250 by 150 foot lot at the south corner of Third Street that extended to a street between Third and Second that was not then named but was later to become Brooks.

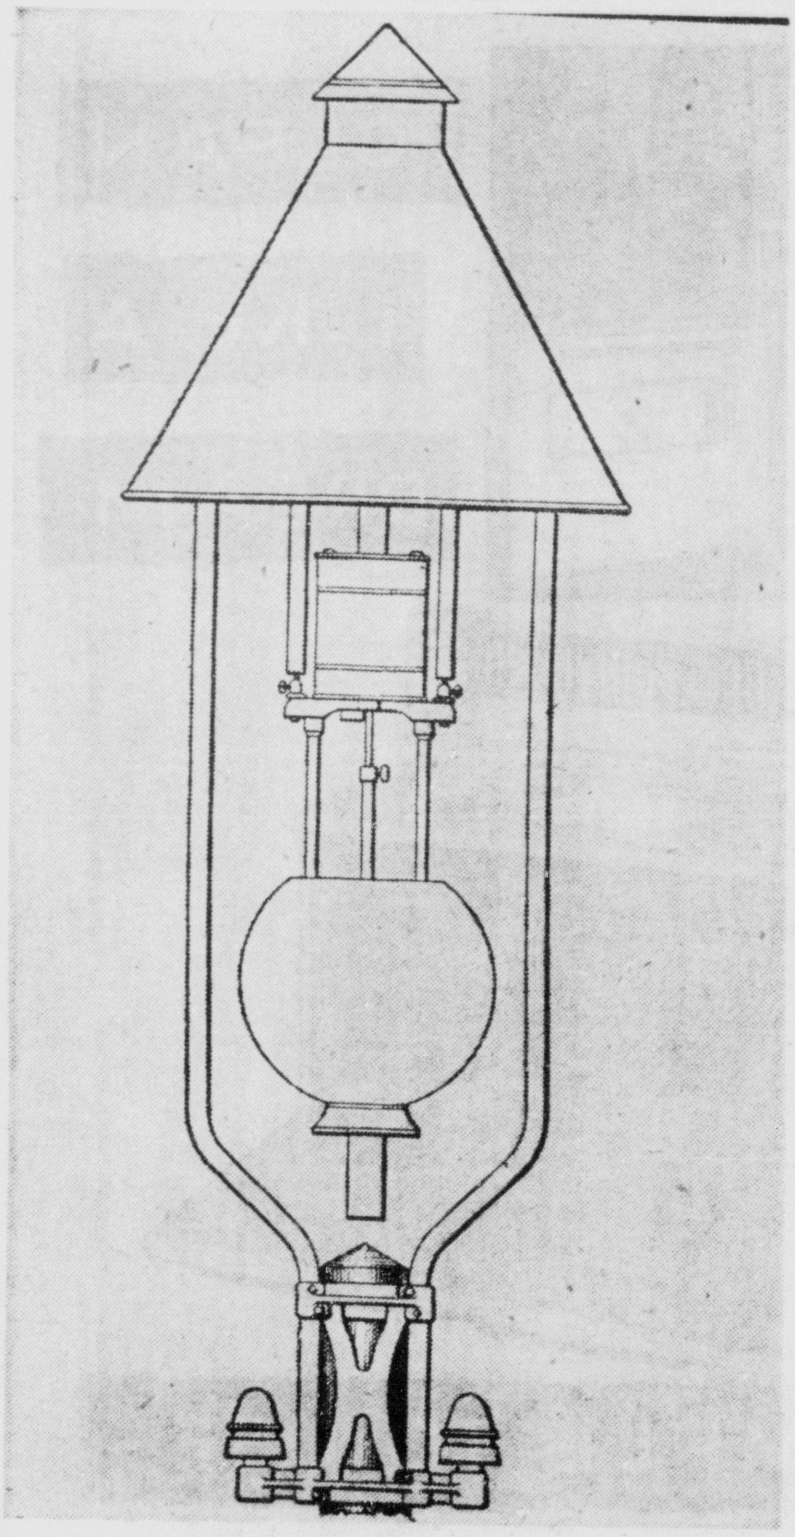

In 1876, Lee formed a partnership with J. O. Eldridge, and by 1883, the fledgling utility had become the San Rafael Gas Co., San Rafael's first utility company. It grew with the community. And in 1887 came the granting of the electric franchise and the addition of that service.

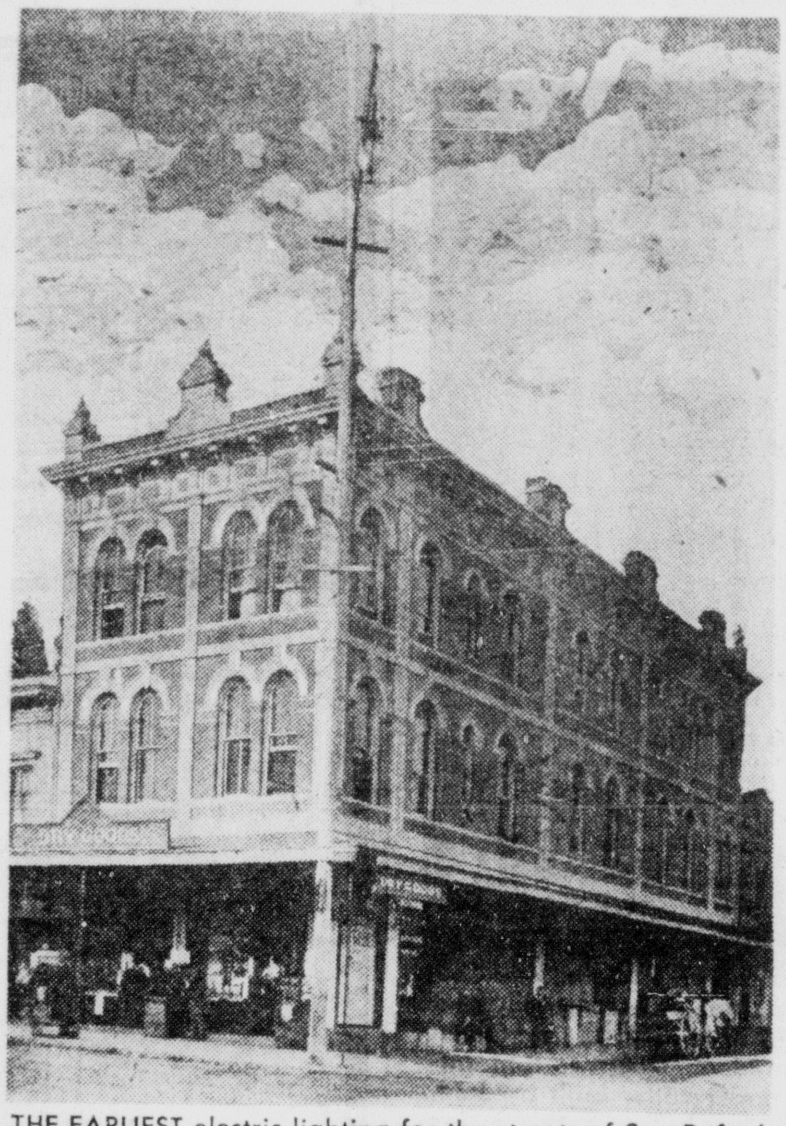

On Dec. 5, 1887, a new company was formed—the San Rafael Gas and Electric Co. Capitalized for $200,000, it was headed by Lee as its president with Sidney B. Cushing, Charles E. Green, Edward G. Stetson and Upton M. Gordon as directors. The new company purchased the plant and franchises of the pioneer San Rafael Gas Co. for $149,500, payable in stock.

Lee was to remain president of the company until his death in 1894, when Sidney B. Cushing took over the reins and held them until 1901.

AUTHORITIES such as H. R. Eklund, dean of Marin's electricians, and historian Roy

THE EARLIEST electric lighting for the streets of San Rafael were these Brush arc lights attached to poles as seen in these two photographs from the Roy Graves' collection showing downtown scenes. The building directly above is the Irwin Building which stood on the northwest corner of C and Fourth and housed the store of Archibald P. Thomson. In top photo is Fourth Street looking west and one of the original electric street lights can be seen at the corner to the right. Both pictures ran in the Marin Journal in 1893. At left is a diagram of an early arc light similar to those which illuminated the streets of San Rafael. In San Rafael, however, the lights were attached to wire and hung from the pole rather than being fixed directly onto the pole.

When Electric Lights Came To San Rafael

Graves point out that the initial electrical service was for street lighting only. It was not available for homes.

"And," Eklund adds, "the street lights burned only on what we called the moonlight schedule. When the moonlight was bright, the street lights were not turned on. Only on dark nights did the lights burn."

At midnight, when all respectable citizens were expected to be in the comfort and security of their homes, they were turned off.

The earliest electric street lights were of a type known as Brush arc lights, and were hung from poles on downtown street corners. Later refinements to electric lights made it possible to hang them over street intersections.

But even then, Eklund says, the streets and sidewalks of downtown San Rafael were pretty dark at night.

There were only about four of the lights hanging in the downtown district, he says, and they cast only a small fraction of the illumination provided by today's modern street lamps. But they were a glow, if dim and flickering, that added brightness and warmth to the day-to-day living of San Rafael's earliest citizens.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

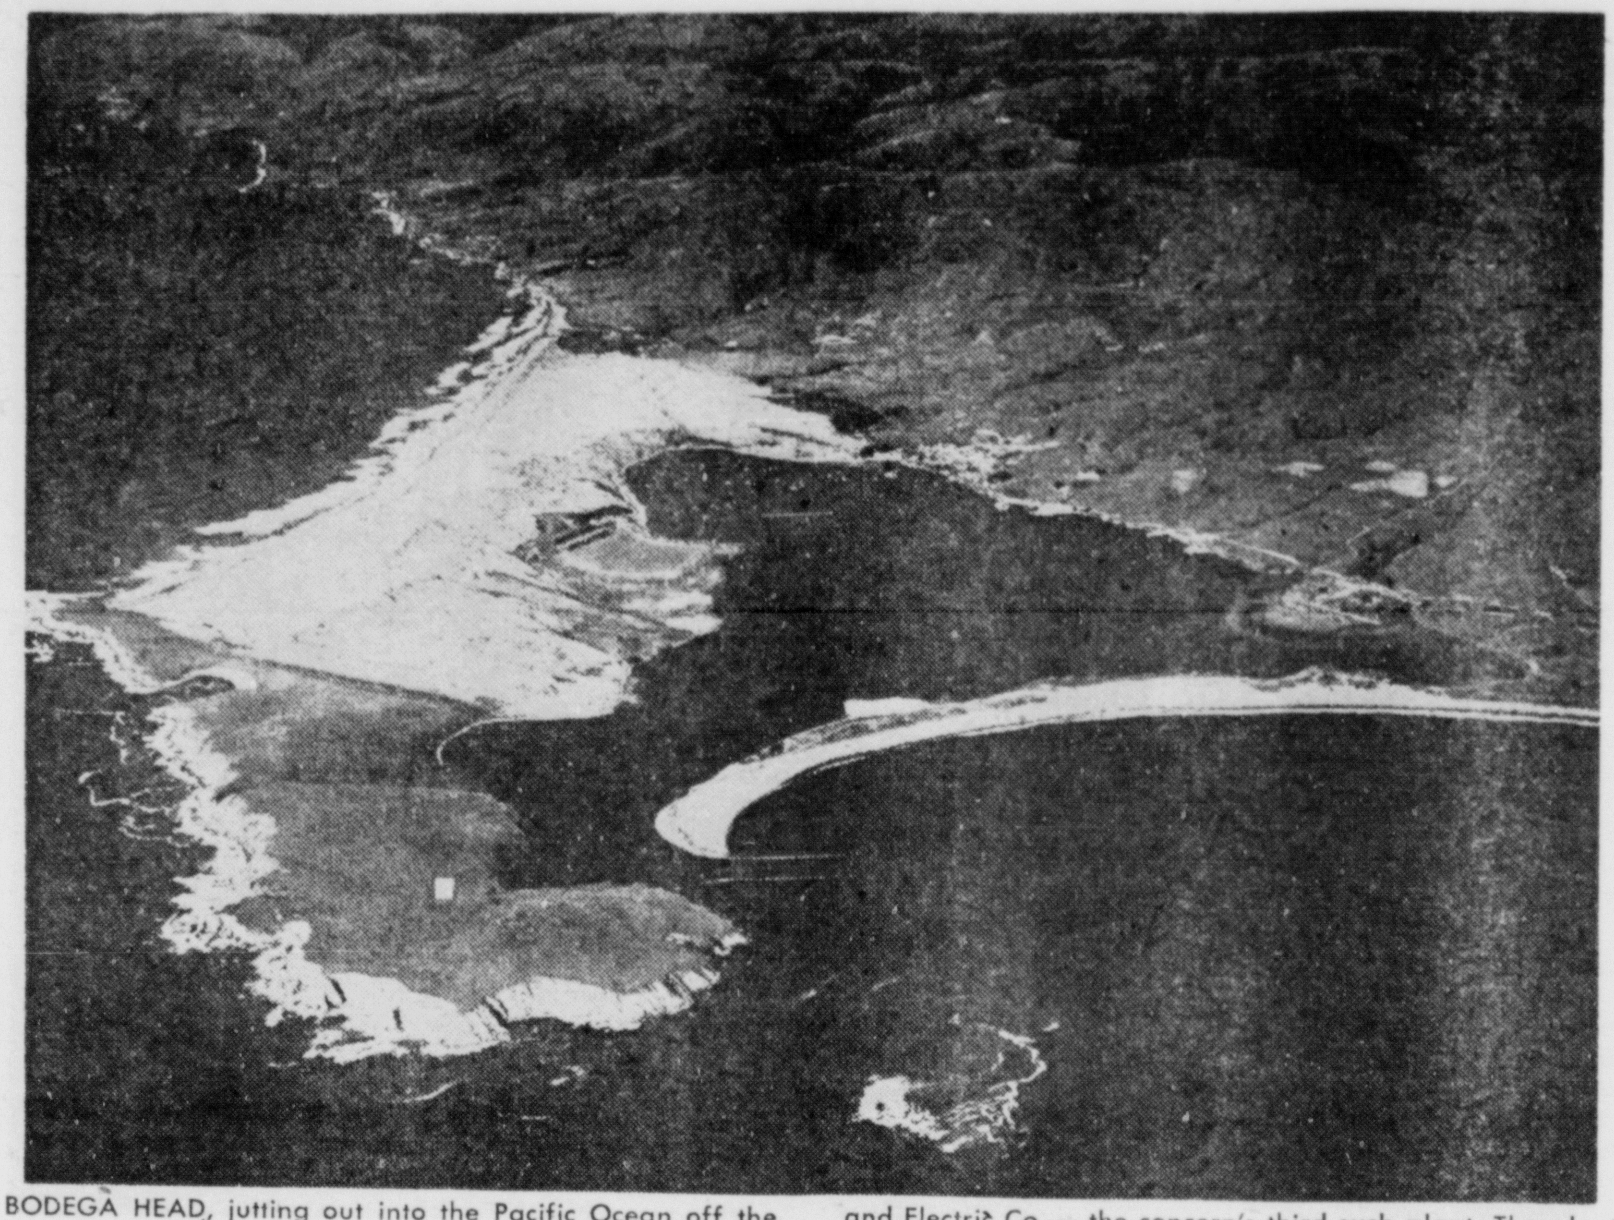

This week is National Electric Week so let's take time to honor one of our greatest commodities. Electricity has changed our way of life. It has made us more productive and at the same time provided us with more leisure time.

The field of electronics, a specialized phase of electricity, is moving so rapidly that the accomplishments seem unbelievable. Take one of our greatest achievements of 1961, FM Multiplex Stereo radio broadcasting, follow it through and you will see how miraculous our electronics progress really is. Assume that you and I are in an FM radio station studio. I am on the LEFT side of the studio and talking into a microphone. You are on the RIGHT side of the studio and talking into another microphone. The studio engineer controls our two voices, which have now been converted into minute amounts of electricity. The electronic equipment then combines your voice and mine and transmits the combined signal by FM broadcasting so that it can be received by any FM receiver that doesnot have a multiplex adapter and still hear you and I talking. At the same time, the electronics at the radio station continually subtracts your voice from my voice and this difference together with an electronic synchronizing tone, called a pilot carrier, is also transmitted over the same FM radio station. Those people who have an FM receiver with the multiplex unit can receive this combination of LEFT plus RIGHT microphone and LEFT minus RIGHT microphone voices and unscramble this combination so that my voice emerges only from the LEFT speaker, and your voice emerges only from the RIGHT speaker. Think of it, although our voices were added and subtracted and sent out over one radio station, and although the listener tuned in only one radio station, he was able to receive two completely separate sounds each sound coming from its own location, left or right.

The above is just one of millions of highly complex electrnic achievements which we use and take for granted. For further proof of how remarkable electroncan be, visit us and listen to the FM Multiplex Stereo described.

What Is Atomic Power?

BODEGA HEAD, jutting out into the Pacific Ocean off the Sonoma County coast, is the planned site for the 325,000-killowatt atomic power station to be built by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. — the concern's third such plant. The plant will occupy the area indicated by the white square, setting in a small valley that separates the two hills which dominate the headlands.

Pacific Gas and Electric has chosen the North Bay for its third atomic power plant, Bodega Bay Atomic Park, scheduled for completion in 1965.

Just what is an atomic power plant?

An atomic power plant represents no new and mysterious method of making electricity. Kilowatthours are produced in plants such as PG&E's first atomic plant, Vallecitos in Southern Alameda County, with a steam-driven turbine generator similar to those used by the electric industry for more than half a century.

The revolutionary step into the future which PG&E has taken at Vallecitos; is taking at Humboldt Bay near Eureka, and is planning to take at Bodega Bay, is in the fuel that provides the heat to produce the steam. Conventional plants burn natural gas, oil or coal to generate steam. At Vallecitos the heat is obtained by splitting the nucleus of uranium atoms by bombarding them with neutrons, one of the tiny particles that compose all matter. When a uranium nucleus comes apart it releases heat, and in a power plant that heat is used to boil water, making steam which drives the turbine-generator — producing ordinary electricity.

THIS NUCLEAR fuel is in the form of pellets of slightly enriched uranium oxide, sealed in tubes of either zirconium or stainless steel. These tubes are about one-half inch in diameter, and vary in length according to the design of the reactor in which they are to be used. Groups of tubes are bundled together to form fuel elements. It takes several hundred of these to make up a full load of fuel, normally called the "reactor core."

The atomic "furnace" or reactor is controlled by rods of boron spaced throughout the core. Boron has the property of catching or absorbing flying neutrons, thus preventing them from striking and splitting more atoms. When these control rods are withdrawn, a chain reaction begins and the heat is released. Water which surrounds the core is heated to form high-pressure steam used to drive the electric turbine.

The amount of steam produced by this apparatus is regulated by adjusting the position of the boron control rods. To shut down the plant, the rods are fully inserted into the core, quenching the chain reaction and stopping the production of heat.

Conventional steam-driven plants burn large amounts of gas, oil or—in other parts of the country—coal to produce electricity. A plant the size of Vallecitos, which is a small station, uses only a few pounds of uranium each year. Vallecitos consumes only 25 grams of fuel per day and a full month's fuel supply measures only two and one-third cubic inches. Humboldt Bay, 12 times larger, will use 250 grams a day. It has not yet been determined how much Bodega Bay will use.

PG&E began to learn how to generate electric energy with atomic fuel in 1951, just as soon as the federal government allowed private industry to begin studying the atom and its peacetime utilization. Teamed with the Bechtel Corp., PG&E made one of the original surveys to determine whether electricity could be made with the atom, and whether it could be done economically.

THE COMPANY was convinced that it could be done, and eventually be done economically. It reported this to the Atomic Energy Commission, then joined in forming the Nuclear Power Group, an association of eight companies which took up the investigations where the original study teams had stopped. A research center was established in Chicago. In 1956 the Nuclear Power Gorup obtained permission to build the 180,000 kilowatt Dresden Nuclear Power Station in Illinois. Dresden was completed in 1960, built and paid for without government subsidy. PG&E's participation in the Dresden Project has given the company's engineers a vast fund of knowledge about atomic power.

Late in 1955 the General Electric Co. announced plans to build the Vallecitos Atomic Laboratory near Pleasanton. PG&E immediately joined with G.E. to construct Vallecitos Atomic Power Plant, an important component of the laboratory, made even more useful because it is a fully operating power plant connected to the PG&E service system. This 5,000-kilowatt station is the world's first privately-financed nuclear power plant. It now has been running four years, a complete success.

Encouraged by the success at Vallecitos, PG&E announced in February, 1958, that it would build a 60,000-kilowatt atomic plant on Humboldt Bay near Eureka. The company went to work on that job on Nov. 9, 1960. Humboldt Bay will be completed this year. Here is where PG&E expects to produce America's first economically competitive atomic electricity.

With the second core of uranium fuel, which will be complete in the Humboldt Bay boiling water reactor late in 1965, the plant is expected to produce electricity for from eight to nine mills per kilowatthour. That is as cheaply as it can be done with conventional fuels at Eureka. This is true because oil delivery charges and certain other fixed charges in the Humboldt Bay region make gas and oil costs relatively high there. Eight or nine mill power is economically competitive there. It is not now economically competitive elsewhere on the PG&E system.

Each of these steps brought PG&E closer to Bodega Bay, the big atomic plant announced on June 28, 1961. PG&E'S atomic power development program always has had large, economic-anyplace-on-the-system plants as its prime objective. It was apparent from the beginning 10 years ago that the atom will achieve its important role in energy production only when it produces electricity to serve a large and diversified power market as economically and as reliably as available conventional fuels.

PG&E is convinced that the atom can and will do this at Bodega Bay Atomic Park.

BODEGA BAY will have a capacity of 325,000 kilowatts, making it among the largest atomic plants in the world. That is big enough to serve a city of half a million people.

It will cost 61 million dollars and will produce electricity for slightly less than six mills per kilowatthour, two mills cheaper than Humboldt Bay. That is as cheaply as PG&E could produce the power in that area by any method, and a large plant must be built in the growing North Bay by 1966.

It will take 300 or 400 men three or four years to build Bodega Bay, but it will take only about 25 men to run it.

When Bodega Bay is running late in 1965, the atom will have taken its place as an economic source of energy alongside natural gas, oil, falling water and geothermal steam to serve central and northern California.

Division Manager Has Busy Schedule

Pacific Gas and Electric Company's North Bay Division includes some of the most spectacular scenery in California. The 170-mile-long division embraces rolling acres of grape vines and apple trees, rugged ocean cliffs, winding rivers and redwood forests.

It covers all of Marin, Sonoma and Lake counties, most of Mendocino and Napa counties and a corner of Solano County, including the historic cities of Vallejo and Benicia.

Head of this "utility within a utility" is Elias S. Day, division manager. From his headquarters at Fourth and E Streets in San Rafael, he directs the business of serving gas, electricity and, in Willits, water, to more than a half million people.

UNDER HIM in the division are 1,060 company employees whose work may take them to such varied places as the Valley of the Moon, Anchor Bay, the famous Geysers Power Plant, or even San Quentin Prison. Much of the Redwood Empire area lies within division boundaries as well as such other tourist attractions as the Russian River, Clear Lake, the Petrified Forest, Muir Woods, Mount Tamalpais and the coast beaches.

Operations of the division are decentralized. Under Day are four district managers having the authority and responsibility for company activities within their territories. Local area managers within the districts are given similar authority. Marin District manager is George M. Henderson.

A native of South Carolina and a graduate of Clemson College there, Day won his electrical engineering degree in 1923. That same year he joined PG&E as a third operator at the old Electra Powerhouse on the Mokelumne River in Amador County.

He served in the Mother Lode country 24 years. In 1931 he became foreman at Electra, holding that post until he was made manager in Newman in 1937.

Successively he was in charge of PG&E offices in Vacaville, Grass Valley and Jackson. He was named electric superintendent for the Coast Valleys Division, headquartered in Salinas, in 1951, and took a similar post for the San Jose Division in 1953. In 1955 Day was appointed to the Power Plant, and the company will build Bodega Bay Atomic Park."

To keep company operation running smoothly and to coordinate policy, Day calls a meeting once monthly of his division and district department heads. These monthly sessions usually last all day.

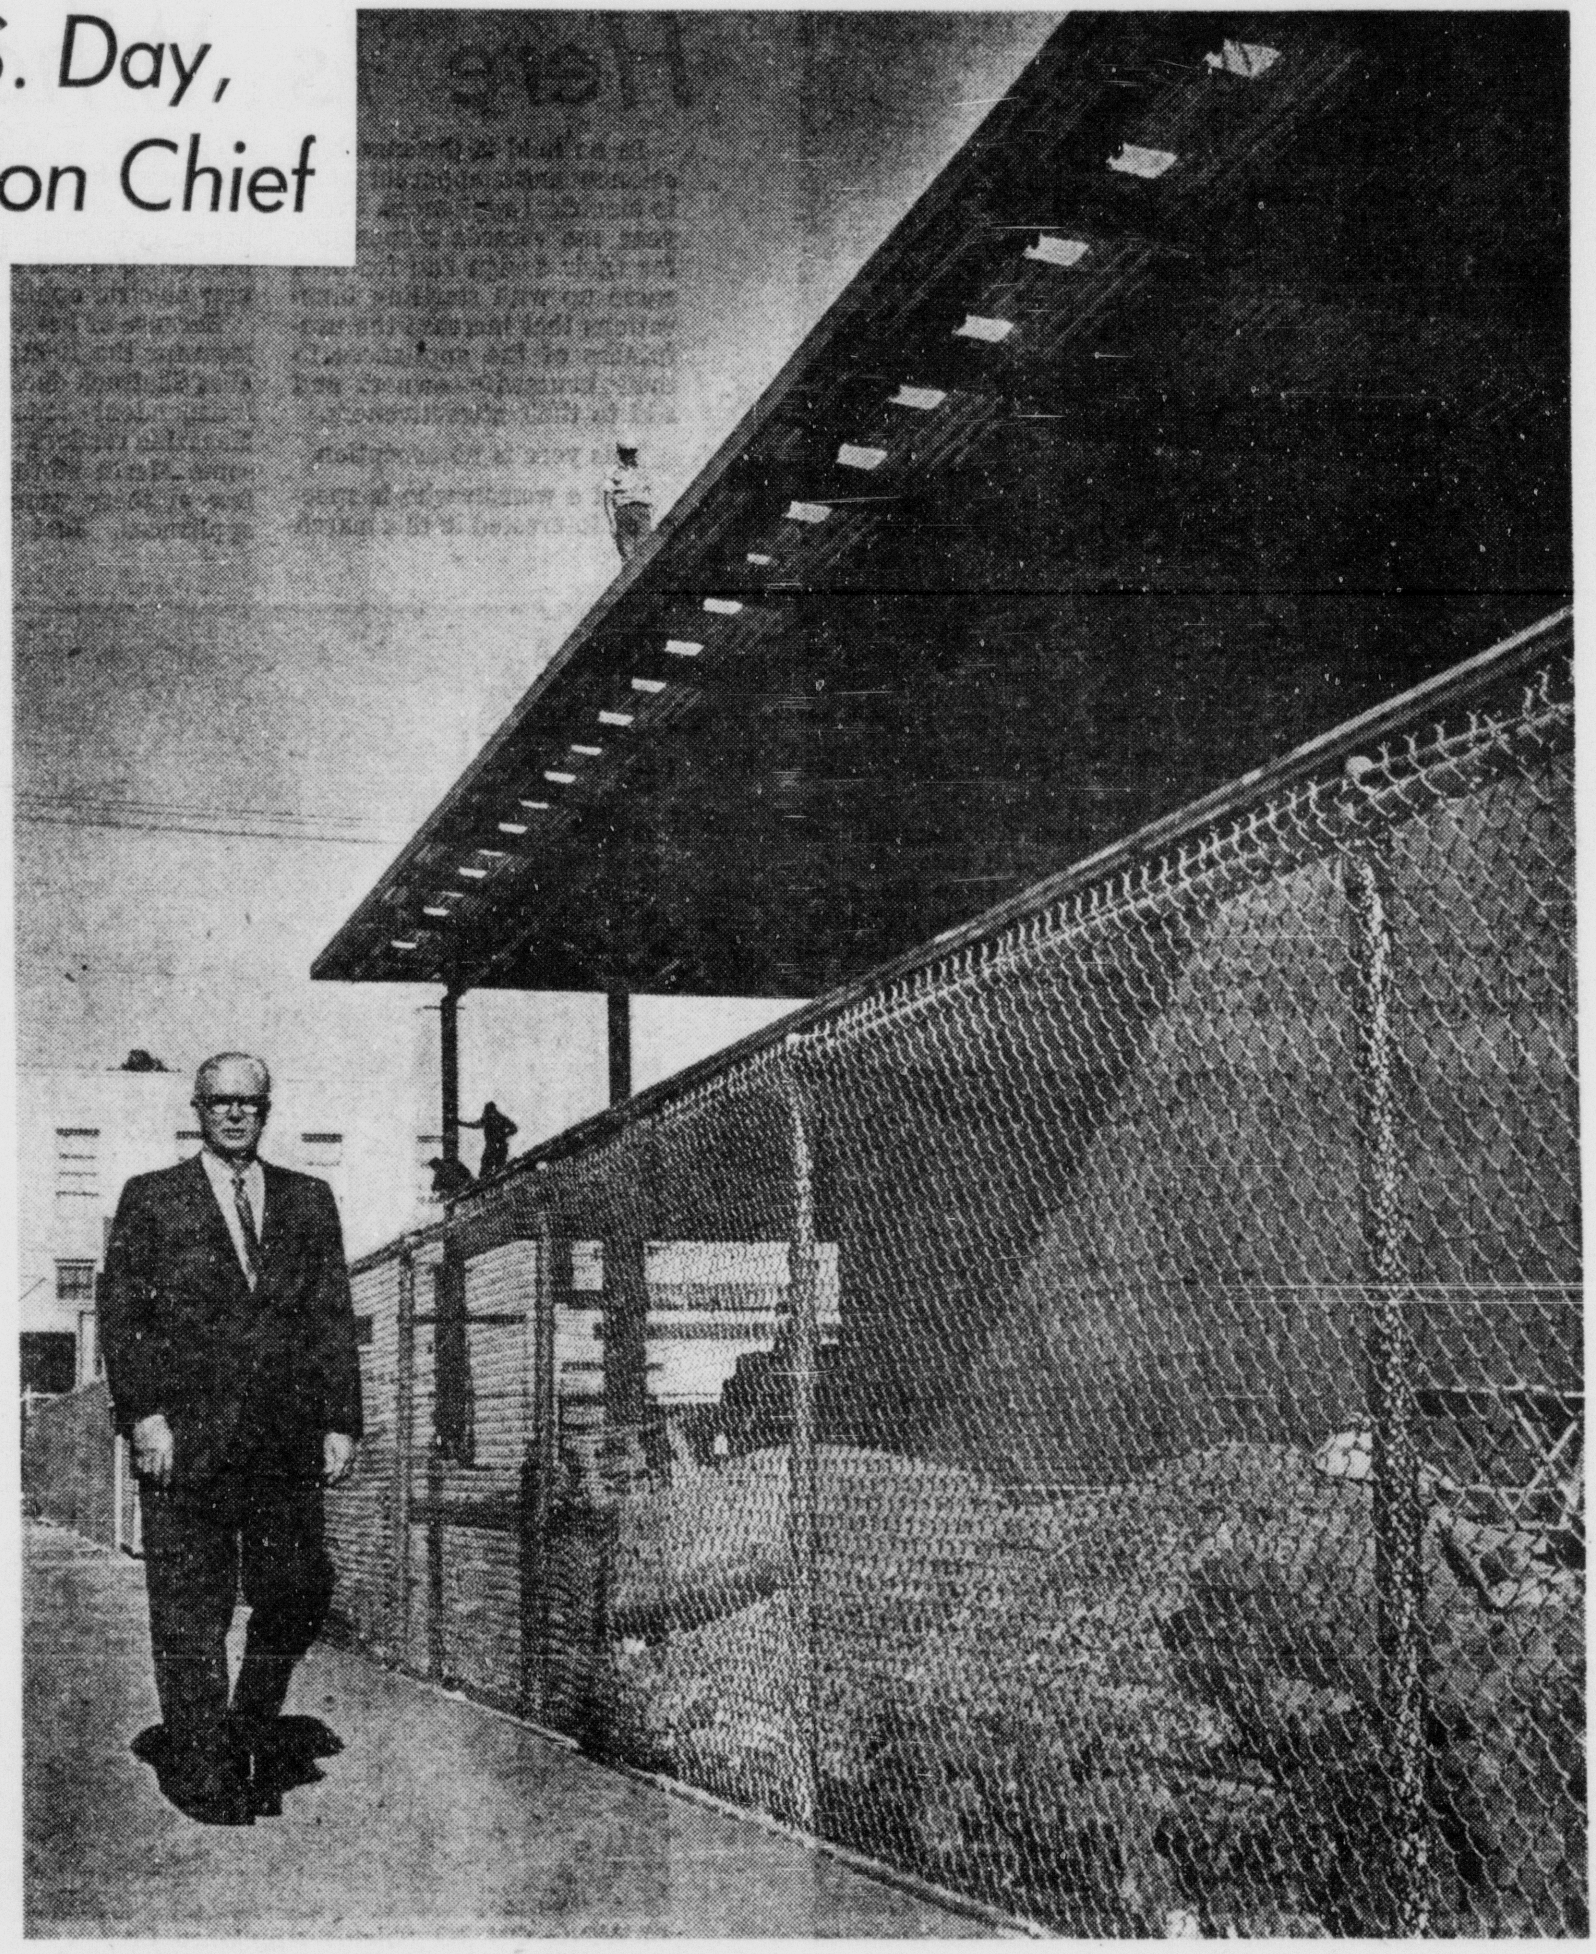

"THESE AREN'T ordinary skull sessions," Day says in his bass-voiced South Carolina drawl. "We kick problems up and down, in the middle and all around the edges. We usually come up with some answers that'll save our customers money or improve our service somewhere."

Day is active in several civic and charitable organizations, including the American Red Cross, Redwood Empire Assn., Marin Industrial Development Foundation and the San Rafael Rotary Club. He devotes much of his time to community affairs at meetings of these organizations, and he often attends meetings of county supervisors in the North Bay Division.

In the Marin County Chapter of the American Red Cross he was a director from 1955 to 1961, and served on the executive committee of the chapter. He has also served on the personnel committee as its chairman and as second vice chairman of the chapter. At present, he is chairman of the home service committee and a member of the nominating, disaster and evaluation committees.

Day is a Marin County director of the Redwood Empire Assn., and was vice president of the association for Marin County from 1955 to 1958.

He is first vice president, a director and a member of the executive committee of the Marin Industrial Development Foundation.

AN INSPECTION tour of PG&E's new North Bay Division—Marin District headquarters building takes Day along Brooks Street. The building facing Third Street is to be completed this summer. The wire fence will be removed.

DAY DEVOTES TIME to civic and charitable affairs such as this monthly luncheon meeting of the Marin County Chapter of the American Red Cross' home service committee, of which he is chairman. Members shown are, left to right, Mrs. Frank E. Duhme, Jr., chapter chairman; Rev. Llewellyn A. White, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere; Day; Mrs. A. C. Here Is What's New In Electric Appliances

In no field is the march of science more apparent than in electrical appliances. Every year the wizards responsible for their design and features come up with startling innovations that increase the usefulness of the appliances to their housewife-owners and add to their attractiveness.

This year is no exception.

And a woman who is specially interested in this march of progress is Miss Virginia Shattuck whose duties as Pacific Gas and Eelectric Co. home economist bring her into constant contact with the new electric appliances.

Because of her own enthusiasm for the 1962 appliances, Miss Shattuck decided to take Independent-Journal Marin Magazine readers on a tour of some Marin stores to see a few of these wonderful new appliances. Just follow her through the pictures on these pages.

But keep in mind that the tour is by no means a complete one. There are many other fine Marin stores carrying appliances. And hundreds of new appliances not pictured.

Miss Shattuck suggests that you go on an appliances tour of your own and visit the stores personally.

PACIFIC GAS and Electric Co. home economist Virginia Shattuck begins her tour of some of Marin's appliance stores with a stop at Rafael Appliance and Floor Covering Co. where she and Bernice Jordan discuss the new burner and control features of the 1962 Westinghouse Continental electric range. It has 1,011 heats. Five marked settings and an infinite selection between on rotary control gives you exactly the heat you want.

MOVING ON TO Shields Appliance Co., Miss Shattuck is shown the new Norge freezer with its "Slim Trim" square design. Its features include "Thin-Pak" insulation eliminating bulkiness and loss of space in cabinet walls and thus gain in storage space.

ELECTRONIC CONTROLS with 72 "fingers" that "feel" the amount of moisture in tumbling clothes is a Maytag dryer feature that home economist Miss Shattuck much admires. As long as the electronic fingers feel moisture, the drying continues. But the heat is automatically turned off when the controls feel that the correct amount of moisture has been removed from the clothing. (Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

JACK MARSHALL at McPhail's Inc. explains how the Zenith "Space Command" remote control unit functions to Miss Shattuck while the PG&E home economist enjoys colored television with Zenith's new Bellevue model in distinctive Danish Modern styling. The new Zenith color TV has 24,000 volts of picture plus many new features.

A HOTPOINT refrigerator freezer also holds the attention of Miss Shattuck. It's a roomy 18 cubic foot model with no frost features and a swing-out freezer basket. The refrigerator-freezer has rollers for moving and cleaning ease.

GENERAL ELECTRIC'S "Mobile Maid" dishwasher has no plumbing costs, Marshall tells Miss Shattuck, and boasts automatic retractable electric cord, an exclusive power shower, a lift top rack, three-cycle pushbutton control, easy rolling casters, etc.

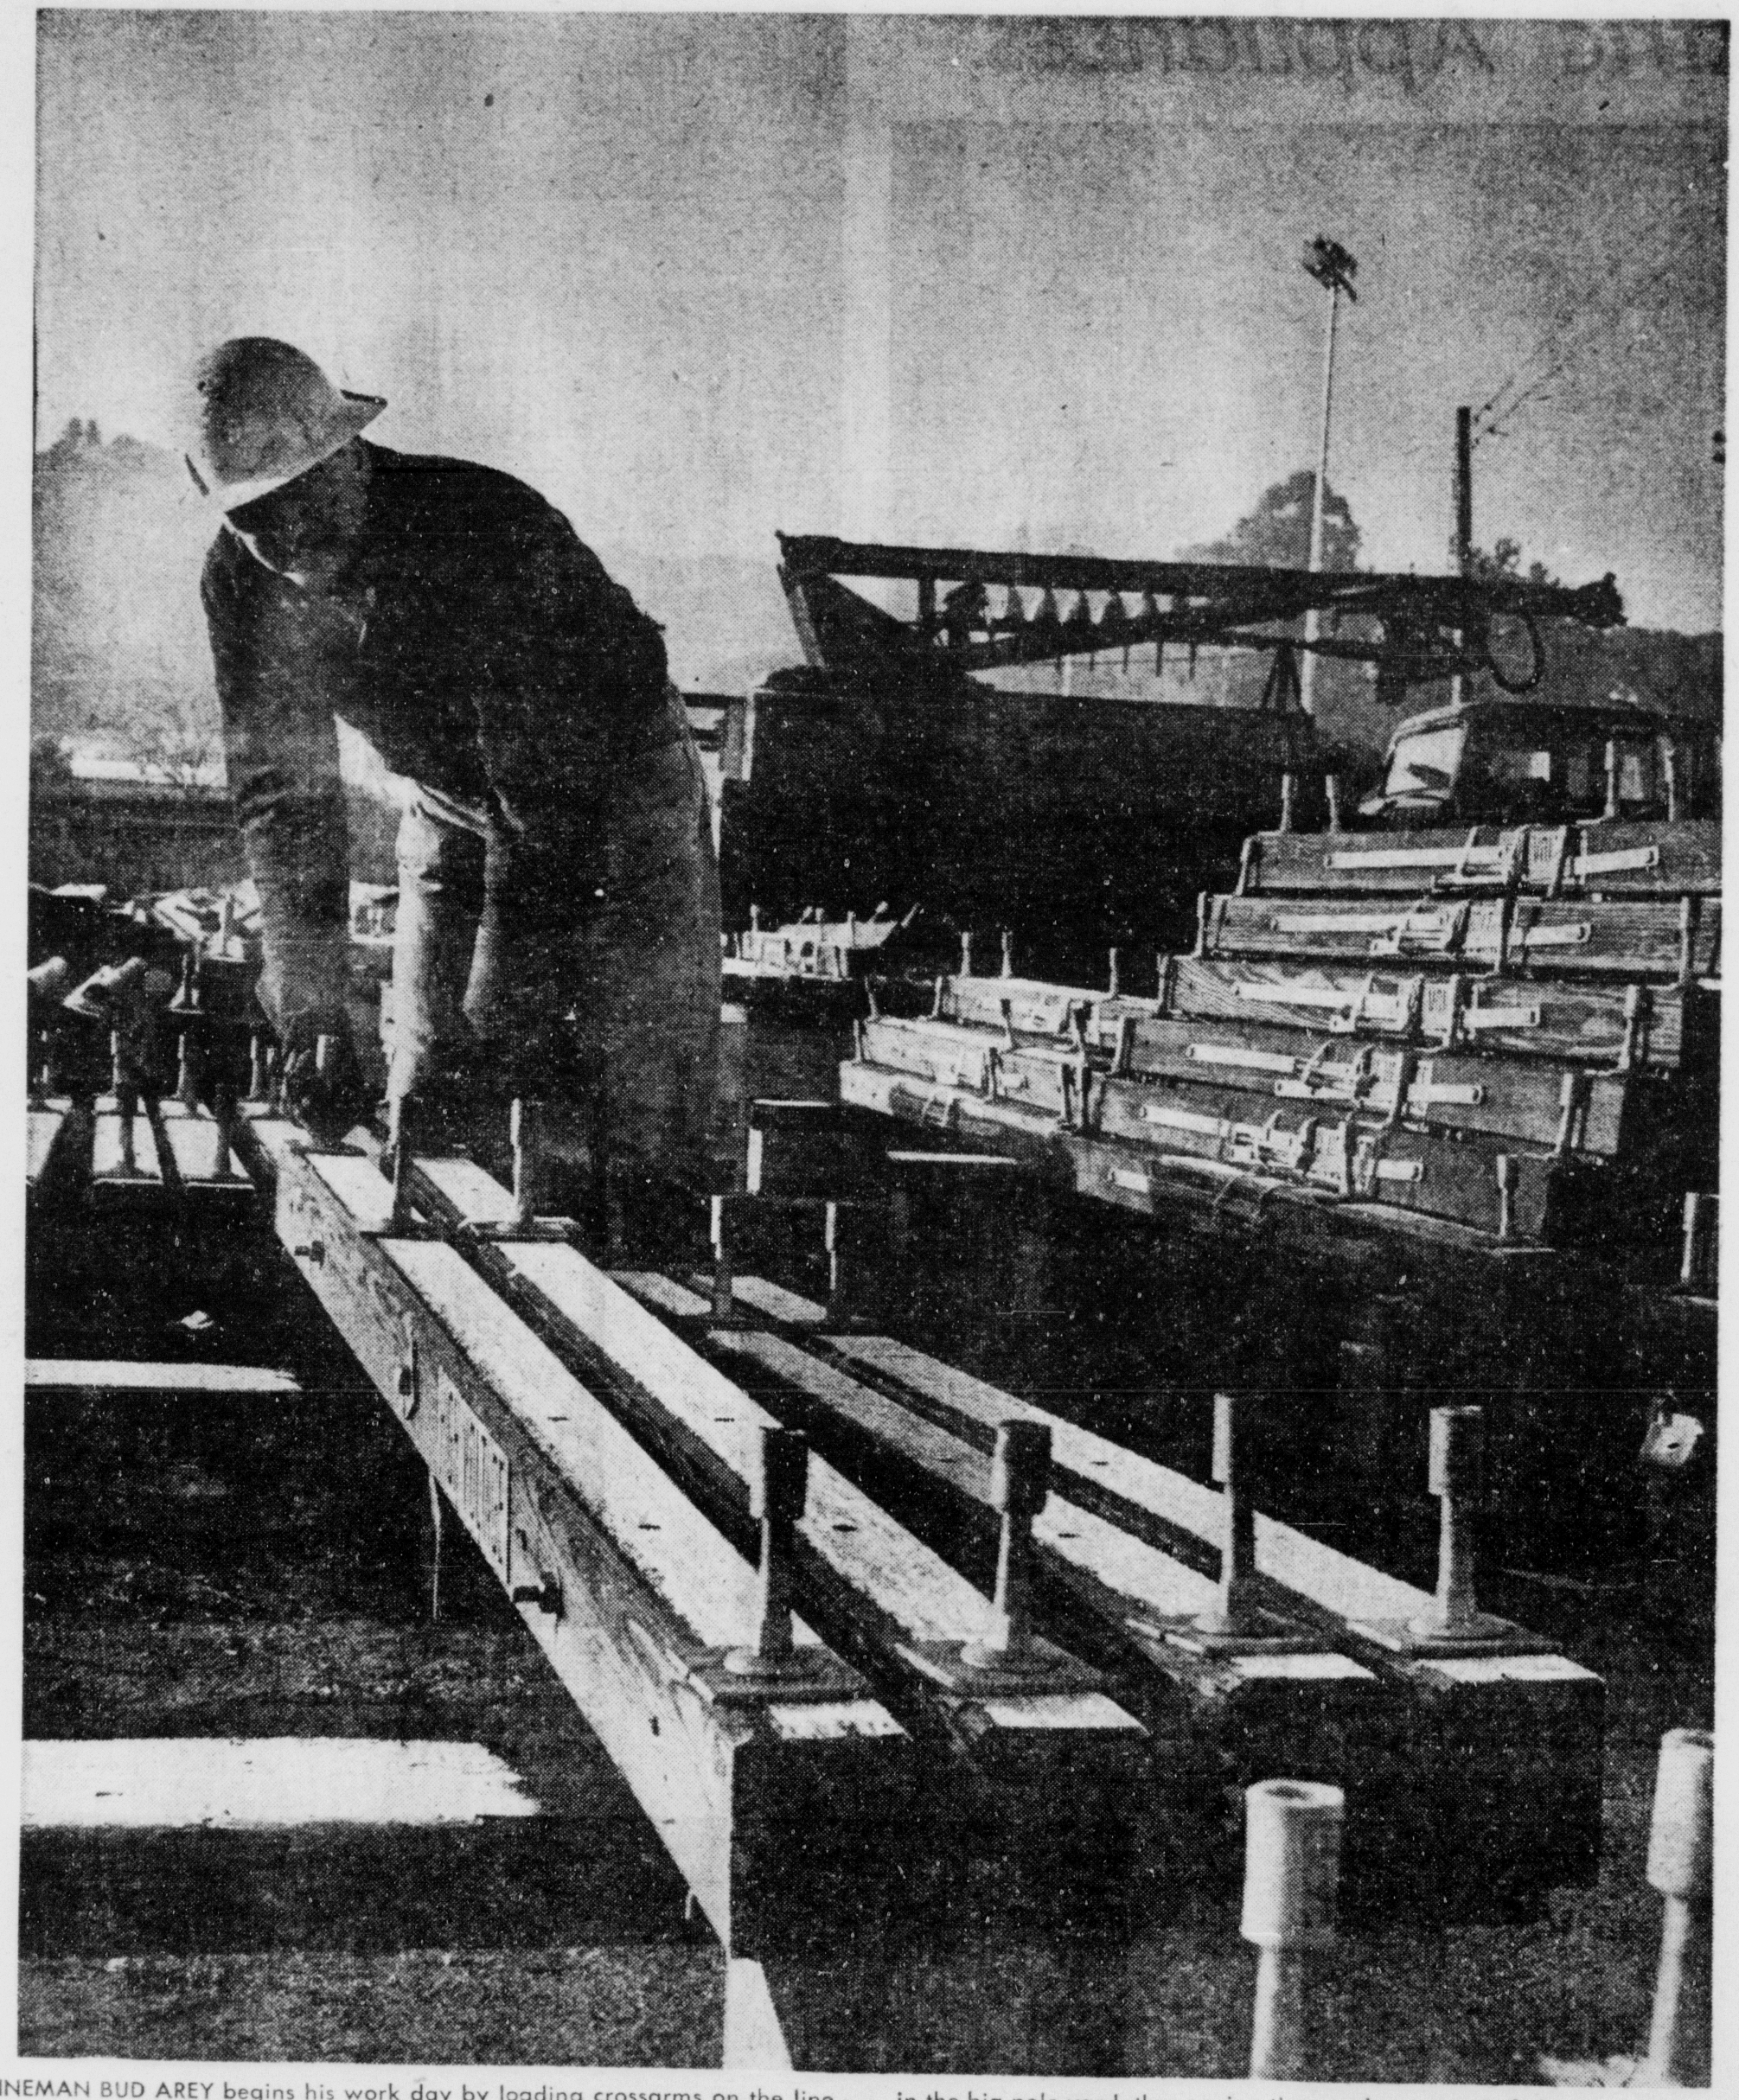

PLACING ONE OF HER favorite recordings on the new RCA television combination unit at Van-Doyle Complete Home Furnishings, Miss Shattuck enjoys the perfect sound from the four-speed Victrola phonograph and eight-speaker sound system. "Reflection proof" TV and AM/FM radio for both standard and stereo broadcasts complete the unit offering entertainment in a single handsome "package."

NEW FEATURES of the RCA Whirlpool washer are explained to Miss Shattuck by George Catey of Catey's Appliances. The washer, he tells her, gives users a choice of two speeds and three cycles—normal, gentle, and wash n' wear. Easy to push button selectors give five wash and rinse temperature combinations including cold wash. Also: A highly effective dispenser filter for lint and a thrifty three-level water selector.

THE REVOLUTIONARY design of the new Frigidaire Flair Electric Range is stressed by Glidden Parker of Ongaro's Plumbing and Heating Co. as Miss Shattuck ends her "appliance land" tour there. Two even heat ovens with built-in clock and separate time signals and signal lights, splatter free broiling, "hand-high" surface units and "eye-high" front controls, glide-up glass doors for the see-level oven are all noted.

LINEMAN BUD AREY begins his work day by loading crossarms on the line truck in the early morning at Pacific Gas and Electric Company's San Rafael service center. Crossarms are pre-assembled and stacked according to size in the big pole yard, thus saving time and expense in field operations. Line trucks are usually loaded the night before by a warehouse crew with all the materials needed for a day's work. Now let's follow Bud through a day's work in the pictures that follow.

It's No Job For The Careless

By DON KEOWN

Orville (Bud) Arey, Pacific Gas & Electric Co. lineman, admits that the first time he was called upon to handle high voltage lines as part of his new job, "I was scared."

"You couldn't call it anything but fear," he says.

Now, after 13 years on the job, the fear is gone. "But I still treat electricity with respect," he adds. "You can't afford to be careless for a moment when you are working with it."

As for another aspect of his job which might cause beginners to blanch — working at great heights—Arey says, "It didn't take me long to get used to that."

Texas-born, Arey spent his boyhood on a farm. And for a time as a youth, he worked in the oil fields.

"I GUESS THAT is why I like the outdoor aspect of my present work," he declares.

Arey, his wife, Bonney, and their two daughters, Donna, now 13, and Pat, now 15, moved to Marin 11 years ago. Between his oil field experience and their arrival here, Arey had been a radio and television repairman, and at one time had owned his own TV and radio business in San Francisco.

"It folded," he says, "and, consequently, the thing I was looking for the most was security."

Arey landed a job at Petaluma with PG&E that promised him that security plus the opportunity to work outdoors. He started out as a groundman with one of the

So are spectacular views such as this one. In the distance can be seen the waters of the bay and the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. The outdoor aspect of the work is one of the reasons PG&E lineman Orville (Bud) Arey likes his job so well.

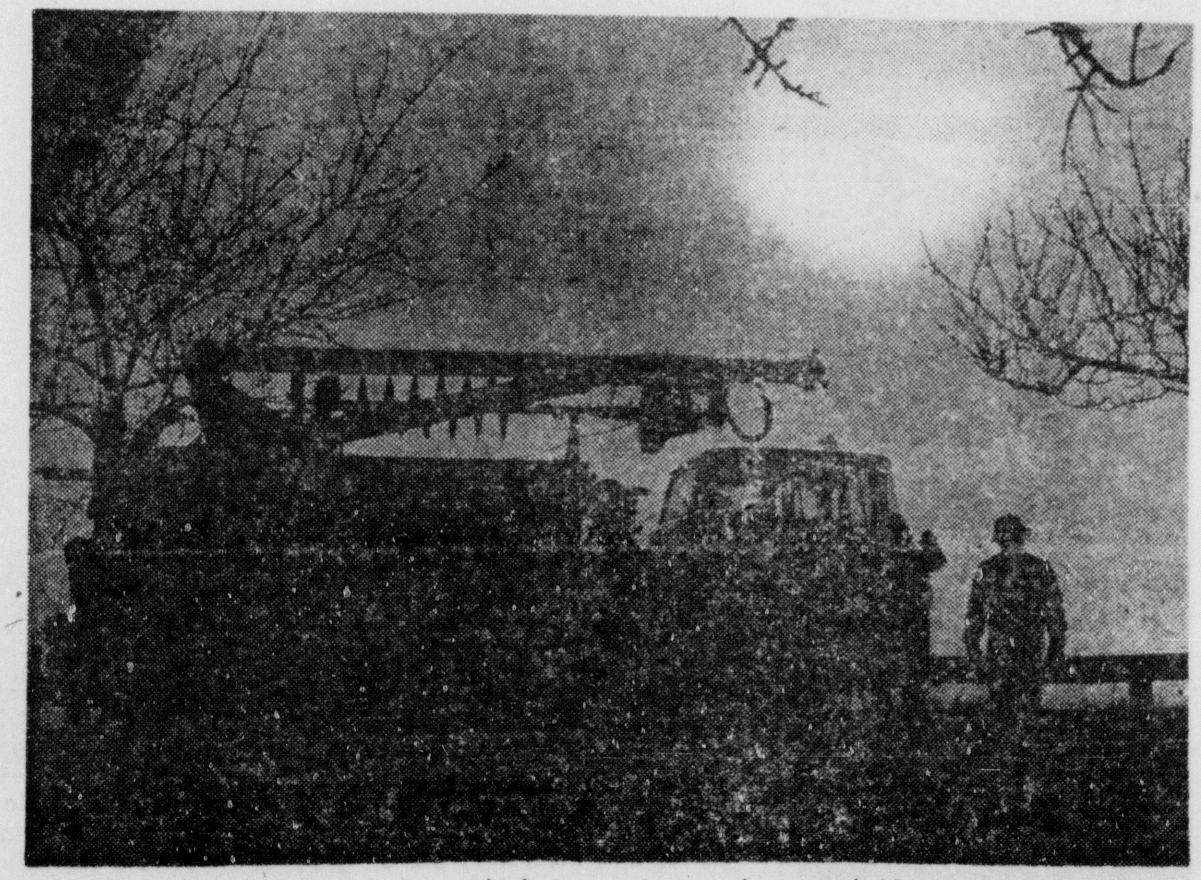

A Day Starts For The Crew

AREY CARRIES a crossarm to the truck. Other members of the crew load wire and transformers. Line truck is a traveling warehouse and workshop, transporting equipment where needed. Foreman Ben Dell'Era, right rear, carries work order listing materials needed for the day's job, which is to establish electric service at a new home in Novato. Crossarms are treated with a protective solution for longer life.

TRUCK LEAVES through the gray dawn toward the job site, the Edward Brunetti home at 655 McClay Road, Novato. This new line truck is equipped with hydraulic derrick and winch, hole digger, and electric generator, and carries four-man crew in cab.

THE SILHOUETTE of line crew and their truck is outlined in the gray fog of morning as they reach Novato job site. Poles to be rigged were "spotted" at job site by a labor crew the day before.

MALE DRIVERS UNDER 25 HAVE NATION'S WORST ACCIDENT RECORD

A young man in a hurry is often behind the wheel of his father's car.

A recently conducted study of accident experience across the country has revealed that men under 25 years of age have the nation's worst driving record. Male drivers in this age group are involved in two to three times as many accidents as all other motorists, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

The result—higher automobile insurance rates for men in this age category. However, the insurance industry is working with safety authorities, educators, parents and the young driver in an effort to encourage safe driving habits. They even offer rate reductions for young men who successfully complete behind the wheel driver education courses.

What about young women? They are safer drivers than young men. A large life insurance company made a statistical study and found that young men were involved in more than three times the number of fatal accidents as young women. The male average was 25.4 per 100,000 while for the distaff side it was 8.1 per 100,000.

The report concluded that "the relatively high motor vehicle accident death rate among males in the late teens and early 20s may reflect, in large measure, frequent disregard for safe driving practices."

For insurance purposes men under 25 are divided into two groups: (1) unmarried men driving their own cars and unmarried men driving family cars; (2) or married men operating their own autos.

Young men in the first classification are listed as the most hazardous risks. Liability claims from this group average more than triple those filed by all other groups.

Those youthful drivers who fall into the second risk category incur almost twice as many liability claims as others. Insurance rates for these drivers are lower than for the young unmarried men who drive their own car or are the principal operator of a family car. However, based on over-all experience, their rates are still substantially higher than those offered to mature drivers.

The argument may be advanced that youthful drivers couldn't possibly be involved in two or three times the number of accidents as other drivers. And, of course, this would be true if that were as far as it went. However, this contention fails to relate the number of licensed operators by age groups. On a comparative basis, the young man with a car does not measure up.

The problem of the careless young male driver is far more serious than increased insurance rates, which only reflect the gravity of the situation.

Insurance companies realize that the recognition of adequate driver training courses through automobile insurance rate discounts of at least 10 per cent will produce a notable psychological effect and go a long way toward stimulating the extension of this program in our community.

The future of our community and country lies in the strength of our young men. We are committed to making certain that these young people will be available to do their job. Their safety is our business.

AREY PLACES cones around line of truck for safety. Truck driver Brian Card, rear, has placed "Men at Work" sign at top of knoll. One new power pole will be placed near the road, another on the Brunetti property to serve the home.

AREY THREADS cable through tip of "stinger" or extension of hydraulic derrick, preparatory to lifting a pole. An extension of a 12,000-volt line will be strung to serve the Brunetti home, now under construction. When truck is stationary, its hydraulic equipment, compressor and generator run on a separate 25-gallon gasoline tank. When truck is traveling, fuel comes from a second 25-gallon tank.

AREY UNLOADS a 115-pound coil of service wire at Novato job site. Behind him is foreman Ben Dell'Era. Materials boxes and insulators are on ground. Truck is a workshop on wheels, containing all the equipment the crew needs to complete a line construction job.

CORKSCREW-LIKE HOLE digger bores a hole for a power pole to serve the Edward Brunetti home, left rear. Lineman Arey removes loose dirt with shovel. Driver Brian Card, on truck, operates hydraulic controls. PG&E's new line trucks are equipped with time-saving, efficient hydraulic diggers such as this one.

PREPARATORY TO bolting crossarms to power pole, Arey bores a hole and cuts the "gain" or notch. The pole is raised off ground to make it easier to work on. Gain cutter operates from electric generator in center of truck as once again that versatile vehicle demonstrates it utility.

AREY CUTS ANOTHER gain for top crossarm. Pole will have two crossarms, the lower one to hold a transformer, the other to carry 12,000-volt wires. "Stinger" or extension of hydraulic derrick holds cable that lifts pole in position.

LINEMAN ATTILIO FUNDI, right, adjusts gain cutter held by Bud Arey. The gain cutter bores a hole for a bolt that will secure a crossarm in place, at the same time cutting a "gain" or notch for the arm — thus accomplishing two purposes.

company's line installation and repair crews and spent the customary three or four months in that capacity. He then graduated into an apprentice lineman. And 30 months later, he became a journeyman lineman. He's a member of Local 1245 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

"I found the work interesting and I knew that this was the kind of thing I wanted to do," he says.

That first time he was called upon to "handle" high tension lines, Arey recalls as "something like being told to pick up a hot iron."

More accustomed to it now, it is still, he says, "considerably different from picking up a garden hose. You have to be on your guard all the time. You can't afford a moment's carelessness."

THIS IS WHY, he believes, low voltage—220 and 110 — causes more casualties among linemen than does the high 4,000 and 12,000 volt lines. "There's a tendency to be less careful around the lower voltages," he explains. "I guess it's human, but it certainly isn't wise."

As for heights—the average pole which Arey and his coworkers in Marin are called upon to scale is 45 feet. The maximum in Marin is 70 feet. Towers, however, sometimes call for a climb of from 85 to 220 feet.

"The tower is harder to climb than the pole, at least that's true for me," Arey

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Robert & Ronald Casassa, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael, Bel Aire and Fairfax, GL 4-4792 — Member N.I.D.

"What Can Be Done About My Sweater That Turned Yellow?"

Yellowing of white sweaters is a common result of wear. Your sweater will respond well to drycleaning. Your drycleaner has the knowledge and techniques to bring your sweater back to its normal white in most cases. The same is true when white sweater has grayed as so often happens in home laundering.

Most large sweater manufacturers now dryclean their sweaters after knitting rather than subject them to the wash and tumble cleaning formerly used. The action of mechanical washing can damage a sweater, especially if the washer is not filled. Sweaters tend to snag on hooks and fasteners. Buttons and stitched-on ornaments may be damaged in washer action. Your drycleaner overcomes this by "netting" your sweater when he cleans it.

If you value your sweater, place it in professional hands for cleansing. You'll be as proud of it when it has been cleaned as you were when it was new.

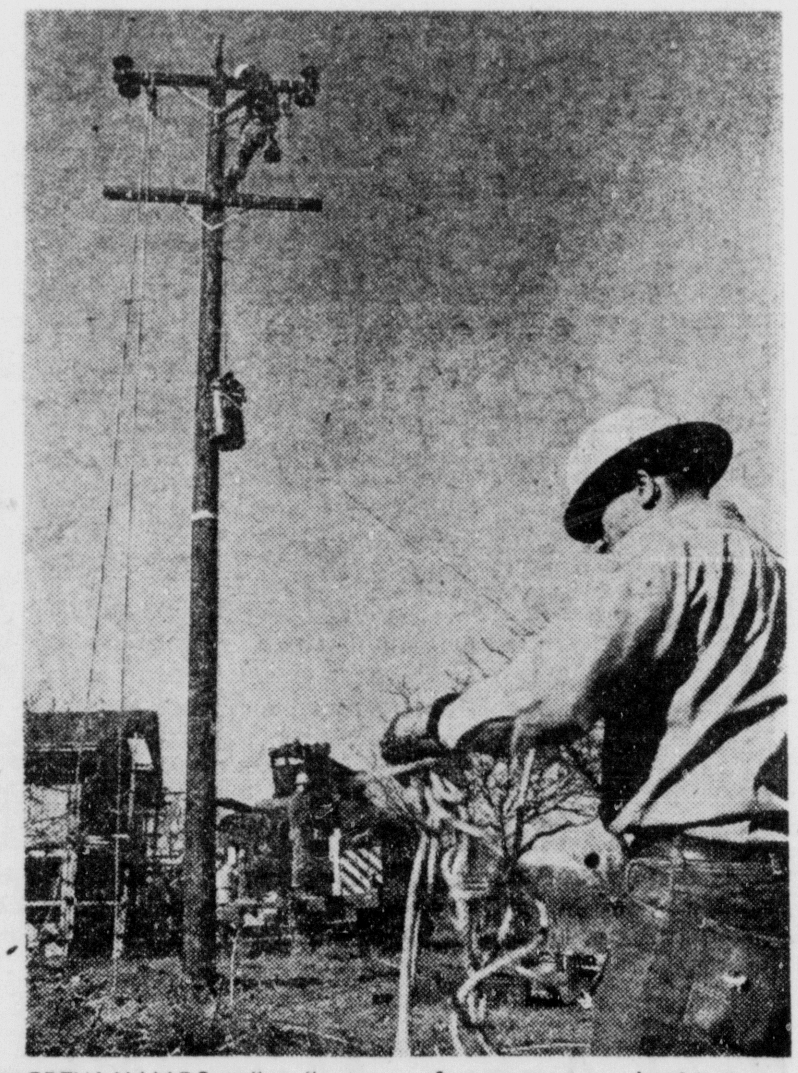

Linemen At Work

HYDRAULIC DERRICK has raised power pole in position. Arey tamps dirt around the pole with a pneumatic tamper, which operates on compressed air pump from truck. Arey's feet are protected by steel "safety toes." Driver Card adds loose earth around pole.

THE LINE CREW takes a lunch break at job site. Members are, left to right, foreman Ben Dell'Era, of 20 Vendola Dr., San Rafael; driver Brian Card, 2 Cane's Court, Larkspur; Attilio Fundi, 207 G St., San Rafael, and Orville J. (Bud) Arey, 149 Meernaa St., Fairfax. Crews begin work at 8 a.m., take a half hour for lunch. Their work day ends at 4:30 p.m.

CREW HANGS a "pot" or transformer atop pole. Lineman Fundi holds guide line in foreground as Arey works "in the air." Card on truck operates hydraulic winch. Arey wears "hooks," or climbers, and a safety belt. Bag hanging from waist holds insulated rubber gloves, required for "hot" line work. Silver stripe on pole marks future location of telephone crossarm.

says. Then he explains that "on the pole you can gauge the size of steps you want to make for yourself. On the tower, the size is already fixed. And it is usually either too long or too short."

Happily, Arey works atop poles much more frequently than on the towers.

His best "friends" in climbing and working high up on the poles are the one-and-a-half-inch-gaff hooks which clamp onto his boots. For their work the linemen prefer boots with strong "logger" heels and with extra heavy soles that prevent the shoe from bending.

Arey makes no attempt to minimize the hazards of his work— "our insurance premiums cost us extra," he says. But he has learned to live with danger without fear. "Fear is a bad thing. If I had not overcome it long ago, I would be doing something different," he says.

ON NEW POLE, set at McClay Road to serve the Brunetti home, Fundi, left, and Arey work 12,000-volt line "hot" or energized with current. They are using "hot sticks," or hot line tools, to secure conductor to insulators. Arey uses a hot line hand. Other hot sticks — pigtail sticks, alligator stick— hang from crossarm. Pigtail line hanging from conductor, made of non-conductive material, is used by men on ground to pull hot wires away from pole so that linemen can climb into working positions on pole without danger.

A Big Day's Work Comes To An End

AREY FINISHES work atop new pole on McClay Road while foreman Dell'Era removes identifying numbers from old pole in foreground. Old pole, erected in 1938, will be removed. It was necessary to place a new power pole along the road in order to bring power to the Brunetti home. New PG&E poles are coated with protective coating for longer life.

AREY'S WORK is divided into three categories — the replacement of old equipment, the installation of new, and the maintenance of the old. A storm invariably means overtime work for the lineman. "Holidays, weekends, nights, we are always subject to emergency calls," he says. "And when the weather is stormy, those emergencies are much more likely to occur.

A regular work week is 40 hours.

Three different kinds of crews operate for PG&E in Marin. There's the service crew — usually two men, a troubleman who has been especially trained to locate sources of trouble and to do the necessary substation switching, and an apprentice lineman. When a car strikes a power pole, causing hot wires to dangle near a roadway, it is the service crew which hurries to the scene and the troubleman and his young helper who see to it that the peril to the public is quickly eliminated.

Then there's the light crew of four or five men — usually two or three linemen or apprentice linemen, a light crew foreman and a clerk-driver. They are likely to handle routine new construction, repair and maintenance jobs.

Finally, for the bigger jobs, there is the heavy crew which at maximum strength numbers eight men — four linemen, perhaps two of whom might be apprentices, two groundmen, a clerk-driver and a heavy crew foreman.

A CREW MIGHT average half a mile of line installation a week, Arey estimates, with the amount varying considerably according to terrain, weather and other special problems.

"One of the goods things about stringing power line is that, when a hard day's work is over, you can look up and see something tangible that you have accomplished — something which you know is going to be of real use to your community and its people," Bud Arey says.

Despite the hazards of his occupation and despite the uncertainty of his hours, Arey is happy at his work. He's a man who not only respects electricity, but also understands it. And he knows it is one of mankind's most useful servants.

IT'S QUITTING TIME at 4:30 p.m., and lineman head for crewroom in PG&E's San Rafael service center after parking their truck. They are, left to right, foreman Dell'Era, Fundi, Arey and Card (back to camera). Their hard hats, climbers, tool belts and safety belts are all stowed neatly on the truck, ready for the next day's work. During the night, a warehouse crew will load equipment for next job on truck.

HIS HARD DAY'S WORK over, lineman Bud Arey can relax at his home at 149 Meerna Ave., Fairfax, with his wife, Bonney, and their two daughters, Donna, 13, and Pat, 15. The Areys have been Marin residents for 11 years and, according to Bud, "hope to remain here the rest of our lives. We love it here." Texas born, Arey spent his boyhood on the farm and worked as a young man in the oil fields. He once had his own radio and TV business in San Francisco. (Independent-Journal photo)

This Home Wears A Gold Medallion

A coveted recognition among home builders and owners is the Gold Medallion.

Its presentation marks the home as offering all-electric living in the most modern sense. A Gold Medallion home is equipped electrically to provide its occupants with the utmost in comfort, convenience and ease of upkeep. It must be wired for full housepower, have convenient and ample electric outlets, better than adequate lighting, and a range and at least three other major electric appliances.

In the Gold Medallion home, electricity is the only source of energy for heat, light and power.

One of the prime features of the Gold Medallion home is its electric heating. Families blessed with it will tell you that electric heat is clean, comfortable and quiet — that it saves space and permits a more flexible arrangement of the furniture.

They will also point out that heat cannot be lost up the flue since in electric heating there is no smoke, and chimneys are unnecessary. In the new home, this means economy in construction, since the cost of materials and labor for the chimney are eliminated.

The absence of smoke also means a saving in cleaning bills. Upholstery, draperies, curtains, carpets and clothing all need to be cleaned less frequently.

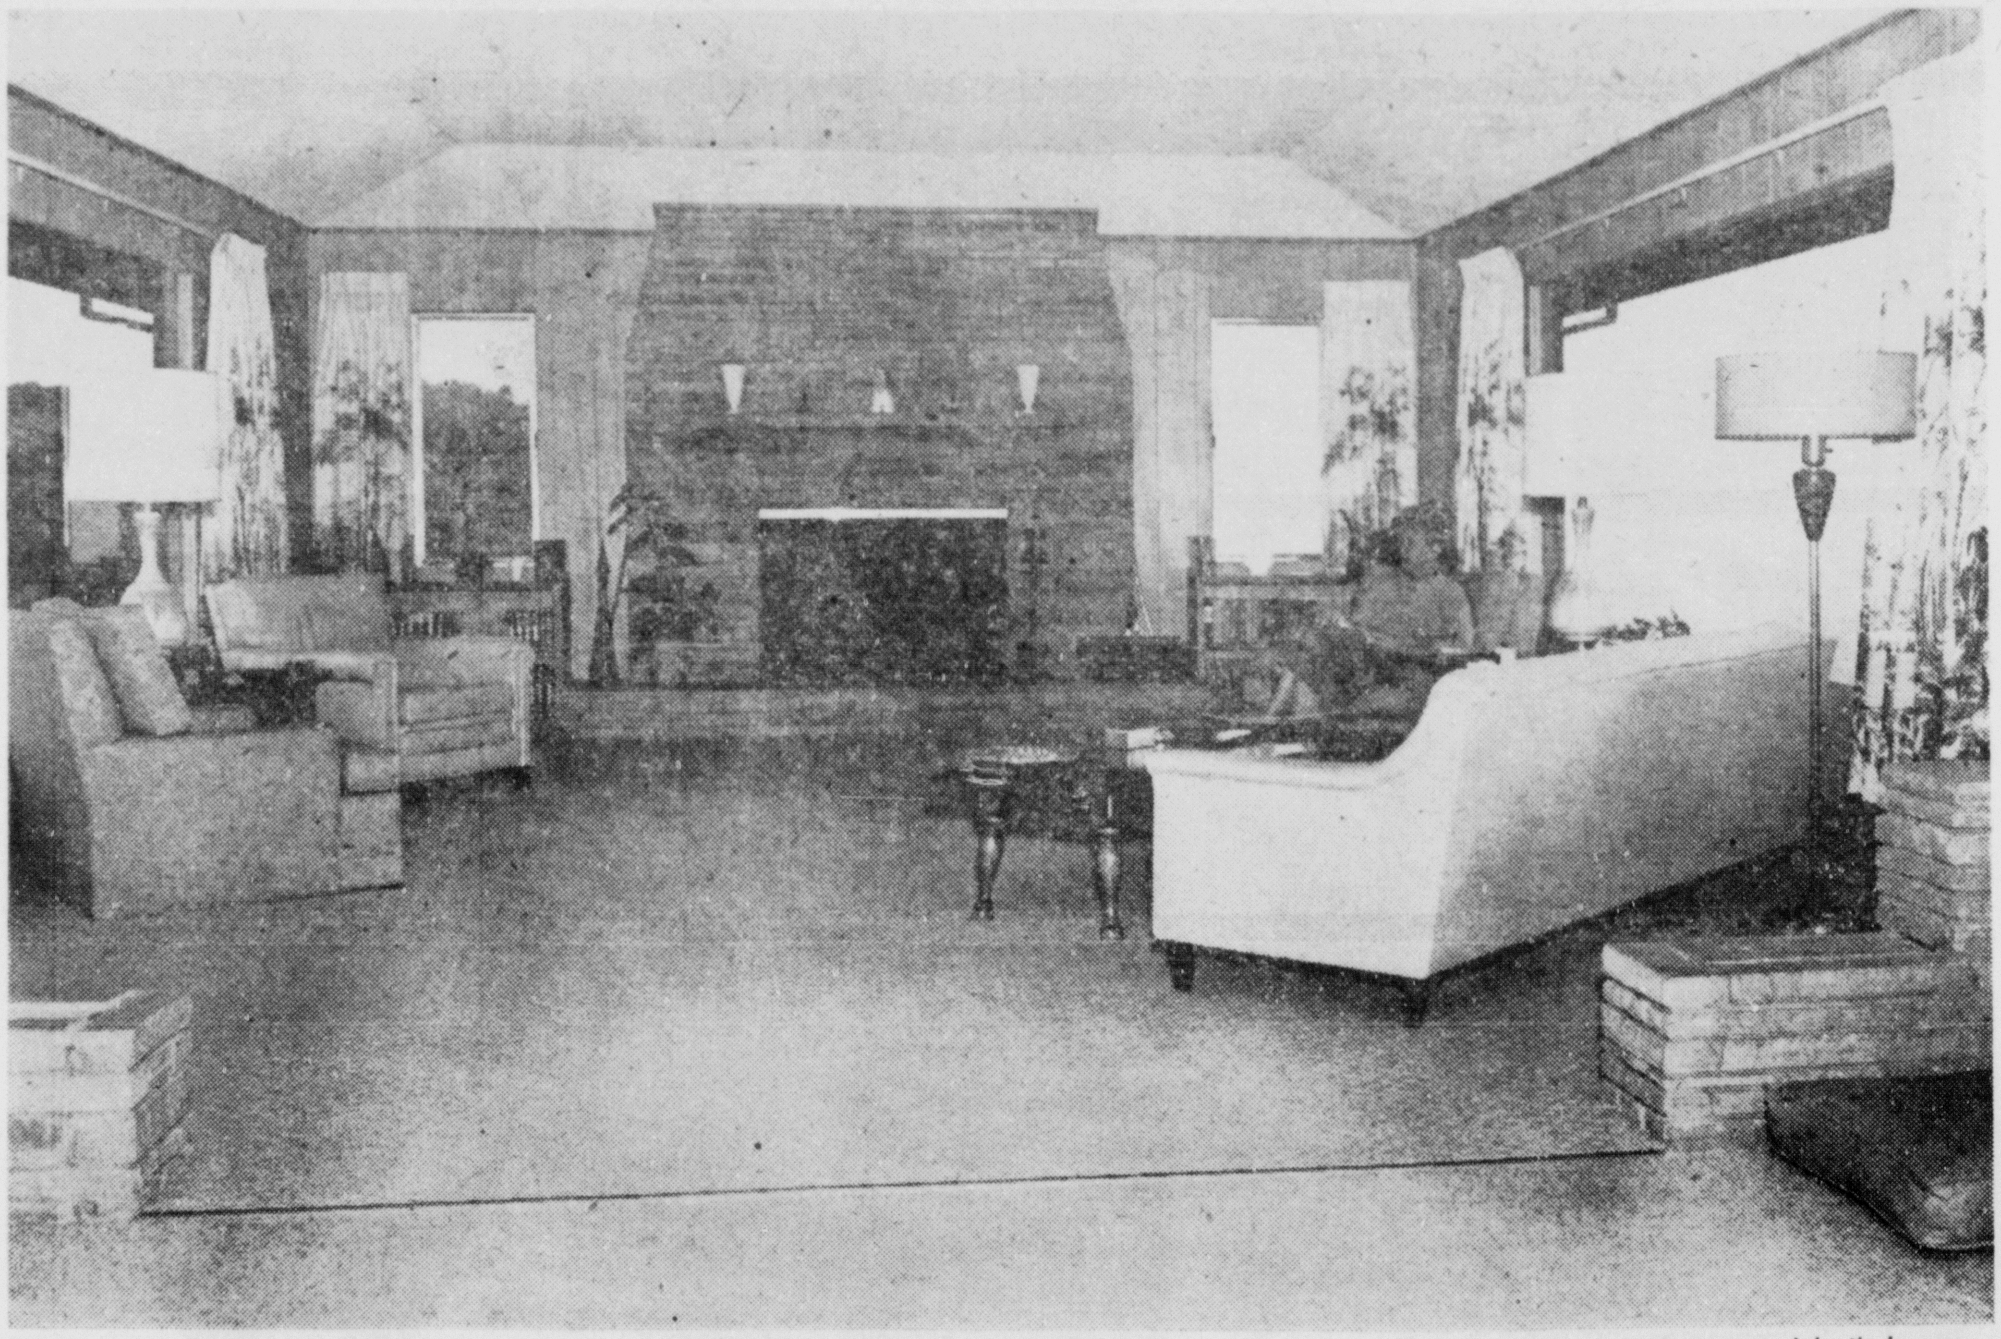

These are some of the reasons why builders are so proud when the homes they have constructed are awarded the Gold Medallion.

And why the emblem means so much to many people when they are "shopping" for a new home.

It represents their assurance that awaiting them in their new home will be all the many electrical conveniences which contribute so much to pleasant and to healthful living. The presence of the Gold Medallion is, in itself, an assurance of special value to the home purchaser.

One such Gold Medallion home in Marin is the new Paul Garzoli residence, perched on a beautiful knoll in Nicasio. Architect S. A. Lesswing designed it so that there is a spectacular view from virtually every room.

As for its electrical assets—well, just take a look at the pictures on these pages.

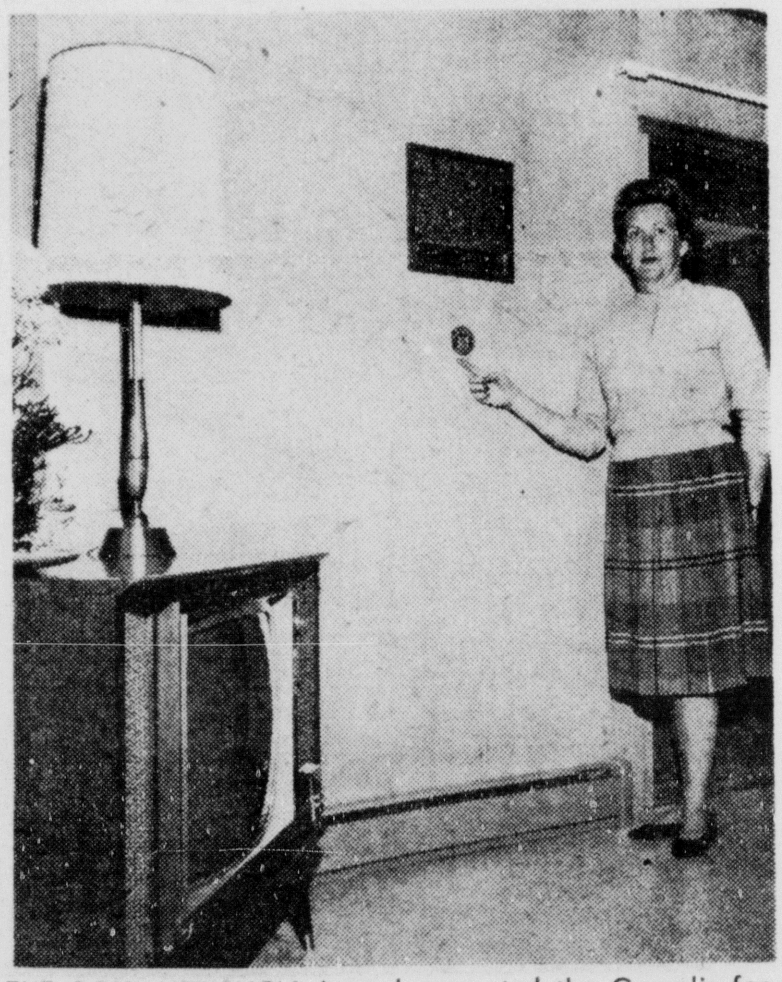

RELAXING IN HER favorite chair and reading a magazine in her new home at Nicasio, Mrs. Jane Garzoli enjoys the comfort of a residence heated entirely — except for bathrooms — by electric baseboard heaters. The Garzoli home was designed by architect S. A. Lesswing and built by general contractor Joe Dentoni. The wiring and all-electric facilities which won for the home the Gold Medallion recognition are the work of electrical contractor George Bellamy. (Independent-Journal photos)

MRS. GARZOLI regulates the thermostat on the electric baseboard heater, thus giving her exactly the temperature she desires in the master bedroom. Other rooms throughout the new home are similarly equipped.

GOOD LIGHTING, especially over the mirror, is essential in the modern bathroom. The Garzolis have it as part of the extensive electric system in their home.

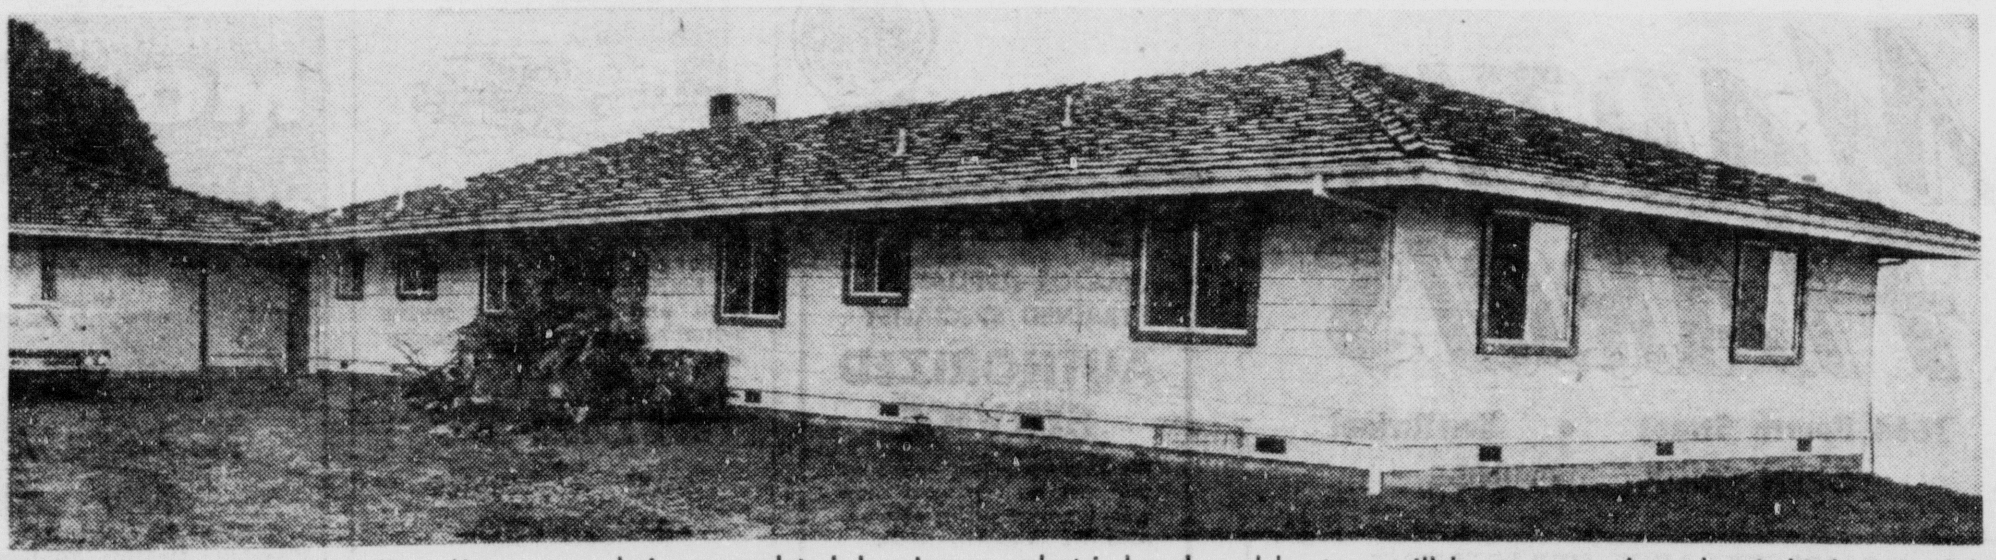

You're Invited Into One Of Marin's Gold Medal Homes

ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR George Bellamy shows Mrs. Garzoli how to install and remove the stainless steel filter for the hood and fan. Directly below is the completely automatic, pink electric range. Automatic dishwasher, disposal and frost-free refrigerator, all pink, are also in the kitchen.

IN THE BACKYARD of the Garzoli residence three men who have good reason to be proud of the new Gold Medallion home in Nicasio discuss some of its strong points. Left to right are electrical contractor George Bellamy, owner Paul Garzoli and general contractor Joe Dentoni.

HERE'S ANOTHER Gold Medallion Home now being completed by Joe Dentoni in Nicasio. Like the Garzoli home, this house will be heated by electric baseboard heaters, will have a complete electric kitchen, and full house-power wiring for present and future appliances, plus plenty of circuits, switches and outlets.

THIS MOBILE UNIT houses the Superior Electric Co.'s Caravan of Home Lighting Ideas, scheduled for a Marin stop Feb. 19 in connection with a Designer's Showcase program. Inside are six room interiors created by designers Edward Wormley and Edward Crouse demonstrating 27 different types of home lighting. Clever use of scale model furniture and wall-sized mirrors makes possible such a display.

LIGHTING CONSULTANT Rose M. Coakley arrived by plane to make arrangements for the Feb. 19 Designer's Showcase program at Sabella's Restaurant. Greeting her were, left to right, Mrs. Earl Burns, president of the San Rafael Improvement Club which is sponsoring the luncheon affair as a benefit; Mrs. Clarence De Long, the club's luncheon chairman; and Mrs. Ervin Vickers of Designer's Showcase. The luncheon program on "Light and Color in Decorating" will be held in conjunction with the appearance of the caravan on home lighting ideas. (Independent-Journal photo)

Good Lighting Ideas Travel On Wheels

Did you know that a decor of predominantly orange tones will make you work faster and keep you more alert? The stimulation is a psychological effect and, although associated with color alone, is also related to the subconscious reaction to light.

There are characteristics to light as to everything else. Some types will stimulate, others have a quieting effect.

An authority on the subject is Rose M. Coakley, lighting consultant for Superior Electric Co., who holds that the key to success in decorating is properly integrated controlled lighting.

She will be in Marin Feb. 19 to express her views at Sabella's Restaurant as part of the monthly series of luncheon-interior decorating shows arranged by Designer's Showcase. It will be sponsored as a benefit by the San Rafael Improvement Club which will be celebrating its 60th birthday next month.

Accompanying Miss Coakley to Marin will be Superior Electric's ingenious traveling display of the newest lighting techniques known as the Caravan of Home Lighting Ideas.

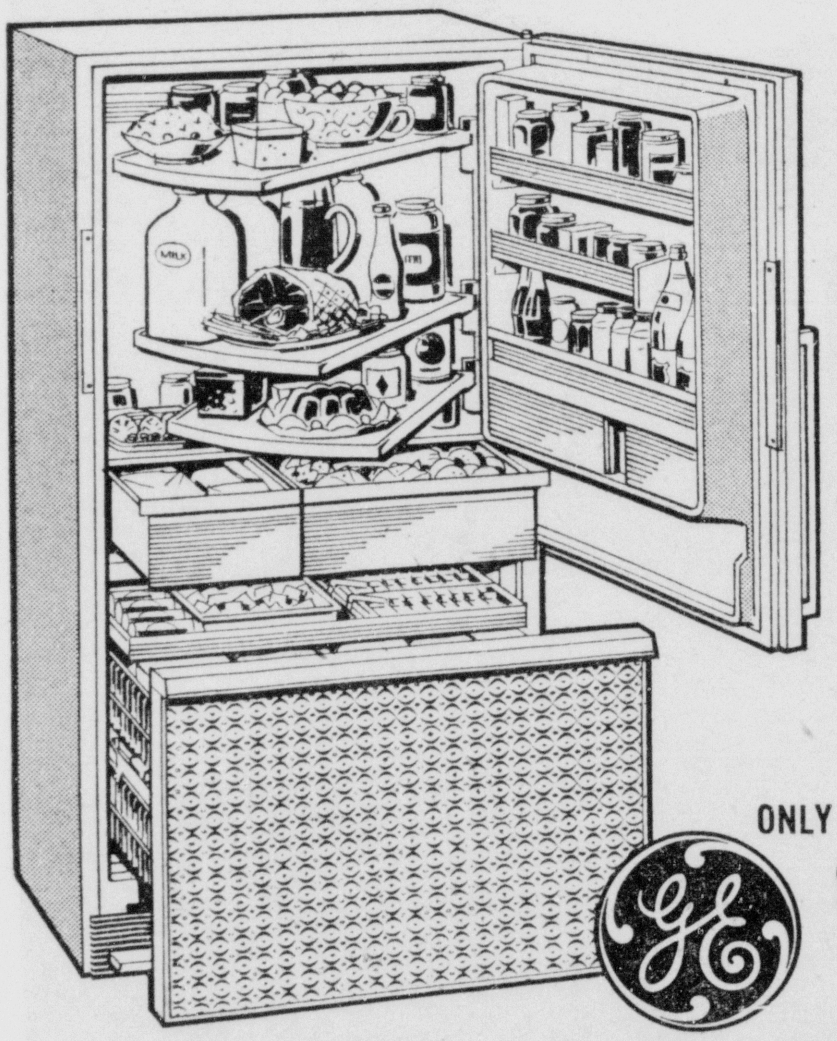

Within a single coach are portions of six rooms designed and decorated by Edward J. Wormley, internationally known designer, and his associate, Edward Crouse. By using an unusual display techniques that include wall-size mirrors and three-quarter scale furniture to give the illusion of spaciousness, Wormley has included 27 home lighting ideas within the single unit.

Luxtrol light controls, manufactured by Superior, are used to demonstrate the benefits of being able to make illumination bright, or dim, or at any desired level in between.

The caravan will be open to the public at Sabella's on Feb. 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. without an admission charge.

Aboard The Lighting Caravan

A MODEL points to wall plaque and control knob unit for the Luxtrol dimmers which replace the usual "on and off" switch for lighting in the Caravan of Home Lighting Ideas. Accent lighting adds a decorative as well as utilitarian note to the bookshelves.

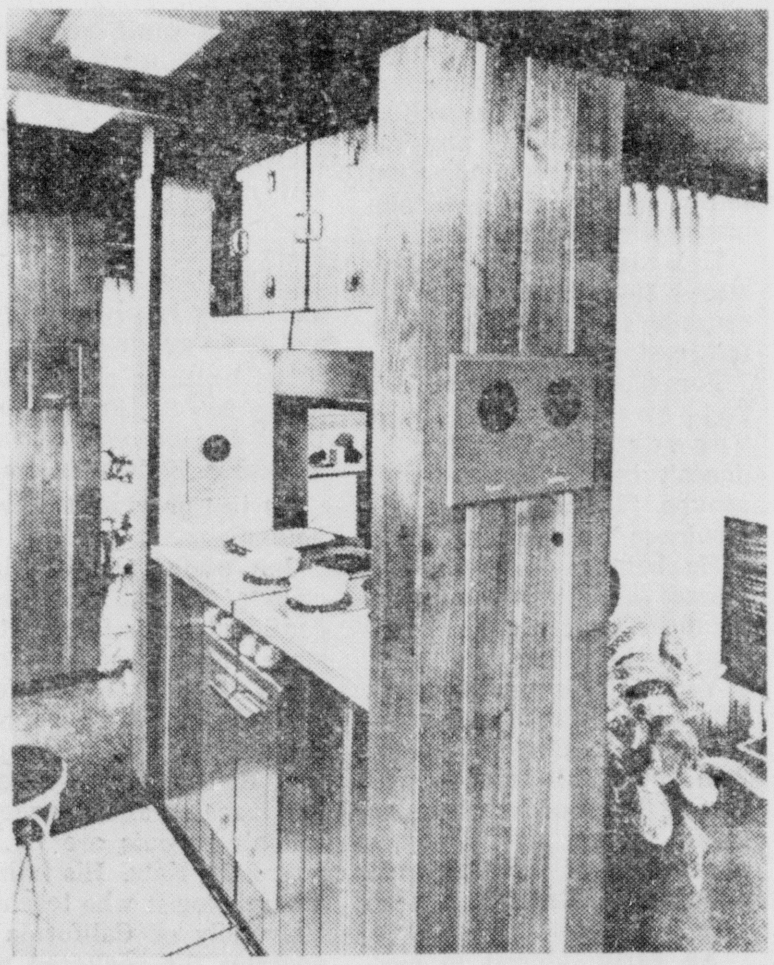

THIS BEDROOM interior features a well-placed and easily-controlled night lamp for reading, and tube lighting over the bed for accent effects. Reflected area shows vanity table with both overhead and side lighting.

THE FOREGROUND displays lighting ideas for the living room as seen in the Caravan of Home Lighting Ideas. Attractive mahogany box on the lamp table is the handy table-type control switch designed by Superior Electric Co. for its Luxtrol light controls.

A MERE TWIST of the dimmer control provides the delight of dining by candlelight. The switch can control overhead fixtures only, or can be so installed as to include both overhead and the table lamp.

THE KITCHEN AREA emphasizes area and task lighting, strong but controlled overhead light, and clear tube lighting in the recess over the stove. To the right can be seen the living room featuring accent lighting for the draperies.

Reservations, however, must be made in advance at Sabella's for the Designer's Showcase luncheon which will feature designs of Florence Huber Associates in addition to Miss Coakley's discussion of "Light and Color in Decorating." She will stress the importance of maintaining light surfaces in the room through such effects as light colored drapes, table tops, floor coverings or walls. Intensity and textures of fabrics will also be considered.

Miss Coakley will also be featured on "Designing With Light" in a special night-time attraction at Sabella's—an invitational affair arranged by Designer's Showcase for Bay Area electrical contractors, interior designers and architects starting at 7 o'clock. ENJOYING SOME TINKERING with the home-made high fidelity music set which he made for himself is Jon Katz of Kentfield, a senior at Redwood High School who aspires to a career in nuclear physics and who is fascinated by the field of electronics. He says his interest in things electric dates back to when he was 7 or 8 when he first began some "haphazard experiments" in the field. (Independent-Journal photos)

THE ENTHUSIASM of young Jon Katz for science has resulted in the conversion of much of his bedroom into an electronics and physics workshop. Here he is at work in that room soldering on his major current project — a nuclear magnetic resonance experiment.

Redwood Honor Student Fascinated By Electronics

By ED NEUMEIER

"I feel strongly," says Jon Katz of Kentfield, "that a person interested in science should have a good background in the humanities and be aware of what's going on in the world."

Jon Katz, a Redwood High School senior, tries hard to be that kind of person.

His high school work includes four years of German, four years of math, a year and a half of Russian, chemistry, physics and biology, as well as the usual history, physical education, government, and so on. If he could, he'd take many other courses.

He's also active in Redwood's International Club because he's interested in things international.

For the same reason he's interested and active in "peace activities," but he doesn't belong to particular groups. "I like to keep my inpendence," he asserts.

He belongs to the school science club and the honor language society, a past president of the latter.

Yet he finds time to work as a lab assistant to his physics teacher, Clifford Bunds. And during his seven semesters at Redwood he's been an honor student all the way, a member of the California Scholarship Federation each term.

An early interest in electricity became a fascination with electronics which, in turn, emerged into his current interest in nuclear physics.

Jon started, he guesses, at age 7 or 8 with some "haphazard experiments" with light bulbs, soon learning to "take apart toasters," and progressing to repairing and rebuilding radios and televisions.

When he was in the tenth grade, Jon won a county science fair grand prize. He had done some original research with ultra sound and its effect on growth of seed.

His current major project, not yet completed, is working with nuclear magnetic resonance. That means: "Making parts of atoms flip over and absorb electricity. You use machinery involving magnets and radio equipment."

His bedroom at the family home, 808 Sir Francis Drake Blvd., has become mostly workshop, little bedroom.

"It just grew up that way," he explains.

Jon, who stands third in his class of 356 at Redwood, is confident of his future at this stage. Next year he'll enter the University of California at Berkeley. He'll go on to get a Ph.D. in nuclear physics. He'll combine research and teaching as his career.

Jon's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Elias Katz. His father is a psychologist who teaches at University of California and operates the sheltered workshop program for aiding retarded children in San Francisco.

Up Goes A New Building

PG&E Quarters To Be Finished During Summer

An attractive new building for San Rafael is taking shape at Third and Brooks Streets where the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s new North Bay Division-Marin District headquarters is about half completed.

The architects, Gromme and Priestly of San Rafael, have incorporated many interesting and novel features in the contemporary design of the structure.

ENTIRELY fireproof, the two-story building will be of steel frame and reinforced concrete construction with exterior curtain walls. Its floor space will total 24,000 square feet.

Structural and ornamental elements in the design have been completely co-ordinated.

Extensive use will be made of beautiful Sonoma County fieldstone. The stone has been carefully selected in harmonious natural browns covered with lichens. Corners of the building, planters along Third Street and parts of the Brooks Street side of the building will be faced with this stone.

Curtain walls on the Third and Brooks streets sides will be of glass and porcelain enamel in aluminum frames. On those sides, too, a louvered aluminum sun shield in two harmonizing hues of brown will shade portions of the upper floor.

South and east walls, which face the parking area and rear, will consist of stucco with colored aggregate pressed into the surfaces.

The exterior will be landscaped with attractive shrubs and trees and enclosed by ornamental stone and wood fencing. Sidewalk and exterior stairs will feature exposed aggregate concrete.

A paved parking area for customers and employees will accommodate 90 cars.

The interior has been designed on a five by five foot module, or measuring standard, permitting easy rearrangement of office partitions. The entire building is air conditioned.

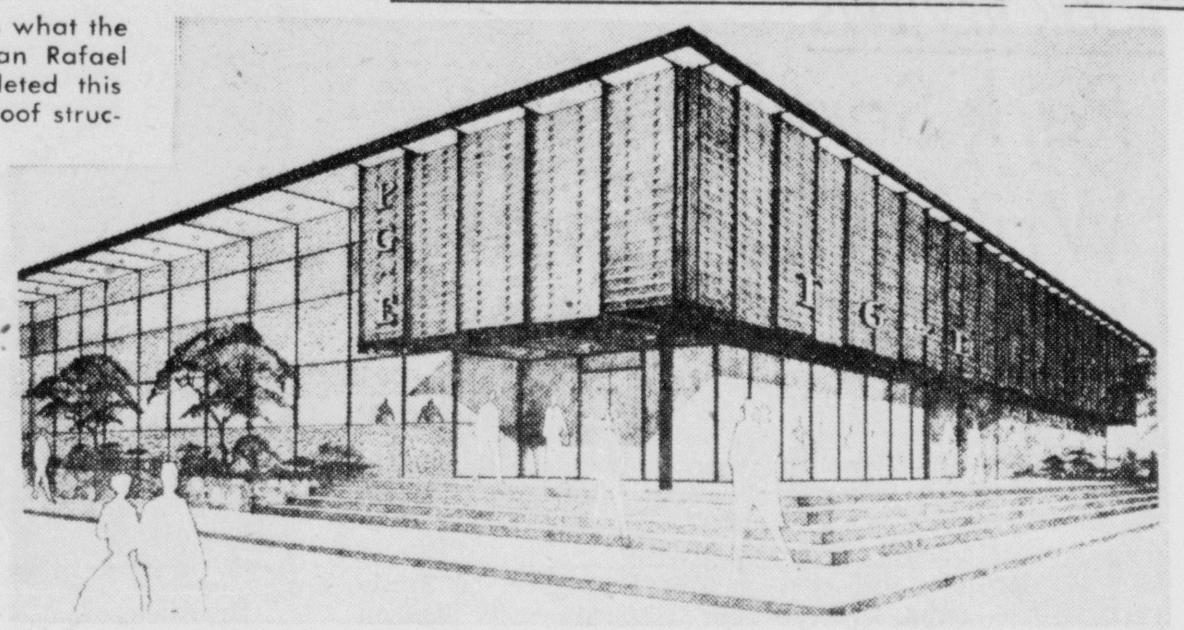

The first floor will house the Marin District offices, which will have a large customer lobby at the Third and Brooks streets corner of the building. The lobby will have a luminous ceiling, pre-cast terrazzo floor tile and a free-form customers' counter.

ALSO ON THE first floor will be a large auditorium for company-sponsored and other meetings, offices for division personnel and commercial departments and a second lobby paneled in teakwood. A feature of the auditorium, which will seat 125 persons, will be a completely equipped home economist's kitchen behind a stage platform.

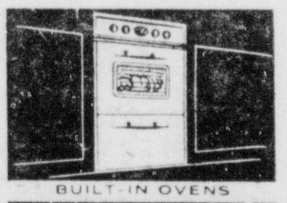

An elevator gives access to the second story. On this floor will be the division manager's office, a meeting room and offices of the division's gas, electric, general services and land departments.

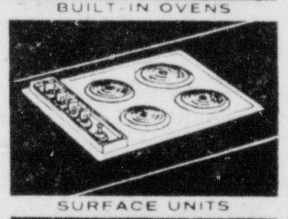

About 120 employees of PG&E's North Bay Division and Marin District will move into the new offices. The building is scheduled for completion this summer. The project will cost about one million dollars. Contractor is MacDonald-Young and Nelson.

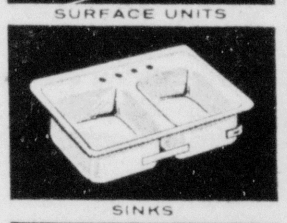

THIS ARCHITECT'S SKETCH shows what the new PG&E office building in San Rafael will look like when it is completed this summer. The design of the fireproof structure is contemporary.

Park Service Vet Writes Of Alaska

MY LIFE OF HIGH ADVENTURE by Grant H. Pearson, Prentice-Hall Inc., 234 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

For 25 years with the national park service, Grant H. Pearson was during much of that time stationed in Alaska's Mt. McKinley National Park, first as a ranger, then as chief ranger and finally as park superintendent. Now retired from the park service, he serves the district which includes McKinley Park in the Alaska state legislature.

With the help of his collaborator, Philip Newill, Pearson has compiled an autobiography rich in the adventurous spirit and scenic grandeur that is Alaska. The rugged, invigorating way of life of the Alaskan flavors and enlivens its pages.

Descriptive passages — of the Alaskan landscape and climate, of its rugged individualists and its wildlife — are superb. The account of the 1932 Lindley-Liek expedition (of which Pearson was a member) that scaled Mt. McKinley is done full justice with all of its excitement, hardship and human ingenuity and persistence. And without preaching to you on the subject, Pearson makes a splendid case on behalf of the cause of conservation.

The person already interested in the far north is certain to thrill to this true record of the exploits and achievements of one of Alaska's most respected and most colorful sons. And the person who in the past has not been especially intrigued by this field may well find himself developing an interest as he accompanies Ranger Pearson on his dog sled patrols over frozen tundra.

THE FLORENTINE RING by Jackson Stanley, Doubleday and Co., 357 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

This first novel of Southern California writer Jackson Stanley might be titled "The Unscrupulous American" with apologies to Messrs. Burdick and Lederer. The charming young hero from the USA arrives in Florence broke, naturally, and seemingly irresistible, and yet after a series of confused contrivances partly by his own making, fate steps in.

But the plot is mere byplay. Stanley, a writer and producer for radio and television, has made liberal use of his professional bag of tricks, and while the unnecessarily detailed description of heroic conquests preceded by passages of double entendre may have been fun for him to write, they do not make a better novel.

BUTTONWOOD by Maritta Wolff, Random House, 343 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Miss Wolff, author of "Whistle Stop" and four other novels, this time tackles the assignment of portraying life in a small American factory town.

She goes further and takes you "inside" her characters to examine the corrosive effects of the monotony of such an existence. She lets you see how some have fought back against it, others have adjusted to it, some have ignored it and some have fled from it.

Her central character is Paul Maitland, once a war hero with a glamorous future before him, but now another cog in the assembly line of an automobile plant. So well does Miss Wolff accomplish her mission of making Maitland understandable to the reader that he emerges as one of the most human, most likeable and most admirable fictional characters we have encountered in a long time. The reader's involvement with Maitland and sympathy for him accounts, in no small way, for the success of the book.

Other characters, too, are well drawn. It is a competent job by a story-teller sympathetic to the people about whom she is writing. A smash ending to her story is an added bonus for the reader.

THE GREEN THUMB GARDEN HANDBOOK by George Abraham, Prentice-Hall Inc., 341 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

George (Doc) Abraham writes a syndicated newspaper column entitled "The Green Thumb" that is carried by nearly 100 newspapers throughout the United States. In 1960 newspaper editors and horticultural scientists voted him America's outstanding horticultural newspaper writer.

Here Abraham compresses into a single volume a considerable portion of his vast knowledge in the gardening field. He covers a wide range of subjects — landscaping, pepping up poor soil, growing a lawn, house plant culture, rose growing and pruning, insect and animal control, vegetable gardening, plant culture, are just a few. His presentation is complete and easy to comprehend.

One qualification, however, to our endorsement of this book. Abraham writes from personal experience. And his experience is in New York—in the Naples Valley, to be exact. Thus he writes as an Easterner. And there are times when we Westerners must keep in mind that the conditions under which Abraham gardens are considerably different from those we face.

Still, there is sufficient applicable to the West Coast in the book to justify its cost—particularly for the beginner looking for a handbook to guide him in his plunge into the green thumb ranks.

THIS BRONZE by Frederic Remington is entitled "Coming Thru the Rye" and is pictured in the new American Heritage Junior Library series book, "Cowboys and Cattle Country." The four exuberant cowboys shown are probably celebrating the end of a round-up or a long cattle drive.

Worried about the twisted concept of western history your children might be acquiring from the hokum they see on television? Well, just buy them a copy of this latest in the always excellent American Heritage Junior Library series of books, and they will learn the truth about the hard-working, fun-loving, independent fellow who was the American cowboy.

Some of the glamor may fade at first when they learn he didn't always pack a six-shooter. But it will be replaced with a fuller appreciation of and deeper respect for the rugged men who braved danger and loneliness on the frontier. Along with the exciting text by Ward are 150 pictures—45 of them in color—by illustrators such as Frederic Remington and Charles M. Russell.

Boys 10 and older will especially cherish this book, reading and re-reading it.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

TWO

One childish Valentine ago
we played a game—
I had a half of paper heart;
Someone the matching other,
And after we misfitted for an hour
Laughingly discovered
Each other;
Two jagged halves made one.
It makes me think that you—
How you and I—
We two fit
One heart into the other,
And the knowledge of the oneness
Makes me glad
I love you.

SAN RAFAEL OLGA SCHARNINGHAUSEN

THE WORLD OF NINE

I went to battle when I was nine
To protect a loving friend of mine,
There on the city corner he stood
As staunch and as strong as in a wood,
He was "The Old Chestnut" by name
And into his heart the robins came,
By my window he grew and there every day
I'd listen long to the things he'd say,
Then one horrible morning I heard a sound
Of sawing and screetching as they cut him down,
I grabbed a gun my mother thought hid
And I held it on the man with the saw, I did,
He must have been scared for he moved not a twee
As with tears and with gun I protected the tree,
They soon found me there, took the gun away
But the lamp post they planted I dislike today.

Larkspur Has Its 'Grandma Moses' In Talented Artist

Mrs. Margaret Dabney Started Painting Landscapes At Age 73

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Marin County can now claim its own Grandma Moses.

Mrs. Margaret Dabney of Larkspur, who just turned 81, paints pictures of Marin's countryside, an art which she began only eight years ago when she was 73.

Mrs. Dabney started painting after talking to the wife of a Methodist minister, who painted in her spare time, on a visit to Colorado where Mrs. Dabney spent most of her life.

The minister's wife, along with Mrs. Dabney's oldest of four daughters, Mrs. Lois Stevens, now of Stockton, talked Mrs. Dabney into trying her hand at painting.

She tried, and found she had a talent which had lain dormant for 73 years of her life.

Mrs. Dabney was born in Maryland and in 1899 moved to Cripple Creek, Colo. When 23, she married Edward C. Dabney, a furniture man, who died in 1941.

The Dabney family moved to Long Beach in 1931 and lived there until coming to Marin six years ago. She now lives in a duplex shared with her daughter, Maggi Walker, a Larkspur realty broker, at 108 Locust Avenue in Larkspur.

Mrs. Walker and Sid Carson, partner in Tia's Coffee Shop and Gallery in Corte Madera, persuaded Mrs. Dabney to display her paintings in the coffee shop for the month of February. The coffee shop changes local artist displays monthly.

It took some friendly persuasion, but the modest lady finally agreed to hang her works for display—their first showing to the public. The signatures on her paintings bear the signature, Maggie Smith, Mrs. Dabney's maiden name.

"When I first started trying to paint," Mrs. Dabney reflects, "I bought twice as much paints and brushes as was required. I was told to only buy the three basic colors, but I bought a few more."

Mrs. Dabney first started painting only oils, but now does both oil and watercolors. "It is getting harder to paint because of my eyesight, said the white haired lady. "But I haven't made a career out of painting.

When asked why she hadn't tried painting when she was younger, Mrs. Dabney said most of her life was taken up with her family. Besides four daughters, she now has nine grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Dabney only paints landscapes of areas in Marin. "I see hills and trees, then go home to paint them."

She estimates she has painted about 30 works "so far." She said, "I give them to my family and friends. No, I will not sell any of them. I give them away."

LANDSCAPES OF the countryside are the special interest of Mrs. Margaret Dabney, 81-year-old Larkspur artist. Mrs. Dabney began her art work only eight years ago. So far she has completed about 30 canvases. (Independent-Journal photo)

They're Together Again

A DATE WITH THE MASTERSOUNDS—Fantasy stereo 8062.

Once one of the Bay Area's finest modern jazz combos and heard in many of the top live-jazz spots, the Mastersounds now are assembled, like a genii out of a magic bottle, only for and in the secret innersanctum studios of Fantasy Records. The personnel are all playing live performances away from the Mastersounds organization — brothers Buddy and Monk Montgomery, vibes and bass respectively, ranging over the country; and Sausalito-based pianist Richie Crabtree and drummer Benny Barth sticking pretty much to the Bay Area clubs.

Buddy Montgomery, who has lately concentrated on piano-playing, is heard in this new disc on the vibes, the instrument on which he won the Down Beat Critics' Poll as "New Star." "Whisper Not," a standard, and the first and longest selection on the disc, is my personal favorite of the set. Two of Buddy's own compositions, "Fink-Fank-Funk," and "For Now," are also featured among the eight tunes which are brought to a swinging close with Oscar Peterson's "Noreen's Nocturne." The Mastersounds' sound is, as always, well-blended and full of colorful shades of tone. The latter quality is underlined in an immediately apparent manner by the fact that the disc is pressed on a beautiful blue plastic.

So if a blue disc with the happy sound of small-combo modern jazz is your dish of tea, have a Date with the Mastersounds.

Science Is Gaining In Fight On Fires

The day may come when it will be almost impossible for a fire to start accidentally in your home. But the complete use of fireproof materials is still a long way off, from a practical standpoint.

Science is making considerable progress, however, in the fight to reduce the large loss of life and huge property damage every year from home fires. One way in which this is being done is by the creation of fireproof or fire retardant additions to materials that ordinarily would burn easily.

Fire retardant paints are one of the products which it is hoped will slow down the fire once it starts. These paints can not, of course, prevent fires. They can only keep them from spreading too rapidly. The valuable minutes which are saved can mean the difference between a minor blaze and a tragic one.

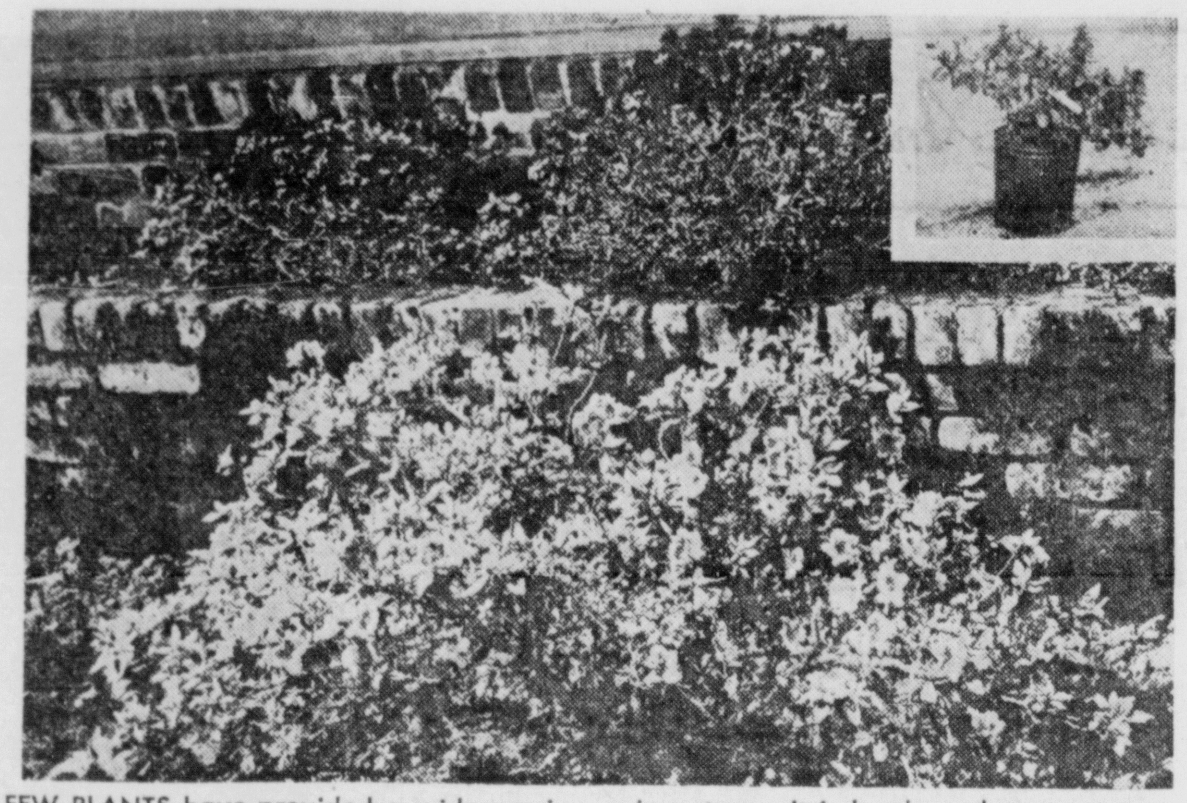

THESE PAINTS work in one or more of three ways. When the temperature reaches a given point, some of these paints release vapors such as carbon dioxide and nitrogen which not only do not support combustion, but which often help to put fires out by starving them of oxygen the way certain fire extinguishers do.

Other fire retardant paints work by swelling or bubbling up to form a honeycombed, foamlike layer that insulates the surface beneath and prevents it from reaching a temperature at which it will burn or release harmful fumes.

A third type of fire retardant paint forms a glazed surface which keeps the undersurface from reaching the point of ignition.

To qualify as a fire retardant paint with Underwriters Laboratories, the formulation must have two other properties clearly stated on the label. It must not contribute more than a certain amount of additional fuel to a fire. And it must not develop more than a minimum amount of smoke.

FIRE RETARDANT paints are available in both flat and gloss finishes and in a variety of colors. They can be applied over any surface by brush, roller and spray and generally do not require a special primer. They are especially recommended for furnace rooms, garages, bedrooms, hallways and stairwells.

FEW PLANTS have provided a wider variety of useful shrubs, both evergreen and deciduous, than the the colorful, versatile Azalea. In addition to offering a wealth of brilliant color, it also boasts some varieties that are fragrant. And the leaves turn well in autumn. It is hardy and grows successfully in almost any soil that is not alkaline. The azalea's a good bet for pot culture, woodland setting or problem area in your garden. SOME SUGGESTIONS

Summer Blooming Bulbs Can Provide Your Garden Color

If summer-blooming bulbs are fewer in number than those which spring brings forth, they are none the less colorful. Individually, at least, the Gladiolus and Canna, the Tuberous Begonia and Agapanthus are far showier than their vernal cousins. Include Dahlias and Lilies in the list and there is really no comparison.

Since the likes of Gladiolus and Dahlia never lack for publicity, let's move some of the lesser-known bulbs into the limelight at this time. Cannas, for instance, can be the showpieces of the summer border when given a chance. Pity is that they often don't get the chance.

Tropical in looks (and likes) the tall blooms often grow head and shoulders above most other flowers in the garden—even Delphiniums. They wallow in warmth, as many valley gardeners know, but deserve planting nearer the coast as well. Give them rich soil and water and lift the rhizomes every other year for best results. You have pink, white, yellow, red, bronze and orange Cannas to choose from.

Totally unlike the showy Cannas are Agapanthus—the blue Lilies of the Nile. Borne in huge umbels of blue on stiff, bare stalks, they are spectacular when mass planted in city parks. In the garden, however, they are best clumped in borders or set in a tightly planted row along a walk. Don't look for the bulbs as such. Since the strap-like leaves never die back, the plants are offered in containers by nurserymen.

The bulb you shouldn't overlook anywhere is the Tigridia, or Mexican Shell Flower. You can't really compare these lovely little bulbs with anything else in your garden experience. The tri-corner blooms, speckled and solid in a wide range of brilliant colors are incomparable. Blooms are fleeting, lasting only one day, but each bulb produces such a continuous succession of blooms in summer that the daily dying back is never noticed. Mass them closely and lift them only once in five or six years. You'll be treating them better than they really demand.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

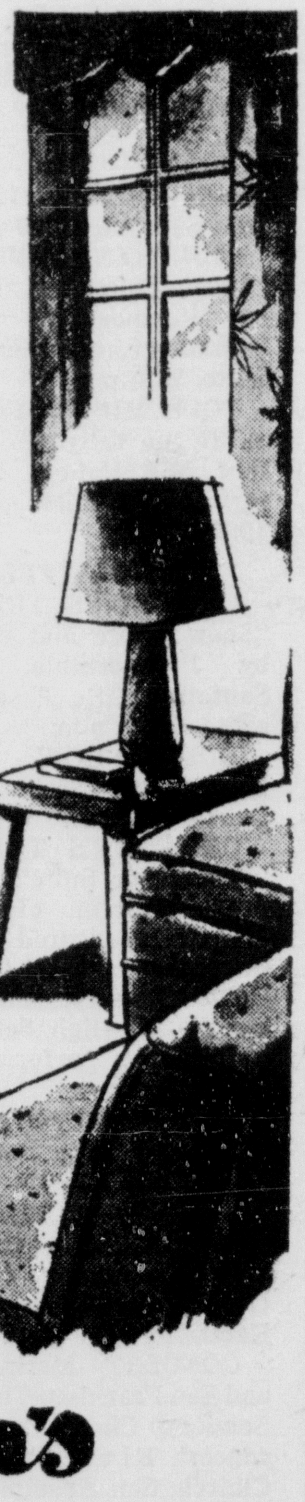

- All bareroot fruit and nut trees should be planted this month while they are still available.
- Ranunculus may still be planted—either the bulbs or the seedlings from nursery flats.
- Fuchsias should be pruned this month. Cut them back hard to promote new flowering wood.
- Lawn renovation can start this month. The seedbed should be prepared now if you plan to plant a new lawn in March or early April.
- Among the bedding plants, such winter standbys as Fair Primrose, Pansy Viola and Calendula may still be planted for color in a hurry.

YOU AND YOUR HOME

Your home should reflect the personality of your family. Does it? Or is it simply a collection of furniture . . . each piece attractive in itself, but somehow unrelated to the others.

It may be that a few simple and inexpensive changes can "pull together" your furniture, floor and wall coverings and accessories . . . give your home the character you desire. This is the function of the professional decorator—to add practical advice to your ideas. The result . . . a more enjoyable, more liveable home.

FRUIT TREE SPRAYING . . . A "MUST"!

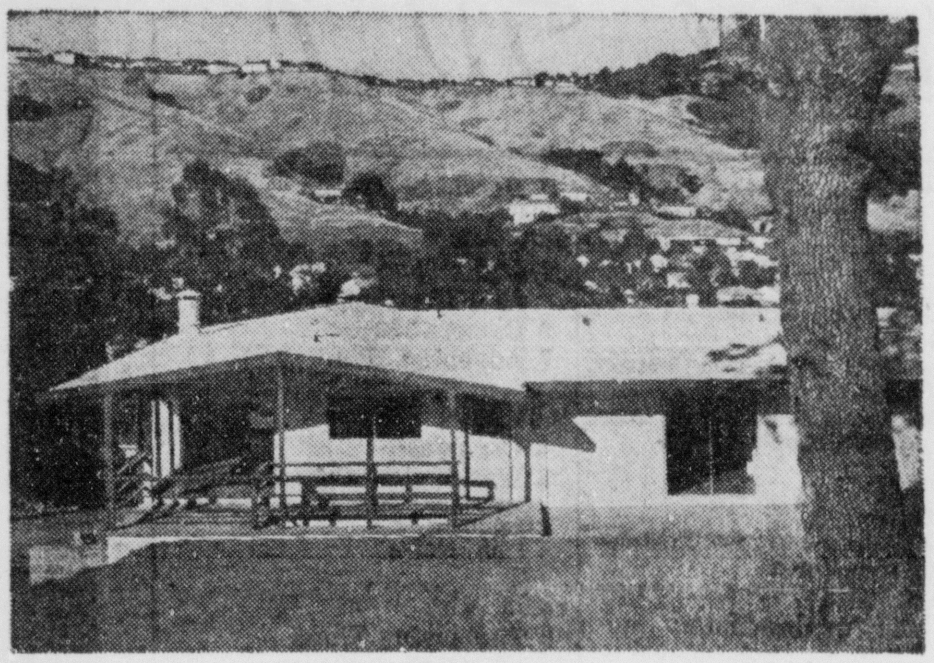

Now, in early February, Marin County fruit trees are in grave danger of disease infection. It is important to spray all fruit trees with a "delayed dormant" spray, at the time peaches are in "red bud" stage.

As many leaf diseases "winter over" on fallen leaves, garden debris should be removed, and shrubs sprayed.
